21 Killed, 13 Injured In Florida Plane Crash

2 Children Escape Injury as Airliner Bound for San Juan Hits Knoll in Swamp

Melbourne, Fla., July 13 (AP).—Twenty-one persons were killed, most of them Puerto Ricans, homeward bound to visit relatives, and 13 were injured today in the crash of a twin-engined DC-3 chartered airliner on a knoll in swampland 6 miles west of here.

Two children miraculously escaped injury. One, Jose Rodriguez, 3, received minor scratches and the other, Ellen Acavedo, 12, a slight cut over the eye.

Three unidentified victims were reported dying at Brevard Hospital, where all survivors were taken.

Pilot Among Dead

Among the known dead were the pilot, Capt. Henry Hein of Houston, Tex.; the co-pilot, listed as Roderick Paul McKinna, and McKinna's wife who had signed on as a crew member.

Survivors told of babies being torn from sleeping mothers' arms by the crash, of screaming and weeping passengers, and of prayers offered by helpless injured trapped inside or strewn around the plane.

The dead were removed to Brownley Funeral Home here where the back yard and garage were turned into an improvised morgue. The bodies of four children, nine women and eight men were there.

The plane belonged to Burke Airlines whose owner, Andrew J. Burke of Miami flew to the scene. He said the plane was licensed to carry 25 passengers and a crew of three, and that the additional passengers were babes in arms.

Flying to Puerto Rico

He said the craft was flying from Newark airport to San Juan, Puerto Rico, via Augusta, Ga., and Miami.

The plane also carried a Puerto Rican stewardess whose name was not known here.

Large numbers of Puerto Ricans have migrated since the war to New York, and this group was returning home to visit relatives.

The plane splashed into swamp waters about 4:30 a. m., careened up the knoll, mowed down several pine trees, and came to rest against a tree stump, one wing and both motors torn off and the other wing pointing skyward.

When rescue workers reached the scene they found some injured and dead tangled inside the craft and others strewn outside. Rescuers, including Red Cross workers, waded and pushed trucks through water more than knee deep to reach the wreck. The plane did not burn.

The plane was last heard from over Jacksonville, Fla., and news of the crash came after it was overdue at Miami.

Mrs. Helen Dudas, operator of a rural chicken ranch, said she heard a plane roar overhead and then a terrific crashing sound. She sent her two sons through the marsh

Woman Flier Flags Fog-Bound Plane To Safe Landing

Pittsburgh, July 13 (AP).—A woman flier today commandeered her three brothers and waved towels and shirts to guide a fog-bound plane to a landing in a nearby oat field.

The plane somersaulted as it hit the ground, landing on its back, but the occupants escaped without injury.

Theresa James, 35, a former Army Transport Command pilot, sighted the plane, which circled the Penn Township area for 45 minutes in a futile attempt to pierce the fog.

Miss James and her brothers ran to the open field, placed themselves at opposite ends of the 400-yard-long strip, and flagged in the distressed plane.

Hickenlooper Agrees

Ex-Soldiers Kept Atom Secrets, FBI Man Says

By The Associated Press

A Federal Bureau of Investigation official yesterday said the FBI believes the atom bomb secrets that two former Army sergeants are accused of taking did not get away from them before they were arrested.

The official told a reporter: "It is our best information that none of the secrets they had in their possession got beyond these two boys."

Similar belief was expressed by members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy. Chairman Hickenlooper, Iowa Republican Senator, said the committee is "comfortably satisfied on that."

The FBI previously had said that evidence indicates no link with "foreign espionage."

The two accused men, formerly station at the Los Alamos, N. Mex., atomic testing station, were arrested Saturday, swiftly following authorization by the Justice Department of their prosecution.

Both will be arraigned today, Alexander von der Luft, 23, in Pittsburgh, and Ernest D. Wallis, 34, in Chicago. The charge is removing and concealing documents, which carries a possible maximum penalty of a $2000 fine and 3 years in jail. The FBI refused permission to interview them and they have made no statements. They did not even know each other and apparently had no connection, the FBI said.

The FBI said the secret data was turned up in von der Luft's room at Princeton University, a family wall safe at Mt. Lebanon, Pa., where he was arrested, and in Wallis' photographic studio in Chicago.

Hickenlooper, in disclosing to the Senate last week the disappearance of the documents, said they were, "as we believe, completely and fully recovered." He said the men were souvenir hunters.

A full year appears to have elapsed during which the information was missing—some of it labeled by the FBI "top secret" and some "highly confidential."

The men were discharged in the spring of 1946 after service at Los Alamos where they were assigned to the Manhattan District project, the name by which atomic research was known when it was under Army direction. This year control came under the civilian Atomic Energy Commission.

The FBI said it learned April 30, 1947, that certain documents were

Senate Group Hears Barrett, Young Today

Public Testimony Precedes Full-Scale Police Investigation

A Senate special committee will conduct a public hearing at 2 p. m. today, preliminary to full-scale congressional investigation of law enforcement and police administration in this city.

Purpose of today's hearing is to gather data for presentation to the Rules Committee and Senate with a request for $25,000 to carry out extensive investigation of police methods. The investigation was asked by lawmakers and public groups after The Post exposed widespread "pocketing" of crime complaints.

Young to Testify

District Commissioner John Russell Young and his protege, newly-appointed Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, and Washington Post staff members have been asked to testify. Young and Barrett will be asked to explain, particularly, why official police statistics listed but 761 robberies for 11 months beginning July 1, 1946, whereas The Post investigators uncovered more than 1350.

Pertinent to the official Senate investigation will be Police Department for the existence of secret files. These files in the Detective Bureau listed more than 300 robbery complaints of the same 11-month period not carried in public records. Major Barrett headed the Detective Bureau before his recent elevation to superintendent.

Calls on The Post

The Senate probers have also asked The Post to present evidence it gathered in its investigations of police "pocketing" of crime complaints. At one point in The Post's investigation, 22 experienced news reporters descended simultaneously at every police stationhouse in the District to study precinct record books.

The Senate District Committee resolved to study police administration here largely on the basis of The Post expose. The Federation of Citizens Associations also asked Congressional probe and a grand jury study of Metropolitan Police.

Today's hearing will be held in the Senate District Committee room.

U. S. Cameraman Stoned by Nazis

Moosburg, Germany, July 13.—Nazi inmate of an American-supervised concentration camp at this Bavarian town stoned an American photographer on Friday and, after surrounding him, forcibly took away his film.

The photographer, Eugene Kammerman, of the Pix photo agency, was extricated from the mob by Capt. Theodore Meyer, supervisor of the camp.

Taft Blocking UMT, Charges Ex-Justice

Roberts Demands Senator Permit Vote On Training Bill

By Rose McKee

International News Service Staff Writer

Former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts demanded yesterday that Senator Taft (R., Ohio) permit universal military training to be put on the Senate's agenda for floor action.

Roberts, chairman of the newly organized Citizens' Emergency Committee for Universal Military Training, charged that Taft, as head of the Senate GOP Steering Committee, was the "major stumbling block" to a vote on the issue.

The former justice made the charge in an open letter to Taft. In an accompanying statement, Roberts said he deplored Taft's "obstructionist tactics" and added:

"Senator Taft's current intransigence might result in a national calamity. Senator Taft is a man of outstanding ability. On economic and political matters, his judgment has, in most cases, been good. But when it comes to matters relating to war and military preparation for it, it seems obvious that he is one of those sincere but, I think, misguided people whose aversion to war is so great that they cannot tolerate effective military preparation, no matter how necessary."

Both Republican and Democratic Senators sided with Taft in that they said the issue could not be acted upon this year. Senator Millikin (R., Colo.), chairman of the full Senate GOP Conference, declared:

"The military necessity of universal military training has not yet been demonstrated. Whenever that necessity is demonstrated, the

Complete Dinosaur Skeletons Found In New Mexico

New York, July 13 (AP).—Discovery of complete, articulated skeletons of dinosaurs which inhabited the North American Continent some 200 million years ago was announced today by Wayne M. Faunce, vice director of the American Museum of Natural History.

Faunce said the find was probably the most important yet made of the early inhabitants of this continent and that it was made near Lindrith, N. Mex., by an expedition from the museum headed by Dr. Edwin H. Colbert, curator of fossil reptiles.

Faunce said the skeletons were of creatures that belonged to the Theropoda order of dinosaurs in the Triassic period and that heretofore these were known to have existed only from bone fragments.

Arraignment Set Today

Man Who Shot at Sen. Bricker Faces Intent-to-Kill Charge

William L. Kaiser, discharged Capitol policeman, will be arraigned at Municipal Court today on a charge of assault with intent to kill Ohio Senator John W. Bricker.

Bricker is expected to appear at the hearing and give testimony. He said yesterday, however, that he had not been notified to appear, but would do so if police wanted him.

Meanwhile, Bricker, candidate for the Vice Presidency on the Republican ticket in 1944, expressed concern about the safety of other Senators after his own escape from two shots fired by Kaiser from a target pistol in the Senate subway Saturday.

"I've often worried," Bricker said, "about the huge crowds we have just overhead in the Senate galleries. It would be a mighty easy thing for someone to drop a grenade over that railing.

"I'm not certain there is anything we can do about it other than have our guards and doormen be more alert. We certainly do not want to stop and search all of these people."

Bricker was joined in his uneasiness by Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) who said that while he considered the Saturday shooting an "isolated affair," the situation "might become serious in view of the number of crackpots around and current upset condi-

Tax Cut Veto Can't Stop Us, Millikin Says

GOP May Try Again In Fall, He Asserts; Senate Passage Scheduled Today

By the United Press

Chairman Eugene D. Millikin of the Senate Finance Committee, said yesterday that if President Truman successfully vetoes the new income tax cut bill, the Republicans will fire a third reduction plan at him in the event of a special "foreign policy" session of Congress this fall.

The President intends to veto—for a second time—the GOP plan to give the Nation's 48,500,000 taxpayers cuts of from 10½ to 30 per per cent. And he has a good chance of making the veto stick in the Senate.

Despite this, the Senate is scheduled to approve the bill by a wide margin today—with slight change from the form in which it was passed by the House last Tuesday by a 302 to 112 majority, 26 votes more than the two-thirds needed to override a veto.

Hope to Adjourn July 26

Millikin holds firmly to his belief that the Senate "has a fairly good chance" of making the plan law despite Mr. Truman's objections. But if it fails, he said, the GOP will bounce right back with a third bill either this fall or early next year.

"You can bet that whenever we get the opportunity, the Republicans will try to put through a tax reduction," he said.

Republican leaders hope to adjourn the present session by July 26. Millikin indicated the tax issue might be settled within the next week, at least for the time being.

"I look for a prompt veto," he said.

Senator Wherry Confident

However, Senator Wherry of Nebraska, Republican whip, told the Associated Press he is confident the Senate would override a veto of the four-billion-dollar income tax reduction bill.—Editor's note.)

The Democrats, who blocked a vote on the bill Saturday night—largely because they were indignant over being kept at their desks for nearly 10 hours on a customary nonwork day—assured Millikin and other GOP chieftains that they would not resort to additional delaying tactics today.

One major amendment—the plan of Senator John D. McClellan (D., Ark.) to require all States to adopt the community property tax system under which a husband and wife may split their income for tax purposes—remains to be voted on before the Senate sends the bill on its second White House journey.

Refuses to Make Deal

Millikin, a Colorado Republican, refused to tie himself up in a "deal" by which the McClellan amendment might be accepted in return for a promise of one or two votes to override a veto. He figured the gain might be offset by the loss of an equal number of Senators firmly opposed to the change.

"The Senate will pass the bill 'as is,'" he said.

This means that Mr. Truman will have delivered to him—probably on Tuesday—the same tax reduction plan he vetoed successfully last month as "the wrong kind of tax reduction at the wrong time."

Some lawmakers believe it may bounce back on Wednesday or

Dewey Is Favorite

Governors 'Sit on Fence' At Parley

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Reporter

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 13.—From a political standpoint, the thirty-ninth annual Governor's Conference is notable for the large number of "fence sitters."

Forty-four of the Nation's 48 Governors have come to this picturesque capital of the Mormon State, prepared to discuss such problems as taxes and labor reforms and to listen to Secretary of State George C. Marshall talk about foreign policy tomorrow night.

With some exceptions, the Governors were loath to talk politics—that is, publicly. Privately, that is about all they did talk about.

The Republican Governors—there are 23 of them as against 21 Democratic Governors—sized up the 1948 presidential battle something like this:

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, although a favorite for the GOP presidential nomination at this stage, is far from being "in." The pledges he has received from Republican leaders on his "vacation" tour through Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas and other States,

Army Reserve Flier Training Cut to a Third

Reduction in Budget Hits Teaching Staffs, Crews and Facilities

By The Associated Press

The Army Air Forces said yesterday that because of its "budget-trimmed program" only 9786 of the 28,630 reserve flying officers who enrolled for part-time training are receiving such training.

The reduced funds are limiting teaching staffs, maintenance crews and training facilities, said an announcement in connection with the forthcoming celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the AAF on August 1.

The Air National Guard is now organized with 8512 officers and men, while the planned strength is 57,946. When at full strength, the air element of the guard will consist of 84 squadrons, of which 12 will be light bombardment and the remainder fighter outfits, the AAF said.

In addition to conventional type fighters—P-51s and P-47s—the announcement said that "it is also contemplated that some Air National Guard fighter squadrons will receive jet-propelled Lockheed P-80 Shooting Stars within the next 12 months."

Cuban Senators Fight Duel With Sabers

Havana, Cuba, July 13 (AP).—Senators Eduardo Chibas and Carlos Prio Socarras, both in the spotlight as presidential possibilities, settled their public differences in a duel today.

They were reconciled after Chibas had been wounded three times and Prio Socarras once in a three-round engagement with double-edged sabers. The incident had its origin in radio utterances by Chibas which Prio Socarras considered slanderous.

The Post Poll

Average Resident Can Name But Three Cabinet Members

The average Greater Washington area resident can name correctly only three Cabinet members, the latest Post Poll reports.

The Post Poll conducted a quiz on the names of people holding some of the highest positions in the country. Twenty-eight per cent of those interviewed were unable to name any Cabinet member correctly. Only 6 per cent could name all 10 Cabinet members. The average number named correctly was three.

Best known of the Cabinet members is Secretary of State Marshall, identified correctly by 65 per cent of those living in the area. Secretary of Commerce Harriman, most recently appointed of the other Cabinet members, was correctly named by only 11 per cent.

Women did much more poorly on the quiz than the men. Thirty-four per cent were unable to name a single Cabinet member correctly, as compared with 20 per cent of the men.

People from families with Government workers are somewhat better informed, than those from families without Federal workers.

These findings of The Post Poll are based on personal interviews with a representative cross-section of people living in the Greater Washington Area.

Local residents were asked:

"Can you tell me the name of the Secretary of State? The Secretary of War? etc."

Replies were as follows:

	Per Cent Giving Correct Name
	All Groups	Men	Women
Sec. of State Marshall	65%	74%	57%
Sec. of War Patterson	44	57	33
Sec. of Navy Forrestal	43	54	33
Sec. of Treasury Snyder	33	51	16
Sec. of Com. Harriman	11	17	6
Sec. of Interior Krug	31	40	22
Sec. Labor Schwellenbach	31	39	25
Sec. of Agric. Anderson	31	36	27
Attorney General Clark	39	49	30
Post. Gen. Hannegan	32	41	24

Education is an important factor in ability to give the names of Cabinet members correctly. For example, 89 per cent of the college educated could give the name of the Secretary of State as compared with only 29 per cent of the grade school educated; and 26 per cent with college educations named the Secretary of Commerce compared with 1 per cent of those with grade school educations.

Seventy-nine per cent of people from families with Government workers could name at least one Cabinet member correctly as compared with 61 per cent from other families without Government workers.

As for total scores, if you know the names of 10 Cabinet members you are doing better than 94 per cent of the people living hereabouts.

Twenty-eight per cent could not name a single Cabinet member correctly. Twenty-two per cent knew only one or two members. Fourteen per cent knew three or four members. Fourteen per cent knew five or six members. Eleven per cent knew seven or eight members. Five per cent knew nine members. Six per cent correctly named all 10 Cabinet members.

Greece Says 1000 Invade, Attack Town

Konitsa Reported Holding Out in 'Phase' of Guerilla Fight Near Albania

By L. S. Chakales

Athens, July 13 (AP).—The Greek government today said a force of more than 1000 men, moving and fighting as an organized army rather than as a guerilla band, crossed into Greece from Albania and attacked the town of Konitsa, six miles from the Albanian border.

"On Albanian territory near the frontier," said a communique issued by the Foreign Ministry's press office, "are large contingents, including parts of an international brigade."

A general staff spokesman termed the dawn attack a "desperate move" to relieve Greek guerilla forces on Mount Grammos, 20 miles to the north, where government troops and guerillas have been fighting a major battle for two weeks. The government has reported its operations on Grammos have been successful and that guerilla losses have been heavy.

200 Soldiers In Town

When the attack was launched, two companies of about 200 soldiers were defending the town of 2000. Air Minister Panayotis Kanellopoulos said the defenders still held the town tonight and that the government was sending reinforcements to Konitsa by air.

Kanellopoulos said the attacking force contained a large number of Elasites, members of the fighting arm of the leftist National Liberation Front (EAM), many of whom had left Greece. He added that a force of Chamourans, Moslems living along the Greek-Albanian frontier, were being held as reserve troops by the attackers.

The Chamourans frequently have accused the Greek government of persecution, while the Greeks charge the Chamourans collaborated with the Axis during World War II.

Some sources said the attack might be a forerunner to the proclamation of a Communist "provisional government" on Greek soil. The government's onslaught to wipe out Guerilla forces on Mount Grammos was said to have been ordered to forestall any possible Communist political coup.

Called Phase of Battle

The general staff spokesman said the attack definitely was to be regarded as a phase of the Mount Grammos battle and that the attackers had been infiltrating across the Albanian frontier for several days.

A cabinet member said the attackers were well armed and equipped, possessing heavy machine guns, automatic rifles and mortars.

Meanwhile, in Athens the Greek cabinet was called into an emergency session. Premier Demetrios Maximos said the Greek government would provide three planes for transportation if the United Nations Balkan Investigating subcommission wished to make a spot probe of the Konitsa attack.

Athens police and gendarmerie were mustered in full force as part of the extraordinary precau-

Navy Plans 2 Subs To Revolutionize Undersea Warfare

By The Associated Press

The Navy said yesterday it is preparing plans for two radically new submarines, expected to be the world's fastest and most revolutionary in undersea warfare.

These two new submarines, which will incorporate the latest learned from the Allies and captured enemy documents, will be named the USS Tang and USS Trigger, honoring two World War II undersea fighters.

The new submarines are scheduled for completion in 1951. Many devices will not be incorporated until that time to allow for continuing scientific developments.

Both will carry new weapons and more efficient sonar equipment for detection of other craft and icebergs.

To Be Presented Today

Brewster Has Bill to Give Ex-Presidents Senate Seats

By The Associated Press

Senator Brewster (R., Me.) said yesterday he would introduce a bill to make ex-Presidents of the United States Senators at Large.

They would be entitled to the rights and allowances of Senators, but they would not have a vote.

The bill, which Brewster said he would offer today, would entitle any ex-President to a seat in the Senate unless he had been impeached. Herbert Hoover is the only living ex-President.

The proposal is similar to one offered in the House for the last several years by Representative Canfield (R., N. J.).

"The United States is singular in its attitude toward its political leaders and statemen by virtually discarding them after they have occupied the highest office in the land," Brewster said in a statement.

"Were this practice to prevail in Great Britain, men of the caliber of Winston Churchill would have been forgotten as long as 25 years ago, with the result that England and possibly the world, too, might have been bereft of his dynamic leadership."

Canfield has contended that the move could be made by a simple congressional act. He has said that as long as the proposed Senators at large would not have a vote, a constitutional amendment would be unnecessary.

GOP Leaders And Truman Confer Today

Aid Funds, Special Session Believed Up for Discussion

By The Associated Press

Against the background of a widening rift between Russia and the Western world, President Truman and the high command of the Republican-dominated Congress will gather at the White House today to talk policy.

Here are the issues Capitol Hill expected them to talk over as Congress drives for adjournment two weeks hence:

1. Appropriations for foreign policy projects already authorized but unfinanced—among them the 400-million-dollar Greek-Turkish aid program, 350 million dollars for European relief, 725 million dollars sought by the Army for work in the occupation zones, and 73 million dollars for participation in the International Refugee Organization.

2. Plans for calling Congress back into session late this fall should such a step become necessary if and when the European nations—outside the Soviet bloc—get together on a plan for economic recovery involving American aid. Mr. Truman has said he will call a special session if necessary.

3. The Administration's demand for quick action—at best, a slim hope—on a measure calling for admission to this country of 400,000 of Europe's approximate 900,000 homeless war refugees over a four-year period.

Generally, both Administration and congressional leaders have pooh-poohed the probability of a special session this fall.

Significantly, in advance of the White House huddle today, Secretary of State Marshall met key congressional leaders last week in super-secret conferences to talk over the part Congress can play in carrying out American diplomatic policy.

This, in part, stemmed directly from his concern over threats within the House Appropriations

Europeans Prepared To Give U. S. List of Needs

Paris Conferees On Marshall Plan Repeat Welcome To Russian Bloc

By Joseph E. Dynan

Paris, July 13 (AP).—The European Economic Conference established machinery late today to implement the Marshall program for European recovery, and emphasized again that Russia and her satellites were welcome to participate.

The action came after spokesmen for the Scandinavian countries—Sweden, Norway and Denmark—all expressed opposition to any political implications of the aid Europe plan. They said their countries desired economic cooperation, but nothing more.

Claude Bouchinet-Serreulles of France was elected secretary general of the conference, which named British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin as its president at the opening session yesterday.

Committees Approved

The conference, in its second plenary session, adopted unanimously a rules committee report setting up a steering committee, an executive committee and four technical subcommittees to survey Europe's assets and define needs for United States assistance.

The steering committee will be composed of 16 members — one from each state attending.

The conference also decided to reserve places on the steering committee for "all other European states which declare themselves willing to participate in its work."

Herve Alphand of France, chairman of the rules committee, said in presenting his report that this would mean "the door will remain open to all European countries."

September 1 Target Date

On a motion by Sweden, the rules committee also inserted a clause providing that the new economic organization should maintain "close relations" with the United Nations and its specialized branches as well as with existing intergovernmental organizations.

The conference set September 1 as its target date for the submission to the American Government of a report on Europe's needs and resources for the next four years. The steering committee was directed to seek "the friendly assistance of the United States for the preparation of the report."

The steering committee also was instructed to request data on the assets and requirements of Germany from the four commanders in chief on the Allied Control Council for Germany.

Sovereignty Protected

Two other changes written into the conference rules during a noon session of the rules committee and later adopted by the plenary session provided that the organization to supervise recovery be a temporary one, and that it take no action "implying" any violation of sovereignty.

The original British-French draft merely prohibited "actions" which violated sovereignty.

Foreign Aid Funds Linked to Tax Cut

Some Senators Say Congress May Balk At Aid for Europe But None for Taxpayer

By Frederic Tuttle

International News Service Staff Writer

Influential Senate leaders predicted today that the Administration will face difficulty in obtaining funds to finance Secretary of State Marshall's European rehabilitation plan unless Congress can override President Truman's tax bill veto.

Key senators in both parties forecast that Congress will be loath to vote more billions for foreign aid if it is unable to afford relief for the American taxpayer.

They pointed out that Marshall has discussed his program twice during the last week at secret conferences on Capitol Hill.

First of these occurred Friday, when the Secretary appeared before a closed-door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Yesterday Marshall conferred with Speaker Martin, Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee and a select congressional group.

Says Voters Want Relief

Chairman Millikin (R., Colo.) of the Finance Committee, said the voters want some relief for their pocketbooks if additional funds are to be spent abroad, Millikin declared:

"There is quite a little opinion in Congress that the American people will not go on indefinitely spending their money for the relief of other nations without getting some tax relief themselves."

Senator George (D., Ga.), former Finance Committee chairman, shared Millikin's view. George said:

"There is considerable feeling among individual members of Congress that they can't go through with a big new program of foreign relief if they provide no relief for the taxpayers."

Capper Seeks Information

An Administration Senator suggested that members of Congress will "find it hard to stand up and vote" more foreign relief when the taxpayer "gets no relief at all."

At the same time, Senator Capper (R., Kans.), 82-year-old dean of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called upon the White House and Marshall "to give us more information" on the Marshall program, Capper asserted:

"I do not believe the people of the United States should be asked to support this proposal without being told what sacrifices it will entail, as well as what are the needs of the rest of the world."

Budget Savings Dwindle

By The Associated Press

Government officials said yesterday a steep rise in unbudgeted costs of foreign aid threatens to cancel out such of the domestic budget savings Congress is effecting. This is so, they said, without counting a cent for further foreign aid under the Marshall plan for "help to those foreign nations who help themselves."

To items of foreign aid already committed add 900 million dollars to costs not counted in President Truman's January budget, which called for spending $37,500,000,000. One, almost completely overlooked and beyond the reach of this Congress, is a 500-million-dollar increase over budget estimates in British loan spending.

(Although the $3,750,000,000 loan voted Britain a year ago was then expected to last at least three years, the British are now expected on both sides of the Atlantic to exhaust the entire sum before next summer.

Estimate Now Obsolete

(Britain, unrestricted as to spending speed, used $2,050,000,000 in the fiscal year just ended and is now expected to spend the remaining $1,700,000,000 by next spring, although the United States budget estimate for it, now obsolete, remains $1,200,000,000 for the next 12 months.)

The other item is the 400 million dollar aid program for Greece and Turkey which has been authorized by Congress although the money itself has not yet been appropriated. This program was not in sight when the budget was compiled.

Meanwhile, executive agency scorekeeping on completed and preliminary budget action by Congress to date shows prospective reductions—much lower than the Republicans in Congress claim—of about $1,200,000,000 apart from an 800 million dollars in appropriations for tax refunds that the Administration calls a "phony" reduction.

Even these reductions in domestic budget items are canceled out in part by other appropriations of Congress that were not foreseen in the budget.

Labor Bill Upped Costs

The latter include 74 million dollars voted for control of foot and mouth disease among cattle and about $6,500,000 to cover costs of administering two labor laws.

Some well-placed Democratic officials say unbudgeted additions to costs may in the end cancel all the cuts effected by Congress' economy drive. As one put it, after all the economizing Congress does, spending may be higher instead of lower than the $37,500,000,000 the President budgeted before Congress went into action.

On the other side of the developing budget picture, revenues give promise of soaring perhaps four billion dollars above the budget estimate of $38,800,000,00.

16 European Countries Ready To List Needs for Recovery

ference voted on its rules of procedure, Karl Ivan Westman, Sweden's envoy to Paris, said it was of utmost importance that the new organization fully respect the independence and sovereignty of member nations.

Eight Follow Suit

Russia had refused to participate in the conference on grounds that economic cooperation would constitute a threat to her sovereighty. Eight other eastern states in the Soviet sphere of influence followed suit.

Westman hailed modifications of the original British-French draft as "indispensable and fortunate," and expressed regret it had not been possible to unite all European nations at the conference table.

He emphasized that Sweden was ready to discuss only the problems in the text of the British-French invitation to the meeting—that is, only economic issues.

Norway's Delegate Seconds

Norwegian Delegate Arne Skaug seconded Westman, saying Norway would approve the rules committee's report only with the understanding the conference would have a chance later to debate issues of principle which were not within the committee's jurisdiction.

J. C. Wokruse, Danish Ambassador to Paris, backed up both the Swedish and Norwegian statements.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault intervened to point out that the rules committee's work was strictly technical, and said he hoped the three Scandinavian countries were satisfied by charges written into the original draft.

"The door is always open to other states," Bidault said.

Bevin, as presiding officer, then called for a vote and found no objections.

Tass Scoffs, Says Half Of 16 Did Not Aid Allies

Moscow, July 13 (AP).—A Tass dispatch from Paris scoffed today at the use of the word "European" to describe the conference on implementing the Marshall proposal and asserted that, of the 16 participating nations, only half fought against Hitlerite Germany."

The brief dispatch of the official news agency was the only notice paid to yesterday's opening of the Paris meeting in the Soviet press.

Izvestia, the official government newspaper, carried an article assailing "American economic penetration" of Sweden and asserting Sweden's economic interests were at odds with those of the United States, France and Britain. The newspaper expressed Soviet concern over what it termd "the attack of the American dollar on Sweden."

Tass mentioned the presence of Italy and Austria, who fought against the Allies," and neutral Turkey, Eire and Portugal. Turkey, said Tass, was a country which did not do so badly trading chrome and ores with Germany" while the Allies were at war with the Axis.

[According to International News Service, Russia was reported engaged today in fresh moves to institute a program of economic collaboration among the Soviet satellite states of eastern Europe which would rival the Marshall aid plan.

[Soviet leaders in Moscow were reported in a race with the Paris conference, drawing up a so-called "Molotov plan" for the eastern areas of the continent. The program was viewed as a Russian effort to pacify Slav states and provide them with alternative aid in return for boycotting the Paris parley.

[The Soviet alternative is seen as a series of bilateral pacts, already under way, with Russia acting as a clearing house to reroute necessities where they are required.]

[In London the Izvestia article, which was broadcast from Moscow, was interpreted as a Soviet admonition to Sweden that she had nothing to gain from participation in the Marshall plan.]

'Organize or Die,' Ramadier Tells Europe

Committee to cut and curtail funds for the foreign policy program. But it hardly could have avoided discussion of what will be needed to finance the Marshall plan for European rehabilitation.

So far at least, the Administration appeared to be waging a losing battle this session in its efforts to lower the immigration barriers for admission of some of Europe's displaced persons.

A House Judiciary subcommittee, considering the measure, has planned to continue hearings on the bill without a decision before the session's end, and then to journey to Europe for a first-hand inspection of the displaced persons camps and their occupants.

Over the White House meeting will hang an atmosphere of acrimony raised by the bitter dispute between the Democratic Administration and the Republican-controlled Congress on the Senate-pending four-billion-dollar tax reduction bill.

missing and began its investigation.

Von der Luft was interviewed at Princeton University, where he had resumed study after his discharge.

"A search of his room at the university resulted in the recovery of approximately 200 pages of handwritten notes and other documents marked 'secret' pertaining to the atomic bomb," the FBI said.

"In addition a folder was located in the family vault at Mount Lebanon containing confidential and highly restricted data pertaining to the development and construction of the atomic bomb."

Studio Yields Pictures

Turning to Wallis, the FBI said he was interviewed and his studio searched, disclosing about 200 photographs and negatives showing various phases of the bomb and test explosions. Numerous pictures and negatives were classified "top secret," the FBI said.

Asked whether the confidential information would have to be made public when the cases come up in court, the official said "that problem will have to be faced when we come to it."

Recent suggestions that unfound prints might have been made from the negatives were not taken seriously by Hickenlooper. He told a reporter the committee was satisfied on that point, also on the basis of representations by the FBI and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Hickenlooper's committee this week plans to conduct an inquiry into various published reports of possible leaks of atomic information.

Parents Express Confidence

Pittsburgh, July 13 (AP).—The parents of Alexander von der Luft, recovering from the initial shock of his arrest by FBI agents on charges of taking atomic bomb secrets, today expressed complete confidence their son would be vindicated.

The boy's father, Oscar von der Luft, manager of a Pittsburgh district chemical plant, added:

"We think Alexander is innocent—that he absolutely didn't do anything wrong except engage in a little souvenir hunting just like a lot of other soldiers."

Nothing to Worry About, aper Quotes Mrs. Wallis

Chicago, July 13 (AP).—The Chicago Tribune today quoted the wife of a former Army sergeant accused by the Government of taking atom bomb secrets as saying that the FBI had assured her husband that because he had been "so cooperative and so frank he had nothing to worry about."

The Tribune said that Mrs. Sylvia Wallis, 23, told Attorney Julius Schwartz who has been retained by Earnest D. Wallis, 34, Chicago photographer, that the assurance was given her husband last May by an FBI agent after Wallis had turned over to the Government a drawer-full of negatives.

Neither Mrs. Wallis nor Schwartz was available for comment on the Tribune story.

The story said the attorney quoted Wallis as saying that when he left Los Alamos prior to his discharge in March, 1946, he tossed into his luggage a "buch of duplicate negatives which he thought had outlived their value as secret records."

The newspaper account said Schwartz related that Wallis had told him many of the negatives already had been released for publication in newspapers and magazines and that Wallis thought some time in the future he might write a magazine article on his experiences and use some of the photographs to illustrate it.

The Tribune said that Schwartz quoted Wallis as saying that when he and Mrs. Wallis bought a photography studio in Chicago, the negatives were tossed into a drawer with other negatives and that he had not had the opportunity to sort and classify them when the FBI took the whole drawerful.

The FBI first questioned Wallis last April, Schwartz said in the story, and told Wallis he should not have the negatives, but took no other action.

McMahon Sees Atom Secrets Safer Now Than Under Army

By International News Service

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), author of the act which placed atomic energy control in the hands of a civilian-controlled commission, declared yesterday that A-bomb data is more secure now than when protected by the Army.

McMahon, a member of the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, noted that the alleged theft of top secret information from the Los Alamos, N. Mex., installation occurred three months before his bill became law and nine months before the civilian commission took over. He asserted:

"Security definitely has been tied down under the civilian commission. It's better now than it was under the Army."

McMahon's declaration followed the arrest of two former Army sergeants on charges of stealing top secret atomic information from the Los Alamos atomic energy plant.

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), joint committee chairman, declared his group is "constantly interested" in developing additional security measures to protect America's vital know-how on atomic energy. He stated:

"Security has always been a most important thing. The committee is constantly continuing its studies into security measures."

Complete Issue of Izvestia Put Into English First Time

By the United Press

With the State Department's approval, a nonofficial academic group has just finished the first English translation of a complete issue of the Soviet newspaper, Izvestia, it was revealed yesterday.

The project, sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies, is part of a plan to make selected Russian books and periodicals available to individuals, libraries, and educational institutions.

The idea, which is designed to remove some mysticism about modern Russia through books and periodicals, came from the American Embassy in Moscow a year ago. It was turned over to the council, since the State Department had no means to finance it.

The translators emphasize the work is not being carried on to promote "any foreign ideology." All material is selected carefully for its academic worth.

Scholars who handled the first translation of Izvestia believe that translations of other Soviet periodicals could appear in the United States within two weeks of the issue date in Moscow.

Copies are not available for general sale. Officials believe that large-scale reproduction of a Russian newspaper could be done for a yearly subscription of between $150 and $200.

The first copy just published here was printed in Moscow on March 13 during the Big Four Foreign Ministers' meeting. Nonconference news covered a story of the life of Premier Josef Stalin, articles on a welded blast furnace, announcement of awards to workers, discovery of an ancient manuscript in Armenia, reclamation work in Estonia, an editorial on "The Power of Competition," and the usual announcement of radio programs.

The back page carried an article on "Campaign Against the Communist Party in the U. S. A.," and another entitled "Talks Between Truman and Aleman."

The council has translated 20 selected Russian books into English and the first four will be published this fall by the MacMillan Co. Fifty books are to be translated and published under a Rockefeller grant at the rate of eight a year.

Henry Ford Picked As 'Man of the Year'

New York, July 13 (AP).—Henry Ford 2d, president of Ford Motor Co., has been named "Man of the Year" by the New York financial writers' association, Robert Denver, president, announced today.

The selection honored "the man in finance or industry who, in 1946, contributed most in advancing American economic ideals at home and abroad."

Bernard Baruch polled the second largest number of votes.

France Urged To Combat Red Menace

By The Associated Press

Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) told French Ambassador Henri Bonnet yesterday that he hoped France would match its efforts for world peace with "successful resistance to the menace of communism on the home front."

Wiley, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, wrote Bonnet in connection with the French Republic's celebration of Bastille Day today. He said that that historic occasion may find a "monumental" counterpart in the Paris conference on the Marshall Plan for economic aid to Europe.

Declaring that Americans have been "seriously disturbed by the alarming increase in political power of the Communists within your country," he told Bonnet:

"It is not for me, one American, to even consider telling someone in another land how they should run their internal affairs. May I, however, voice what I believe is the prayerful hope of the American people that heroic France may conquer the Red menace as well as other dictator threats to her hallowed freedom."

House to Issue New Red Book, Dirksen Says

By The Associated Press

Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) said yesterday that the House, before adjourning, would authorize a "documented" compilation of all the evidence on "communism in America."

The publication would be the third in a series of documents ordered by the House and prepared by the Library of Congress' legislative reference service.

The first was "Communism in Action," which was prepared at Dirksen's request and which has sold more than 400,000 copies. The second was "Fascism in Action," sponsored by Representative Patman (D., Tex.) and authorized only last week. Both deal with activities in other countries.

"The time has come to indicate the extent to which the communistic ideology has been transported to this country in order to subvert our own representative form of government," Dirksen told a reporter.

He said that the document, "Communism in America," should bundle up the findings of such groups as the Legislative Reference Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

At the same time, he said that every point should be supported by proof so as to leave "not the slightest doubt on how diligently the Communists are working to impose their ideology on the American people."

Independent Judge Advocate General's Department Urged

New York, July 13 (AP).—Urging a revision of the armed forces' judicial system so that it "can operate for impartiality and objectivity," the Association of the Bar of the City of New York advocated today the adoption of a House subcommittee's recommendation for an independent Judge Advocate General's office free from the chain of command.

The Bar Association's support of the recommendation was made in a letter from its special committee on military justice to Representative Andrews (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

Asserting that revision of the present system of military justice is necessary, the Bar Association group declared that "two reforms are essential in our judgment:

"1. Military justice must be free from the control of command.

"2. An independent Judge Advocate General's department must be created which has full responsibility for the administration of this independent judicial system within the service."

Chinese Claim Capture of Red Division

Nanking, China, July 13 (U.P.).—The Nationalist army newspaper reported today that Communist divisional commander Chiao Ming-li has surrended to the government in eastern Shansi Province with his entire division of more than 20,000 men.

General Chiao served under Gen. Kao Shuh-sun, former Nationalist commander who himself went over to the Communist side in December, 1945, the newspaper said.

Meanwhile, the semiofficial Central News Agency reported that "an important government official" has insisted that Chinese troops guard Chinese officials going into Port Arthur and Dairen to take over for the Nanking government.

The "official" called on Russia to change its attitude "or else everyone will consider the Soviet Union has no sincerity in observing the Chinese-Soviet treaty" under which China was to govern Darien alone and Port Arthur jointly with Russia.

The statement was in reply to yesterday's dispatch by Tass, official Soviet news agency, which denied that Russia was preventing Nationalist officials from taking over.

The news agency also reported that over 3000 troops of "a certain country" had marched north from Dairen and reached Ruhsin, also on the Peninsula, where they were building defenses. Another group of unidentified troops were moving toward Suiho, to the northeast, the dispatch said.

Air Cargo to Ask CAB To Allow 25 Pct. Cut

By The Associated Press

tionary measures set up in the capital.

Text of Communique

The text of the Foreign Ministry's communique:

"Greek bandits, including Albanians, invaded Greek territory from Albania this morning in the direction of Konitsa . . . Konitsa was surrounded. Konitsa is resisting. The invading force consists of more than 1000 men. According to accurate reports, on the Albanian territory near the frontier are large contingents, including parts of an international brigade.

"The same reports say the leadership of bands on Mounts Grammos, Khassia and Pierra are now on Albanian territory northwest of Konitsa. Concentrations of Chamourans near the Greek-Albanian frontier were noticed with the purpose, according to accurate reports, to occupy Thesprotia. Our forces have been moved rapidly and transported even by air to the front."

Thesprotia is an area in northern Greece opposite Corfu, along the Albanian frontier.

Term Not Explained

The communique did not explain what the ministry meant by an "international brigade."

Konitsa lies in the Saranta River Valley west of Mount Grammos, where a major battle between guerillas and the Greek army has been under way more than two weeks.

The information was that the brigade was composed largely of Albanian troops, probably dispatched to relieve the guerillas on Mount Grammos.

The Greek government asked the United Nations Balkan Subcommission in Salonika to make an immediate on-the-spot investigation.

Reinforcements were being rushed to Konitsa. Tanks and other mechanized units were reported rolling up from Yannina, and planes from the Yannina and Salonika air bases were reported in action.

Griswold Off For Athens

By the United Press

Dwight Griswold and members of his Greek aid mission staff took off for Athens yesterday in President Truman's new plane, the Independence.

The four-engine successor to the "Sacred Cow" also carried the body of Greek Ambassador Cimon P. Diamantopoulos, who died in New York several months ago.

The plane will stop at Frankfort, Germany, to pick up Mrs. Griswold before proceeding to Athens.

Besides giving Griswold a chance to take prompt personal charge of the economic aid program for Greece, the trip will be a "shakedown cruise" for the new aircraft, which recently broke an unofficial transcontinental speed record for transport planes.

The President will not begin using the Independence until it has been put through more than 100 hours of flying under various weather conditions.

Mr. Truman assigned his naval aide, Rear Admiral James Foskett, to the flight as his representative at ceremonies in connection with the return of the Greek Ambassador's body.

3 Air Force Bandsmen Wed In Bolling Field Triple Rites

It was "Operation Marriage" yesterday at Bolling Field.

For some 100 Army Air Force Band members, alerted for action in the post's simple white chapel, the assignment was a good deal.

Not once—or twice—but three times did they complete their mission. And all in less than 90 minutes.

First, they saw their oboe soloist, T/Sergt. Harry Fleig, 28, exchange those sacred vows with pretty Edythe Gebhardt, 21, of Alliance, Ohio.

The pews were packed and the altar banked with white gladioli.

That accomplished, the bandsmen sat at attention as Miss Eula Osborne, 20, arrayed in an eye-catching white satin wedding gown, took as her husband the band's tuba soloist, Staff Sergt. Antonio P. Zavarella, 27.

A five-piece string ensemble from the original band played "Return to Sorrento," as the couple walked down the aisle together.

Final ceremony on the docket—only triplicate marriage service on the post's record—united Warrant Officer (j.g.) Samuel Kurtz, 37, assistant band leader, and Miss Patricia Apgood, 28, of Parkman, Wyo.

Major George S. Howard, conductor of the band, was best man.

The three happy couples left the church together, through an arch of trombones and bass tubas.

to investigate. They found the wreck and called for help through a neighbor's shortwave radio.

Rescue parties were assembled and began to make their way through the marshland, flooded heavily by recent rains. Among the first to reach the scene were Dr. T. J. Kaminski and Dr. L. T. Pennington of the Brevard Hospital, Melbourne, and local Red Cross chapter chairman, Leon A. Merrow.

Merrow said rescuers found a submerged trail leading near the scene, and three trucks, motors roaring and with 10 men pushing each one, made semiamphibious passages to the wreck and brought the injured to the Brevard Hospital.

The trucks returned to the wreck and brought 21 bodies to the funeral home.

Melbourne is midway between Jacksonville and Miami on the East Coast of Florida.

The crash occurred near a canal, about six miles west of Melbourne and three miles from an emergency airport which the pilot may have been seeking in the darkness.

In order to reach the scene, rescuers had to travel nearly 20 miles, three of them through flooded countryside.

Rescuers tore apart some of the wreckage with their bare hands to lift out the injured.

To Probe Florida Crash

By the United Press

Chairman Owen Brewster (R., Me.) of a Senate Commerce Subcommittee on aviation, said yesterday that a committee agent would investigate the crash of a DC-3 airliner at Melbourne, Fla.

He said the investigator, Carl Dolan, would dig into the latest air tragedy after submitting a report on the crash of a United Airlines plane at LaGuardia Field, New York, last month. Dolan is supplying technical information for air safety legislation which the subcommittee is considering.

Brewster, who withheld comment for the time being on report that the Melbourne plane was "overloaded," said his group had determined that nonscheduled and foreign plane operators had "quite a different" accident record from that of scheduled airlines.

Negro S. C. Vote Victory Hailed

Richmond, Va., July 13 (AP).—The court victory won by South Carolina Negroes in their fight for the right to vote in the Democratic primary, today was hailed by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare as "a landmark in the South's struggle for honest democracy."

In a resolution passed at the last session of a two-day meeting here, the conference's board of representatives also expressed the hope that "other Southern States balanced now in controversy about voting legislation will abide by the spirit of the South Carolina decision."

GOP Will Try Income Tax Cut 3d Time, Says Sen. Millikin

Thursday, tagged with virtually a "carbon copy" of the first veto.

Changes Effective Date

The only difference in the new measure is in the effective date of the cuts. The first bill, on which the House sustained the veto June 16 by a two-vote margin, would have put the four-billion-dollar plan into effect last July 1. The new measure would delay it until next January 1.

As of now, the Democrats appear to have 31 members of their own party and two Republicans—Wayne L. Morse of Oregon and William Langer of North Dakota—lined up to sustain the veto. That is enough to kill the bill for the rest of this session.

The Republicans, assured of victory in the House, are putting up an optimistic front in the Senate. But most of them realize that only an unusual number of absences, plus a last-minute switch in several votes, can enable them to override Mr. Truman in that chamber.

Flanders Would Use Force on Russia

By The Associated Press

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) yesterday declared Russian should be "forced" to accept an amendment permitting her United Nations veto power to be overridden.

Flanders proposed that the U.N. Charter be changed to allow a three-fourths vote of the Assembly to offset a veto. The veto allows big powers to nullify important decisions.

proposition undoubtedly will receive a lot of voting strength in Congress, which is now lacking."

Senator George (D., Ga.) said he did not think such a highly controversial issue as universal training should be brought up at this time, when congressional adjournment is only two weeks away.

The House Armed Services Committee has completed hearings on the subject. However, Representative Short (R., Mo.) has demanded that the hearings be reopened. A subcommittee will vote today on his demand. Regardless of the vote, House leaders do not plan to bring the issue to the floor at this session.

Va. Attorney Hits Robertson Tax Bill Stand

Richmond, Va., July 13 (AP).—Martin A. Hutchinson criticized Senator Robertson's stand on the Republican tax bill yesterday and took occasion to wonder "just what kind of a man the Democratic Party would have to have as President . . . to be assured of the support of Virginia's Senators."

The Richmond attorney, who polled 80,000 votes in his unsuccessful bid to unseat Senator Byrd in the Democratic primary last year, considered an "indication" that Senator Roberston may support the Republican tax bill as "a great surprise to thousands of Virginia Democrats."

Hutchinson said he believed the tax should be kept as it is at least through 1948, with 10 cents on every dollar going toward reduction of the Nation's debt.

Senator Robertson said Friday that he favored "going down hill the same way we came up" and said there is "enough equity" in the bill sponsored by the Republican leadership to "justify voting for it" if the Senate refuses to "accept the type of bill I personally prefer."

The House-approved bill is similar to the original vetoed measure, but would take effect January 1 instead of July 1, 1947. It provides cuts ranging from 30 to 10½ per cent.

Senator Robertson said the net effect of the plan he prefers would be to give a larger percentage of aid to those in the low income brackets rather than to those in the top brackets. Hutchinson said he thought that that idea was sound and that he also favors it.

D. C. to Mark 157th Birthday Wednesday

AS A MATTER OF CONTRAST—As Washingtonians prepare to mark the 157th anniversary of the city Wednesday it may be well to take a glance at the old town as it looked in 1814. As you glance along Pennsylvania ave. from Capitol Hill the first thing that greets the eye is the famous Lombard poplars planted by Thomas Jefferson

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Washington, city and Capital, will celebrate its 157th birthday this Wednesday.

For it was on July 16, 1790, that George Washington, first President of the United States, signed a bill which put the District of Columbia on the map.

The bill established the "permanent seat of the Government of the United States" (Denverites who want the U. S. Capital please note) on a territory not to exceed 10 square miles on the River Potomac.

Capital Moved Often

But it was not until 1800 that the Government actually moved to Washington. Before Washington, the Nation's Capital site was, briefly, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Lancaster, York, Princeton, Annapolis, Trenton and New York, in all of which towns the Congress met.

By the time the Government actually moved to the District in 1800, Pierre L'Enfant's Plan of Washington had been drawn, setting up the grid system of streets, circles and avenues connecting principal places.

But the town was little better than a mudhole, and it was not until the middle 1800's that it really began to flourish.

To Washingtonians accustomed to the bursting-out-of-the-seams aspect of the present Capital, it may be a little difficult to realize that Blew Payne, (now Blue Plains) used to be way away from Jenkins Hill, where the Capitol now stands, and that most of the Georgetown area was known as the Vineyard tract.

Out of the mountains of words which have been written about Washington, probably those which strike the most sympathetic chord with its present residents are in the Encyclopedia Brittanica.

"The climate of Washington is characterized by frequent periods of high humidity, occasional periods of oppressive heat in summer and moderately mild winters."

Fur Trader Differs

Back in the days when the District of Columbia had not yet been chosen as the Capital site, however, the climate hereabouts was described by one fur trader (who obviously did not tarry long) as follows:

"The place is without question the most healthful and pleasant in all this country and most convenient for habitation; the air temperate in the summer and not violent in the winter."

But despite the aspersions which most people are ready to cast at the local air, there seems to be general agreement that Washington really is a beautiful city and a fitting Capital.

So happy birthday, Washington.

tions over world politics and labor-management relations."

Wiley said he believed members of the Capitol police force should be better and more modernly equipped, both mentally and psychologically, to handle such situations. He suggested an "overhaul" of the "whole situation" by the FBI.

Edward F. McGinnis, Senate Sergeant-at-Arms and chairman of the Capitol Police Board, said he will discuss with other board members this week steps which may be taken to afford additional protection to Congressmen. He said that more men are needed to guard the five buildings on Capitol Hill. Now on the force are 142 men, working three shifts, and the force is not at full strength because of illness, McGinnis said.

Grain Union Prepares For Strike in Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., July 13 (AP).—This Nation's largest flour milling center was braced today for its second tie-up within two months as an AFL Grain Processors Union announced it would "definitely strike" tomorrow at plants of General Mills, Inc., and Pillsbury Flour Mill Co.

Stanley J. Bauer, business agent of Local 21021, said conferences yesterday and today brought no agreement on union demands, including a 15 per cent wage increase.

Lewis Held Likely to Seek Post as President of AFL

By Harold W. Ward
Associated Press Staff Writer

John L. Lewis' negotiation of new record contracts in the coal industry increased speculation yesterday that he may now set out to head the American Federation of Labor.

Lewis is a member of the AFL's powerful 15-man executive council which would play a large part in selecting the successor to President William Green, if he decides to retire.

The council meets in Chicago for 10 days beginning September 8 in preparation for the annual AFL convention in San Francisco beginning October 6. The convention will do the electing, guided to a considerable degree by the attitude of council members.

Green, 74, has headed the AFL since 1924. A former secretary-treasurer of the Lewis' United Mine Workers, Green was Lewis' choice for the presidency at that time, and since Lewis' return to the AFL in January, 1946, the two have been as close as peas in a pod.

Lewis, 67, could turn over the leadership of the UMW to Vice President John O'Leary, Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy or A. D. (Denny) Lewis, the mine chief's brother.

Many persons in AFL and CIO labor unions believe Lewis cherishes the ambition to head the AFL before he steps out of the labor limelight. He brought about the great split in labor in 1935 with the founding of the CIO, but eventually he drifted away from the CIO and effected a reconcillation with the old line union leaders of the AFL.

Now, if he wished to make a fight for the top spot, some AFL officials think he could probably get enough votes on the executive council to make it.

Army Helicopter, World's Largest, Passes First Test

By the United Press

The Army Air Forces announced yesterday that the world's largest helicopter, the Kellett XR-10, has completed its first test flight successfully at the Kellett North Wales, Pa., plant.

It is designed to carry 10 passengers in addition to the pilot and co-pilot. In an emergency it can carry six wounded troops on litters or a cargo of 2000 pounds.

The AAF estimated the plane has a maximum speed of more than 100 miles per hour and a cruising speed of 90 miles per hour with a range of almost 350 miles.

A new feature is a hatch opening in the fuselage with a hoist and harness for picking up or lowering men or cargo while the plane is hovering.

It is the first twin-engine transport type helicopter. It was designed for supplying and servicing troops in inaccessible areas. It is powered by two 525 horsepower motors.

Atkinson's Death Is Ruled Suicide

District Coroner Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday issued a certificate of death by suicide in the hanging of Bernard F. Atkinson, 42, a salesman, of 4812 3d st. nw.

Atkinson was found late Saturday night suspended from the neck by a rope attached to upper lattice work of a partition between his apartment kitchen and dinette. His mother, Mrs. Lillian E. Atkinson, told police he was "highly nervous and distraught" and "complained he hadn't been sleeping well."

Ten Uninjured In C-47 Plane Crash

Berlin, July 13 (AP).—Ten Americans aboard a C-47 Army transport which crash landed yesterday in the Russian occupation zone when an engine caught fire were back in Berlin today, uninjured.

Four of the occupants parachuted before the pilot, Capt. Walter Berger of Wingate, N. C., landed the plane near Sangerhausen, in Thuringia. Among them was Mrs. Herbert Schiller, 21, wife of a military government employe and formerly of New York City.

Two other women passengers, Mrs. H. J. Thorkelson, formerly of New York City, and Miss Dorothy Stell, military government secretary from Milwaukee, Wis., remained in the plane until it landed.

Calcutta Has Quiet Day, Only Twelve Wounded

Calcutta, India, July 13 (U.P.).—Twelve persons were wounded today in half a dozen minor clashes on the quietest day since Hindu-Moslem riots started.

It was estimated that clashes throughout India had caused 217 deaths and brought injuries to 910 persons since June 3, when Indian leaders accepted British independence plans.

80 Million Deal Between Bulgaria, Soviet, Reported

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 13 (AP).—Vice Premier Triacho Kostov, who recently returned from Moscow, said last night that the Bulgarian Ministerial Council had approved an 87-million-dollar trade agreement with Russia covering 1947-48 imports and exports.

Bulgaria's chief imports from Russia are cotton, rubber, railway cars, automobiles, trucks and tractors, spare parts, machinery and medicines.

Twenty thousand tons of tobacco valued at 36 million dollars will repreesnt more than 88 per cent of Bulgaria's exports to Russia.

The Soviets also are crediting Bulgaria with five billion dollars, payable over several years.

[According to the United Press in Berlin, Soviet authorities announced today that they had concluded a trade agreement with Switzerland covering trade between the Soviet zone and Switzerland.]

Rebel Will Ask Independence For Morocco

Lake Success, N. Y., July 13 (U.P.).—Abd-El-Krim, fantastic rebel of Morocco and "Lion of the Atlas," will appear before the United Nations General Assembly in September with a personal appeal for independence for the 7,500,000 people of French and Spanish Morocco, Arab sources said tonight.

Abd-El-Krim's plans to reenter the fight for Moroccan independence after a 21-year exile were disclosed just as a new committee of Moroccan political parties notified U. N. headquarters that a formal demand for the end of French and Spanish rule there will be sent to the Assembly "soon."

The move to break the colonial hold over the northwestern corner of Africa has come on the heels of Egypt's appeal for U. N. action to oust Britain from its 60-year-old foothold in the valley of the Nile.

Charge Mass Arrests

In a letter to U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie the Moroccan Committee, with headquarters in New York, charged Spanish authorities had made "mass arrests" throughout their zone of Morocco in the past week to suppress criticism of a new "puppet" government there.

The letter accused France of imposing a false set of reforms on French Morocco in an attempt to put down pressure for independence and to cover up "an iron hand that the world thought was destroyed when Hitlerism was destroyed."

The man who will come here in the fall to argue the Moroccan case before the 55-nation General Assembly is a desert chieftain whose story-book exploits have inspired the Arabs of all North Africa to ever-increasing enmity toward colonial rule.

Now in Alexandria

Abd-el-Krim now is in Alexandria, Egypt, where he went after jumping a France-bound ship last May as he was being taken to the French Riviera from lonely Reunion Island in the Indian Ocean, where he spent most of the 21-year exile imposed on him by France. He was sent there for leading the Riffs in the Moroccan rebellion of the early 1920s.

Now 67 years old, white-bearded and lame from an old war injury, Abd-el-Krim has tremendous influence among the Arabs of Morocco.

The Moroccan appeal to the U.N. will complete a cycle of events which has brought the whole Arab world before the U.N. in one case or other. All the Arabs are involved deeply in the Palestine case, which will come to a head in the fall Assembly meeting when the U.N. Palestine Inquiry Commission recommends solutions for the Holy Land problem.

German POWs Can Make Love to, Marry British Girls

London, July 13 (U.P.).—Some 275,000 German prisoners of war still in Britain will be allowed this week to carry pocket money, attend movies, eat in public restaurants and make love to British girls.

The prisoners also will be eligible to marry British girls, although some problems, such as citizenship, still have to be worked out.

Each prisoner will be permitted to spend about 95 cents a week. The only restrictions remaining in force make him wear the conventional POW uniform and return to his barbed wire enclosure by 10 p. m.

Reds Attack Modernizing of Ruhr Mines

Berlin, July 13 (U.P.).—American and British plans to spend 300-million-dollars in modernizing the Ruhr coal mines were described today by the Russian-sponsored Socialist (Communist) Unity Party as disguised United States capitalist aggression against Germany's "independence."

The Socialist Unity and presumably Russian view was expressed by an editorial in Neues Deutschland, the newspaper of the Socialist Unity Party.

"The Ruhr miner knows that a dollar loan would be a fait accompli before the peace treaty is signed," it said. "To hand the Ruhr coal mines to monopoly capitalists would mean preventing the political and economic possibilities of Germany's democratic reconstruction."

This attack on the proposed loan was regarded as especially important because of the Paris conference on the Marshall plan. The Russians seem to take the attitude that they do not oppose Germany's recovery in principle, but oppose the integration of the industrial potential into Western Europe, completely without Russian participation or control.

The British and American agreement raising the level of industrial production in their combined zones may be ready by Wednesday. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the British deputy military governor, have reached agreement on all essential matters.

Those Saucers Reported in China, France

By The Associated Press

Flying saucers, once a peculiarly American phenomenon, are getting about more these days.

The Chinese Central News Agency reported today from Mukden, Manchuria, that a man saw 80 of the discs in one hour on the night of July 10. It quoted the man as saying the objects were about one foot in diameter, milk-colored, tinted blue, and were flying in a southerly direction.

A resident of Le Mans, France, reported that on Saturday morning he saw two "strangely shaped things" which he thought were flying saucers, the newspaper Parisien Libere said.

He was quoted as saying the things "were flying noiselessly westwards" at a height of about 2500 feet and were of a "greenish-gray color."

Detective Capt. J. L. King of the Amarillo (Tex.) police force, said a metal apparatus, found afire in an alley, following an explosion, had been identified as equipment from the wing of an Army plane. Many residents felt a flying disc had come to earth when the object, containing a mass of wires and electrical apparatus, was found, the Amarillo Globe-News reported.

Armenian Faith Healer Says He'll Cure Californian

Madera, Calif., July 13 (U.P.).—Avak, the 20-year-old mystic and faith healer, promised today that he could cure wealthy Vaughan Arakelian within four weeks—now that the rest of the world's lame and halt could not interrupt his contemplations.

The Arakelian family, with wealth pouring in from world-wide sales of California wines, brought the dark-haired mystic to California from his native Armenia to cure 37-year-old Vaughan, given up as a hopeless epileptic since a childhood injury.

Eddie Arakelian, a brother, said the mystic stopped treatments begun several weeks ago because Vaughan was in too great pain from a metal plate inserted in his shoulder some time ago.

On Tuesday, that metal plate is scheduled to be removed by surgery in Los Angeles, after which Avak plans to resume his treatments.

Royal Couple Now Palace Hunting

London, July 13 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth and her fiance, Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, were hunting for a palace of their own today, but the housing shortage may force them to move in with his in-laws, who have more than 100 rooms in Buckingham Palace.

The royal couple faced the same problem of less illustrious Britons, but on a somewhat different scale. The 21-year-old heiress presumptive to the throne must maintain a certain standard and there are few town residences available for that purpose.

Elizabeth and Philip already have selected their country place. They will lease Sunninghill, a 25-room mansion in a 770-acre park near the castle at Windsor.

The royal lovers are weekending with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at Windsor, where Elizabeth has asked British dressmakers such as Norman Hartnell, the Queen's favorite, and Captain Molyneux, of Paris fame, to submit designs for her trousseau within the next two weeks.

THE CHARACTER OF NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN EGYPT AND GREAT BRITAIN

In our time, there is no man in the world who can afford to ignore the struggle of any people for genuine unconditional freedom. The world has learned the hard way that a threat to liberty, regardless where it exists, implies a definite danger to global peace.

That is why the man in Wichita, Kansas, is directly concerned in what takes place in Greece, India, Egypt or any other remote area of the globe. That is why the Anglo-Egyptian dispute, climaxing sixty-five years of fighting, arguing, talking and bargaining, is now referred to the United Nations; in other words, placed before world public opinion.

On November 24, 1924, the British High Commissioner in Egypt, General Lord Allenby, marched to the Egyptian Parliament at the head of a full regiment of British cavalry. While his lancers completely blocked the entrance to the building, where at that moment the Egyptian deputies were assembled, Allenby handed an ultimatum to the Prime Minister of Egypt. It said, in substance—"Hands off the Sudan from now on."

On Februray 4, 1942, the British Ambassador to Egypt, Lord Killearn, drove through the main gate of the Abdin Royal Palace in Cairo, preceding a detachment of British tanks. He presented King Farouk with an ultimatum, again in substance—"Appoint the Cabinet suggested by Great Britain, or else."

Both actions, the British explained, were motivated by imperative emergency created, in 1924, by the murder of Sir Lee Stack, Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Egypt and Governor General of the Sudan; in 1942, by the threat of Hitler's armies, which were dangerously close to Egypt's western frontier.

Nevertheless, these two incidents, seventeen years apart, throw a significant light on the real nature of Anglo-Egyptian relations. While Britain calls these relations "free negotiations between sovereign nations," Egypt sees nothing "free" about them.

Egypt today demands freedom and complete sovereignty. Britain pretends to the world that both have been granted, yet continues to demand of Egypt prerogatives and privileges which, she says, are essential to the existence of her Empire.

THE FACTS ACCORDING TO HISTORY

For the last sixty-five years, Britain has maintained a military grip on the Nile Valley. She first occupied Egypt in 1882. Later that year a religious revolt spread across part of the Sudan, giving Britain an opportunity to extend her grip far south along the Nile River and deep into Africa.

The reconquest of the Sudan required 17 years and was undertaken as a joint Anglo-Egyptian operation. The famous British General, Lord Kitchener, commanded an army comprised mainly of Egyptian soldiers and officers which finally succeeded in ending the revolt. Egyptian blood and money reopened the Sudan to civilization in the name of the Khedive (or ruler) of Egypt. Naturally, during the long campaign, Britain professed to be a friend and ally of occupied Egypt, with no ulterior motive of her own.

But in London, once the campaign had ended, British statesmen were not slow to recognize a major political opportunity. With the northern part of the Nile Valley (Egypt) under British control, why not also the southern part (the Sudan)? Both parts depended for their existence on the life-giving Nile River. Whoever controlled the waters of the Upper Nile obviously could, if they so willed, control Egypt.

The dependency of Egypt on the Nile has not lessened in 5000 years. The intensive agricultural production so vital to Egypt relies on an intricate system of irrigation, perfected through centuries of effort. The system is based entirely on a well-regulated flow of Nile water. Should the course of the Nile be diverted or damage occur to the dams and reservoirs built along the 3,870-mile-long river, Egypt would be drought-ridden or ravaged by floods. The Nile flows through Sudanese territory for more than 2,370 miles, from the heart of Africa to the southern Egyptian border.

Great Britain knew the strategic value of her entrenchment along the Upper Nile. As soon as she had succeeded in occupying the Sudan as well as Egypt, her next problem was to try to legalize this occupation and at the same time attempt to convince the Egyptian and Sudanese peoples that she was in the Nile Valley in the role of protector. She devised, and compelled Egypt to accept, a document which became known as the 1899 Agreement. This so-called agreement provided for a joint Anglo-Egyptian administration in the Sudan. At the same time, the British tried to effect a physical separation of the Sudan from Egypt by fixing the Egyptian southern frontier along the 22nd parallel. In her occupied state, Egypt was in no position to reject the British terms or debate the legality of the agreement.

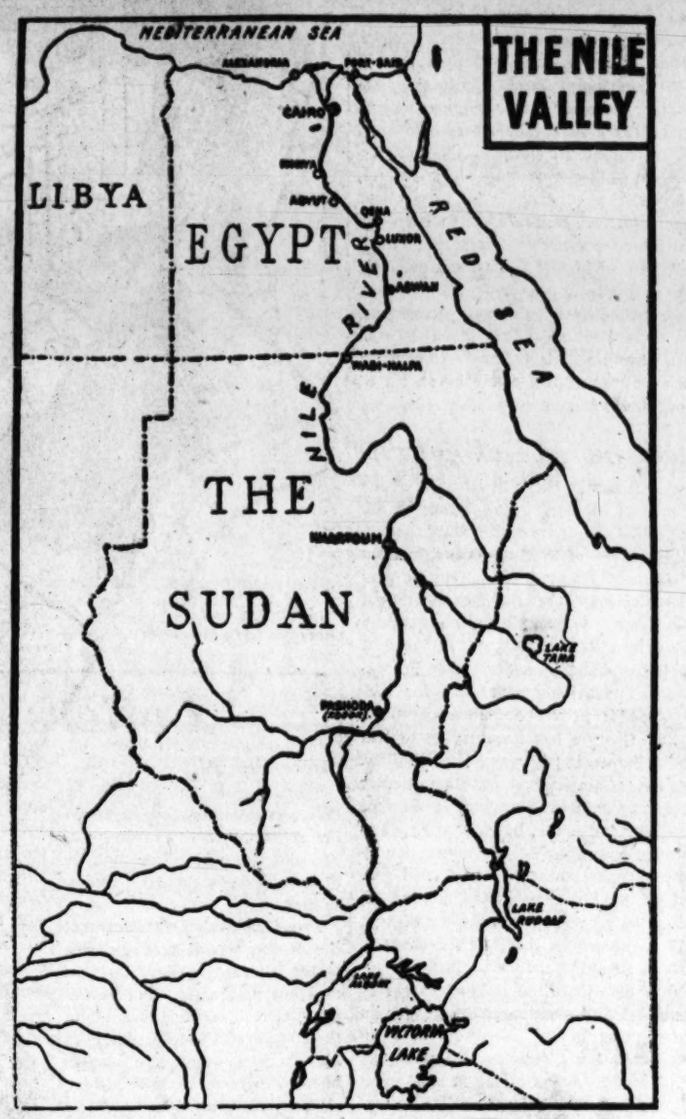
The fate of the whole Nile Valley was, indeed, in British hands.

Egypt waited until after the Armistice of 1918 to make her first official bid for complete independence. All these years Egypt was a British protectorate with, of course, only a minor participation in the administration of the Sudan.

In his book, "Egypt," published in London in 1927, the famous British author, George Young, states: "When the Armistice came it found Egypt prepared by counsel with a strong case for independence, built up on the principles of peace as laid down by President Wilson and on the promises made by ourselves to neighboring nations, whose war services and stage of civilization gave them less claim to our consideration than had Egypt. No sooner was the Armistice signed than Saad Zaghloul Pasha, at the head of a deputation representative of all (Egyptian) points of view, asked the (British) High Commissioner, Sir Reginald Wingate, for leave to submit Egypt's case in London. This request, although recommended by the High Commissioner, was curtly rejected by the Foreign Office. Zaghloul's reply was carefully reasoned and quite reasonable; and reconsideration of the refusal was urged by Wingate, whose exceptional experience in Egypt showed him the mistake that was being made. But this, too, was refused."

Mr. Young continues: "In attempting to treat Egypt as though it were an Ireland rather than an India, our foreign policy made a mistake. A mistake, too, not only in those new regions of democracy where it has so far always been blind, but in that ancient realm of diplomacy where it has less excuse for blundering. Thus it was a 'democratic' mistake not to see that the contemptuous cold shoulder that was no doubt intended to put Zaghloul and his followers in their place, would be taken by Egypt as an insult to the nation as a whole."

The refusal of the British Foreign Office then even to listen to Egypt's case for independence did insult and infuriate the Egyptian people. Unrest spread rapidly throughout the country and the Egyptian Cabinet collapsed a few days after formation. Discontent grew to outbreaks of violence and Britain found herself faced with a revolution.



The British arrested four Egyptian leaders and deported them to Malta. They were Saad Zaghloul Pasha, Mohammed Mahmoud Pasha, Ismail Sidky Pasha and Hamad el Bassel Pasha. The Egyptian people proceeded to evidence their feeling against British domination in a manner that impressed even the British diplomats in far-off London. But repression of the revolt by force, of the type resorted to elsewhere in the last century, was not in the British interest here. Many Europeans lived in Egypt, whose presence as witnesses could not be ignored. British action in Egypt needed a semblance of legality and at the same time, it was important to create the impression that Britain was maintaining order and protecting foreign interests.

Yet, in the House of Commons, Mr. Balfour chose this moment to declare that: "British supremacy exists in Egypt. British supremacy is going to be maintained. Let no one in Egypt or out of Egypt make any mistake on that cardinal principle." These were not words calculated to calm the Egyptian people.

At long last, on December 10, 1919, a British Mission, presided over by Lord Milner, was sent to Egypt to inquire into the causes of the recent disorders and to report on the existing situation in the country. The British Mission was directed to draw up a possible constitution which, under the protectorate, would be best calculated to promote peace and prosperity, insure the progressive development of self-governing institutions, and at the same time protect foreign interests.

Meanwhile, Zaghloul Pasha and his associates were released. They left Malta for Paris, in the hope of obtaining from the Peace Conference what Britain persistently had denied Egypt thus far—freedom.

The Paris conference provided independence and sovereignty for Saudi Arabia and autonomy for Syria. Armenia and Georgia were made independent republics, but Egypt's status was unchanged.

Lord Milner's investigation resulted in a much delayed note, in 1921, which invited the Egyptian Sultan to appoint a delegation whose duty it would be to recommend a substitute for the existing British protectorate over Egypt. The British insisted that any new arrangement must insure the special interests of Great Britain and enable her to offer adequate guarantees to foreign powers, while meeting the legitimate aspirations of Egypt and the Egyptian people.

In other words, Britain offered independence subject to restrictions on Egyptian sovereignty.

No mention was made in the British offer to the question of occupation of Egypt by British troops. Nor was there any mention of the historical unity of Egypt and the Sudan. The British note also disregarded the unfair practice of the Capitulation Privileges. The Capitulation Privileges granted fifteen foreign powers' citizens living in Egypt, among other concessions, immunity from personal taxation without assent of their governments, inviolability of domicile and protection from arbitrary arrest, and exemption from the jurisdiction of the local courts.

Egyptians could not accept such an offer. A storm of protest swept the country. Once again, Zaghloul Pasha—who now had gained the stature of a national hero—and other leaders were arrested and exiled.

Only when conditions in Egypt reached a dangerously explosive state did Britain finally consent to move decisively in recognition of Egypt's claim. Lord Allenby hastened from London to Cairo with a declaration released on February 28, 1922, which, according to the British, made Egypt "an independent sovereign state." The British clearly stated their position in the declaration which said that "certain matters were absolutely reserved to the discretion of His Majesty's Government until such time as it may be possible, by free discussion and friendly accommodation on both sides, to conclude agreements in regard thereto between His Majesty's Government and the Government of Egypt."

These matters were:

"a. The security of communications of the British Empire in Egypt;

"b. The defense of Egypt against all foreign aggression or interference, direct or indirect;

"c. The protection of foreign interests in Egypt and the protection of minorities;

"d. The Sudan.

"Pending the conclusion of such agreements, the status quo in all these matters shall remain intact."

These restrictive clauses were tantamount to Britain retaining the right to interfere, at any time, in Egypt's internal affairs. Britain first used that so-called right in ordering deletion from the new Egyptian constitution of the phrase "King of Egypt and the Sudan," allowing only the designation "King of Egypt."

The Sudan, however, was ever uppermost in the minds of Britain's diplomats. Even though Britain held Egypt in her grip as firmly as ever, she knew that the time would come when that paradoxical situation would need a clearcut clarification. For that crisis Britain wanted to be prepared. As part of her preparation, Britain planned to keep the Sudan apart from Egypt, and under British control.

The long awaited chance to deal with the Sudan issue presented itself in 1924. The "Sirdar," or Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Egypt and Governor General of the Sudan, Sir Lee Stack, was assassinated in Cairo. Britain lost no time in capitalizing the incident. She demanded, among other usual compensations and apologies—"the withdrawal from the Sudan within 24 hours of all Egyptian officers and purely Egyptian units of the Egyptian Army."

The British resorted to force, when the Egyptian cabinet rejected the ultimatum, which flagrantly violated the 1899 Agreement and other accords. The British occupied the Alexandria customs and by this move controlled the economic strength of Egypt.

Once more, Egypt was forced to bow to British might. Thus, Britain was again assured of her control of the Nile Valley. Egypt's independence was a mere illusion—from Alexandria to Khartoum, the British reigned supreme.

Still Egyptians did not give up their struggle. Again negotiations were started with Britain, who, while protesting her good will, did not deviate from her position on the key issue—the Sudan.

Status quo and delay was, and still is, entirely to the advantage of Britain.

The 1936 Treaty, and the subsequent abolition of the Capitulation Privileges, apparently consolidated Egypt's independence. But in fact, by that pact Egypt's occupation by British troops was prolonged for twenty more years and the Sudan question was left in abeyance.

The following statement from the book, "The Egyptian Enigma," by J. E. Marshall, illustrates Britain's view on the question:

"With regard to the Sudan, it may be said that the Sudan is Egypt and Egypt the Sudan. The one complements the other and they both must be under one control, and that control, in the interest of the world's peace, must be British."

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

THE BRITISH ATTITUDE HAS NOT CHANGED

Thirty years ago Britain announced her intention of "preparing Egypt for self-rule." Today she is still bargaining on evacuation of her troops. British soldiers have moved out of Cairo and Alexandria, but they still garrison the Suez Canal Zone.

"We shall evacuate completely in 1949, provided you sign a new treaty of alliance," said Britain during the latest negotiations.

As a condition of that new treaty, Britain proposes to pave the way for secession of the Sudan from Egypt.

Last year when negotiations for revision of the 1936 treaty were started, Egypt made clear that she desired a definite and permanent solution of the Sudan question.

Egypt added that she wanted British recognition of her right to Unity with the Sudan.

This right, consistently fought by Great Britain, is undeniable in the face of historical, geographical, economic, religious and cultural ties which have linked Egypt with the Sudan for centuries.

The latest negotiations dragged on for ten months and failed when the British persisted in their policy of occupation and control of the Sudan, on the outworn 1899 basis. Britain gave as her ostensible reason for wanting to stay there that her present colonial-type rule could best help prepare the Sudanese for self-government.

The Sudanese and Egyptians are blood-tied citizens of a common valley. Is it unreasonable that Egypt should feel better qualified than alien Britain to help the Sudanese to eventual self-government? Egypt has not the slightest desire to "colonize" the Sudan. She wants the Sudanese people to enjoy their full freedom. No such freedom will be possible as long as the British persist in remaining in the Nile Valley.

It cannot be denied that Egypt's participation in the Sudan administration is virtually non-existent. And surely, we repeat, there can be no question of either the Egyptians OR the Sudanese expressing their will freely, with British troops still in a position to control both ends of the Nile.

The Cry of the Sudanese and Egyptian People Is for Unity of the Nile Valley. This Cry Cannot Be Stilled.

The United Nations Organization soon will determine the validity and justice of Egypt's case, in all its aspects, against Great Britain. The people of the Nile Valley await the final verdict with complete confidence.

Those Saucers Reported in China, France

By The Associated Press

Flying saucers, once a peculiarly American phenomenon, are getting about more these days.

The Chinese Central News Agency reported today from Mukden, Manchuria, that a man saw 80 of the discs in one hour on the night of July 10. It quoted the man as saying the objects were about one foot in diameter, milk-colored, tinted blue, and were flying in a southerly direction.

A resident of Le Mans, France, reported that on Saturday morning he saw two "strangely shaped things" which he thought were flying saucers, the newspaper Parisien Libere said.

He was quoted as saying the things "were flying noiselessly westwards" at a height of about 2500 feet and were of a "greenish-gray color."

Detective Capt. J. L. King of the Amarillo (Tex.) police force, said a metal apparatus, found afire in an alley, following an explosion, had been identified as equipment from the wing of an Army plane. Many residents felt a flying disc had come to earth when the object, containing a mass of wires and electrical apparatus, was found, the Amarillo Globe-News reported.

Armenian Faith Healer Says He'll Cure Californian

Madera, Calif., July 13 (U.P.).—Avak, the 20-year-old mystic and faith healer, promised today that he could cure wealthy Vaughan Arakelian within four weeks—now that the rest of the world's lame and halt could not interrupt his contemplations.

The Arakelian family, with wealth pouring in from world-wide sales of California wines, brought the dark-haired mystic to California from his native Armenia to cure 37-year-old Vaughan, given up as a hopeless epileptic since a childhood injury.

Eddie Arakelian, a brother, said the mystic stopped treatments begun several weeks ago because Vaughan was in too great pain from a metal plate inserted in his shoulder some time ago.

On Tuesday, that metal plate is scheduled to be removed by surgery in Los Angeles, after which Avak plans to resume his treatments.

Royal Couple Now Palace Hunting

London, July 13 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth and her fiance, Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, were hunting for a palace of their own today, but the housing shortage may force them to move in with his in-laws, who have more than 100 rooms in Buckingham Palace.

The royal couple faced the same problem of less illustrious Britons, but on a somewhat different scale. The 21-year-old heiress presumptive to the throne must maintain a certain standard and there are few town residences available for that purpose.

Elizabeth and Philip already have selected their country place. They will lease Sunninghill, a 25-room mansion in a 770-acre park near the castle at Windsor.

The royal lovers are weekending with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at Windsor, where Elizabeth has asked British dressmakers such as Norman Hartnell, the Queen's favorite, and Captain Molyneux, of Paris fame, to submit designs for her trousseau within the next two weeks.

Once more, Egypt was forced to bow to British might. Thus, Britain was again assured of her control of the Nile Valley. Egypt's independence was a mere illusion—from Alexandria to Khartoum, the British reigned supreme.

Still Egyptians did not give up their struggle. Again negotiations were started with Britain, who, while protesting her good will, did not deviate from her position on the key issue—the Sudan.

Status quo and delay was, and still is, entirely to the advantage of Britain.

The 1936 Treaty, and the subsequent abolition of the Capitulation Privileges, apparently consolidated Egypt's independence. But in fact, by that pact Egypt's occupation by British troops was prolonged for twenty more years and the Sudan question was left in abeyance.

The following statement from the book, "The Egyptian Enigma," by J. E. Marshall, illustrates Britain's view on the question:

"With regard to the Sudan, it may be said that the Sudan is Egypt and Egypt the Sudan. The one complements the other and they both must be under one control, and that control, in the interest of the world's peace, must be British."

THE BRITISH ATTITUDE HAS NOT CHANGED

Thirty years ago Britain announced her intention of "preparing Egypt for self-rule." Today she is still bargaining on evacuation of her troops. British soldiers have moved out of Cairo and Alexandria, but they still garrison the Suez Canal Zone.

"We shall evacuate completely in 1949, provided you sign a new treaty of alliance," said Britain during the latest negotiations.

As a condition of that new treaty, Britain proposes to pave the way for secession of the Sudan from Egypt.

Last year when negotiations for revision of the 1936 treaty were started, Egypt made clear that she desired a definite and permanent solution of the Sudan question.

Egypt added that she wanted British recognition of her right to Unity with the Sudan.

This right, consistently fought by Great Britain, is undeniable in the face of historical, geographical, economic, religious and cultural ties which have linked Egypt with the Sudan for centuries.

The latest negotiations dragged on for ten months and failed when the British persisted in their policy of occupation and control of the Sudan, on the outworn 1899 basis. Britain gave as her ostensible reason for wanting to stay there that her present colonial-type rule could best help prepare the Sudanese for self-government.

The Sudanese and Egyptians are blood-tied citizens of a common valley. Is it unreasonable that Egypt should feel better qualified than alien Britain to help the Sudanese to eventual self-government? Egypt has not the slightest desire to "colonize" the Sudan. She wants the Sudanese people to enjoy their full freedom. No such freedom will be possible as long as the British persist in remaining in the Nile Valley.

It cannot be denied that Egypt's participation in the Sudan administration is virtually non-existent. And surely, we repeat, there can be no question of either the Egyptians OR the Sudanese expressing their will freely, with British troops still in a position to control both ends of the Nile.

The Cry of the Sudanese and Egyptian People Is for Unity of the Nile Valley. This Cry Cannot Be Stilled.

The United Nations Organization soon will determine the validity and justice of Egypt's case, in all its aspects, against Great Britain. The people of the Nile Valley await the final verdict with complete confidence.

Attack On Mr. Bricker

There are a number of fantastic aspects to the attack on Senator Bricker. It was no shoot-and-run affair, as most assaults of this character are. To be sure, the Senator escaped his assailant by catching the one-rail subway car that shuttles between the Senate Office Building and the Capitol. But William L. Kaiser, who is said to have confessed to firing twice at Mr. Bricker, neither ran away nor attempted to follow his intended victim. The operator of the subway car says that when he returned from his run to the Capitol he found Kaiser leaning against the wall, with the pistol still in his hand.

Apparently the shots had disturbed no member of the Capitol Police force. Instead of calling the police, the operator of the subway car told Kaiser to "take the gun and get out of here." To say the least, the incident suggests that members of Congress have inadequate protection from gunmen or cranks who may loiter in the Capitol and its subsidiary buildings intent upon violence. And that suggestion is heavily underscored when we note that the alleged assailant himself was a member of the Capitol Police force until last April. The unvarnished fact is that the Capitol does not have a police force worthy of the name but only a miscellaneous assortment of patronage hunters assigned to police work.

Nearly every man on the Capitol Police force owes his position to patronage. The Republicans have effected a thorough housecleaning since they came into power last January, as the Democrats did in 1933. The new force has been built up, as was its predecessor, with a minimum of regard for the applicants' qualifications and full emphasis upon taking care of So-and-So. Frequently these jobs go to aged and incapacitated men in defiance of the rules. Indeed, the saying around the Capitol is that the only test made before adding to the force an applicant with a patronage o. k. is to determine whether he can still move and whether his body is still warm. If so, he promptly becomes a Capitol policeman.

The attack upon Senator Bricker by a disgruntled former policeman who had served on the force by virtue of former Senator Huffman's patronage should make clear to our legislators the dangers to which they are exposing themselves. The Capitol needs a police system of high competence and responsibility. Such a force can never be built on patronage. Must some Senator be actually shot down and not just harried by powder and lead before the incompetence and wastefulness of the present system will be acknowledged?

Dominating Austria

If Russia's General Kurasov managed to keep a straight face while accusing the United States of a direct attack on Austria's independence, he is a man of histrionic talents which Hollywood can scarcely afford to ignore. We gasp at the gall and are yet compelled to admire such virtuosity. It is like a man caught rifling a safe, who turns with perfect aplomb and berates the owner for entering the room without knocking.

As long ago as 1943, the Russian, British and American chiefs of state, meeting at Moscow, declared that "they wish to see re-established a free and independent Austria." The defeated country was held to be liberated, and the four-power occupation was intended to carry out the Moscow pledge. But the Russians, maintaining a huge army on the produce of Austrian farms in the sector they occupied, laid claim to virtually all the vital industries of Austria on the pretext that they were external German assets claimable as reparations. Only the resolution and ingenuity of Gen. Mark Clark prevented the complete engorgement of the Austrian economy by the Soviet Union. And it was precisely this Russian insistence upon seizing control of key Austrian industries which prevented agreement upon a peace treaty with Austria at the recent Moscow Foreign Ministers' meeting.

The Russians occupy the breadbasket of Austria and have persistently refused to let food be shipped from it into the other zones of occupation. The United States, which had the experience of seeing the relief it sent Austria under UNRRA used for the benefit of those who were milking the Austrian economy, has insisted upon supervising distribution of the 100-million-dollar aid program it has now promised so as to be sure that Austrians will be the sole beneficiaries. It is this that General Kurasov has characterized as an attack on Austria's independence.

One must not, however, yield to the temptation to rate the Soviet charge as the ultimate in effrontery. The Russians have already rivaled this by protesting against the American decision to ease the cost of occupation for Austria by purchasing with dollars all the Austrian schillings required to pay for the maintenance of our forces—in effect a gift. The Russians obtain the schillings they need by the simple expedient of printing them—and thus undermining the Austrian currency. This conforms, apparently, to their concept of freedom.

Refugees As Workers

Those who read the interesting communication from Sir Frederick Morgan which appeared opposite this page last Tuesday must have been struck, as we were, by his challenging reference to "the apparent contrast between the respective scales of effort that have been put out by the United States of America and by Great Britain toward the solution of what is popularly known as the displaced persons problem." Sir Frederick paid tribute to the "great sympathy" and the "typically generous" contribution of this country toward relief in general "expressed in terms of dollars." He thinks, however, that "the back of the relief problem . . . was broken some time ago. But to this problem, there succeeds that no less urgent of what one may term rehabilitation or resettlement."

It is in respect of this latter problem, which he defines as "a matter of finding new homes, indeed new lives, not only for individual men, women and children but for family groups or even larger groupings," that the contrast between Britain and the United States seems really striking. The British have for some time been not merely accepting refugees as immigrants but welcoming and indeed even actually seeking them. The influx has been as high as 4000 a week and at an average rate of about 1000 a week. Acknowledging that some of these immigrants "are being found employment in trades and occupations that cannot for the moment be filled by British labor," he observes with pride that "they are being received, not as slaves, not as inferiors in any way, but as human beings just as entitled as are any of us to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

The fact that Britain is in the most urgent need of manpower makes the situation there quite different, of course, from our own. Nevertheless, the welcome accorded the refugees in Britain constitutes an impressive rebuttal of the contention so often heard over here that the DPs are "riffraff" who would become public charges. They are of the same stock that built the railroads and highways of America in the days of our greatest expansion, of the same stock as the men who now mine our coal and smelt our steel and man our ships. As President Truman noted in his message to Congress the other day, "These displaced persons are hardy and resourceful or they would not have survived . . . Their occupational background clearly indicates that they can quickly become useful members of our American communities."

Although this country does not now have Britain's immediate and urgent need for additional labor, it is clear, as the President observed, "that we could readily absorb the relatively small number of these displaced persons who would be admitted." They would be consumers as well as producers, their needs would promote employment while their labor would help to fill the needs of others. That they constitute no threat to the security of American workmen is attested by the wholehearted support which William Green and Philip Murray have given to the Stratton bill.

The British do not appear to be worried about their politics, nor need we be. These are tested fighters against totalitarianism. They have a spiritual as well as physical kinship with our ancestors, since they are refugees from oppression and persecution. They seek, to repeat the immortal phrase employed by Sir Frederick, only "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." And these human rights it is the function of the United States to protect.

Sugar Quotas

After several days of debate the House voted last week to reenact, with certain important changes, the Sugar Act of 1937, which expires at the end of this year. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson urged Congress some time ago to provide for a possible increase in the Cuban sugar quota on a permanent basis; the bill just passed is the answer to his appeal. The beet sugar lobby is said to have been very active behind the scenes in helping to shape this complicated measure. Hearings have been hurried and have received almost no publicity. Consequently the people of this country have been left in dense ignorance of the character and purpose of a bill that profoundly affects the domestic sugar industry as well as the consumers of sugar, and has a most important bearing on our relations with Cuba.

A good many provisions of the bill are unacceptable to some of the rival interests affected, as was to be expected, but the quota provisions are fairly well balanced, although they favor the domestic beet-sugar group. Moreover, quite generous provision has been made for Cuba by providing that any deficit in the sugar quota allotted the Philippines shall be assigned to her, except for a negligible percentage. The House Committee on Agriculture stated that the Philippine deficits would probably be substantial during the next few years. Hence, it explained, "permitting Cuba to supply the principal portion of the Philippine deficit at a time when its production is at an all-time high, will, in effect, substantially continue the pattern established during the war and enable Cuba to gradually adjust its production downward to a sound level, with a minimum of economic disruption."

Although Cuba is given a better deal as a reward for her valuable contributions to the war effort in relieving sugar shortages and her cooperation with our Government in selling sugar on noncommercial terms for allocation among our allies, Congress did not consider itself under any obligation to consult the Cubans about our postwar plans. On the contrary, the House Committee on Agriculture indicated that Cuba would be expected during the next few years to reduce her output of sugar—expanded during the war—at our urging. Furthermore, the committee declared that the bill should not be construed "as establishing a permanent production and distribution pattern, nor as waiving American producers' rights to such portions of the American market as they can supply at the conclusion of the five-year period covered by the bill." Since American production is encouraged by subsidies, it would be interesting to know whether the committee had in mind the amount of sugar that Americans could produce in the absence of subsidies.

Although the Administration is preaching the doctrine of freer trade to other nations, this restrictive sugar bill, erroneously described as a short-time measure to meet postwar adjustment problems, has the indorsement of the Department of Agriculture, the Department of State and the Department of the Interior. It would fasten upon the country for the next five years a comprehensive system of import quotas, and domestic quotas dating from prewar depression years, but suspended during the war. This seems to us to be a situation that should be controlled by an international commodity agreement rather than solely by an act of our own Congress.

It Happened In Georgia

Mass jail breaks occur in all parts of the country and convicts trying to escape are often killed or wounded. But the attempted escape of 27 Negro convicts from a prison near Brunswick, Ga., resulting in the death or wounding of 13 Negroes cannot be dismissed as just another planned escape followed by swift retribution. In the first place it happened in a State that has acquired an unenviable reputation for mistreatment of its prison population—a reputation that Georgia has been trying to live down by improving her penal institutions. There are certain features of this particular case, moreover, indicating that it was not an ordinary jail break, but a panicky stampede of prisoners facing punishment for allegedly refusing to work on a road job. Whether the warden was intoxicated, whether the guards opened fire with intent to kill are questions that call for answers. Clearly a searching impartial probe is required to determine the original causes of the outbreak and place responsibility for its tragic outcome.

A coroner's investigation of the shootings at which five members of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People were present has already been held and a grand jury investigation is scheduled to begin this week. Here is proof, if proof were needed, that Negroes, even those who are social outcasts, are no longer without strong defenders to see that their rights are respected in a State where racial prejudices are strong and the political machinery for maintenance of law and order conspicuously defective.

Progress toward the goal of equal justice under the law is slow, but it does appear that progress is being made. Striking evidence of public awareness of the problem is afforded by the widespread publicity given to these Georgia shootings and the insistence upon a thoroughgoing investigation. When the facts are known, Georgia will be answerable to an aroused public demand for justice on the basis of those findings regardless of where the onus may fall.

Coal Contract

After all that has been said about the great concessions wrung from the coal operators by John L. Lewis, it is rather startling to hear that the wage increases follow the pattern set by other industries earlier in the year. However, the $1.20 per day increase in take-home pay obtained by the UMW applies to a five-day week, with the daily working time reduced from 9 to 8 hours. Other industries got rid of this extra ninth hour a year ago, and employers had to pay for the reduction by compensating increases in daily wage rates. The coal operators were accordingly faced by the necessity of belatedly following this example and at the same time matching the 15-cents-an-hour boost that other unions have succeeded in getting.

The operators succeeded in getting rid of the so-called bonus days for which they have been paying time and a half on Saturdays and double time on Sundays. This may prove to be a substantial saving, for miners frequently knocked off work during the week in order to work Saturday and Sunday and thus get extra pay. It appears, therefore, that the cost of the wage increases will not be as burdensome as many had supposed. In any case, the operators have succeeded in keeping the mines going; and in view of the hazards and hardship of the miner's life the new scale of wages is not unreasonably high. We simply have to recognize the fact that few workers are able or willing to enter this occupation so long as other means of earning a living are open to them.

To what extent the increased costs of the wage concessions will be reflected in a rise of coal, steel, or other prices we would not venture to guess. In any event, the chief danger lies in the possibility that the mine wage settlement will be a signal for another round of price and wage increases that would set off a new inflationary movement. If that can be avoided the price of maintaining industrial peace in the coal industry is none too high. For, as Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corp., said in commenting on the agreement, "a coal strike at this time would have paralyzed the industry of the entire country and might also have had an adverse effect upon the international situation."

Counterpoint Of Love

"THE MIND AND HEART OF LOVE," by M. C. D'Arcy, S. J. (Holt, $3.50.)

Here we have a learned and rather profound excursion into psychology, undertaken with great sensitivity and wit, and presented to the reader in a lucid and agreeable if somewhat prolix idiom. The subject, as you perceive, is one which has engaged the interest of more writers and readers than all other subjects put together; but what Father D'Arcy is concerned with is the problem of self-regarding and of self-effacing love; of love as possession or desire of possession and of love as sacrifice and surrender. In resolving it, as he does, more or less in favor of both he finds implicit answers to some of the philosophies which seem to have an especial attraction for the contemporary mind, among them communism, fascism, quietism, psychoanalysis and existentialism. But apart from all this, it has a curious literary interest, not so much because of its many allusions and questions, or its interpretations of many celebrated myths, as in its effort to draw into the problem the old question of classicism and romanticism.

To distinguish the two kinds of love Father D'Arcy employs the Greek names Eros and Agape, following a fashion set by the Swiss writer Denis de Rougemont and another named Anders Nygren. Agape of course is love, or charity, in the specially Christian sense; for Nygren Eros means pagan intellectualism but for Rougemont it means a kind of death-wish engendered by the ancient mystery religions and later by neo-platonism and by various gnostic and Manichean cults. Thus for Nygren Eros is rational, for Rougemont irrational; they are alike, however, in placing it in opposition to Christianity. On historical, psychological and theological grounds Father D'Arcy rejects both these interpretations, though neither perhaps in toto. He holds that both self-love and sacrificial-love are necessary to the spiritual health of the human being, and that "to neglect either is to court death." Where the personality is wholly self-centered "a monstrous egotism follows, but as the self is now living on its own conceit, without external nourishment, the inflation is followed by a collapse, a period of melancholia and death." But where the self is abandoned to ecstatic love, "it moves like a moth to the candle, or passively, like the musk rose, it gives forth a stronger perfume in the dark to entice the robber visitant of the night."

In his preface Father D'Arcy says that he had intended to call his book The Lion and the Unicorn, respective symbols of the love which is "leonine and lordly" and asserts itself in pride and self-respect and honor and of the love which is "ready for self-sacrifice." But elsewhere he translates these symbols to the more familiar symbols of Zurich psychology. The lion becomes the animus, or male principle of the personality, that part of it which is active, egoistic rational and classical. The unicorn becomes the anima, passive, sacrificial, imaginative and romantic. Ideally, then, human nature is the harmony of these opposites, working together "as positive and negative, dominant and recessive, masculine and feminine . . . They fill up each other's wants and in the rise and fall and positive and negative rhythm of their interplay they keep the self from lapsing into one opposite or extreme. The imagination supplements the reason and renders it flexible, the desires prevent the mind from losing itself in abstractions and so in personalizing itself, and the unselfish love checks the egocentric and gives itself dignity and cohesion." But the ideal harmony of animus and anima is destroyed by original sin. "Since the Fall the egocentric and ecstatic impulses have refused to bear with one another and each has gone a-whoring. European history is full of strange episodes, of mad fits, of great and petty tyrannies, of superstitions and crepuscular loves and orgies of passion."

The history of thought, therefore, may be interpreted as "a to-and-fro movement between egoism and antipersonal philosophies." This oscillation is reflected in the political sphere by the alterating emphasis of individual liberties and social security, in literature by classicism and romance, in religion by moralism and mysticism. The important thing is that the two shall not be separated, for as long as animus and anima remain "on speaking terms we can enjoy the small quarrels." And yet at their extremes of separation the two loves come close to meeting. "The reason is that what Freud tries to describe by calling them the instincts of life and death, work in a less obvious way in human experience even when the higher faculties seem to be wholly engaged . . . Many a noble passage can be culled from the pages of Fichte and his philosophic friends. But not so long after, the high note had grown sharp and fierce and had become a call to arms and violence. A superman stepped onto the stage and then a race of supermen."

The highest form of natural love is to be found in friendship, a matter of giving and taking, since "we give what we are and receive from the other." But "the fine point of personality must remain untouched. We share but in part, and we are left lonely. It is at the poignant moments when we realize this that we are most tempted to do a forbidden thing—to hand ourselves over utterly and go into the dark that we may be fused with the other. Many a time we have seen this temptation and the disasters which follow on total surrender." Only in the supernatural love of the soul and God in the "heavenly Agape" is complete abandonment safe. But even there the self and the intellect remain, "for it is God who loves them and gives them both increase."

Succession Bill

The succession bill just voted by Congress violates the spirit, if not the actual letter of the Constitution and also contains possibilities of some embarrassing legal technicalities.

The Constitution provides that the House "shall have the sole power of impeachment," and the new law puts a premium on impeachment under conditions where the all-powerful Speaker, and even his own party, would have a selfish interest in removing a President.

The Constitution guards against a somewhat similar injustice by providing that "The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside: And no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two thirds of the members present."

Another clause of the Constitution might cause embarrassment. It provides: "No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments thereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office."

Speaker Martin has been a member of Congress since March 4, 1925 and Senator Vandenburg has served continuously since March 31, 1928. The compensation of the President has been increased during this period. The phrase "during the time for which he was elected" would probably be interpreted as during his present term of office. Yet the Constitution is not specific on this point. Furthermore, as a Senator serves for six years, if the Senate should vote an increase in the compensation or emoluments of the President, a Senator might be disqualified to succeed to the Presidency, at least for a period of two or possibly four years.

The pertinent clause of the Constitution says: "The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services, a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them."

Although the Constitution provides that the Vice President shall serve as President of the Senate, the whole spirit of our organic law seems to be to prevent members of Congress from acting in any way as executive officers of the Government. Yet the bill which is likely to be enacted into law makes the Speaker of the House, in fact if not in name, the acting Vice President of the United States. CHARLES J. FOX.

Religion In The Schools

After reading Mr. MacIntyre's letter of July 8 on "Religion in the Schools," I cannot resist writing a rebuttal to his arguments presented in opposition to such a program.

May I present a plan which I had the privilege of helping to inaugurate into the public schools of Webster Groves, Mo., some years back? On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, the child had the privilege of going to the church of his choice for the first hour class, which was from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m. There were nine Protestant classes held in three of the larger Protestant churches nearest the school. The Catholics went to their own church for their classes as did also the Christian Scientists and Lutherans. The Protestant classes were taught by the Protestant ministers and a couple of former teachers with religious training and teaching experience in Bible study. The other denominations chose their own teachers as carefully. The teachers were not paid.

The eighth, ninth and tenth grades were chosen to take this training voluntarily. However, a few parents who objected to exposing their children to Bible study were permitted to send their children to the study hall for an extra hour of study. The course adopted was pretty generally accepted by all the churches. The eighth grade studied the life and teachings of Jesus and the Epistles of Paul. The ninth grade studied the history of the Old Testament which synchronized pretty well with their course in ancient history. The tenth grade studied the relation between the Bible and the present day history, literature and poetry.

The Bible remains one of the best sellers ever written. Why should we deprive our children of the power and peace to be found in its great truths?

AVC and Wallace

The Post of July 8 reports A. A. Berle, a Liberal Party official, in an anti-Wallace statement. He stated that the American Veterans Committee would support his position. This is presumptuous of Mr. Berle, to say the least.

We resent the efforts of any and all political parties to attempt to run AVC or attempt to speak for it. This certainly and emphatically applies to the Liberal Party. Further, for the record, it should be noted that on Henry Wallace's recent Nation-wide tour AVC was one of his most frequent sponsors.

"The Disinherited"

Thank you for your splendid editorial of July 8 on the DP bill. It was gratifying also to read of the President's stand on this issue. Is there something we can do to arouse our Senators and Representatives to the speedy passing of this bill?

How can we pretend to live up to our democratic principles and deny admission to these people? They are the kind of people on which our country was built. We have become surfeited with all the good things in America. How quick we are to criticize; how slow to speak a word of appreciation. These people would be a fresh blood transfusion into our democracy.

And they would make no mean citizens! Skilled artisans they are, and professional people. They are people who know what it means to have to earn a living, and who are glad for the opportunity to do so. I was grateful to pick up a labor paper last week and read that at least in one section of the country, labor, is for the admission of these DPs.

"Hope for Hawaii"

Your excellent editorial of July 6, "Hope for Hawaii," is sincerely appreciated by the people of Hawaii.

After passage of Hawaii's statehood bill in the House of Representatives on June 30, the national press, in its characteristic style, has rallied once again to the support of Hawaii's 50-year struggle to obtain statehood. It is hoped that the press generally will continue to support Hawaii's statehood. H. R. 49, Hawaii's statehood bill, is now awaiting action by the Senate. Public opinion seems to indicate that the Senate will act favorably.

Defense Of Bulgaria

On June 23 your paper published a letter by Mr. G. M. Dimitroff, entitled "Soviet Interference in Bulgaria." This article contained so many libels and grave untruths regarding Bulgaria and her Prime Minister, that I, as a Bulgarian citizen, consider it my duty to protest.

The author of the letter in question accuses Premier Dimitrov of "conspiratorial activity" in the past. This past activity which the author terms "conspiratorial" was aimed exclusively against fascism, and it was not long afterward that all of progressive humanity was drawn into this struggle in World War II. Georgi Dimitrov's manly defense at the Leipzig trial is an unforgettable event in the history of progressive humanity.

The petty attacks directed against Premier Dimitrov will certainly not diminish his greatness in the minds of those who know the true facts. For example, the Prime Minister is charged with the "liquidation" of 50,000 Bulgarian citizens. This, of course, does not correspond to the truth. This alleged "liquidation" no doubt refers to the conviction, after due process of law, of some 2000 Fascists, of whom only a relative number were sentenced to death. Is it for these Fascists that the author is grieving? Was not the law against fascism created by the government at the time when Mr. G. M. Dimitroff's fellow party member, Mr. Nikola Petkoff, participated as a responsible minister?

The letter in question represents Bulgaria as a colony of the Soviet Union. Beyond the official dependence which binds Bulgaria and the USSR through the armistice agreement, the natural love which the Bulgarian people feel toward their liberator, and the ties brought about by linguistic, cultural and geographical affinities, no dependence exists in our country.

Bulgaria is very proud of her cultural and political independence and is struggling to emerge from the economic collapse inherited from her Fascist rulers. The government, so balefully calumniated by Mr. G. M. Dimitroff, waged war against Germany, a war that was a severe strain on the people; this government freed the country from the monarchy in a bloodless way, drew up a new constitution, stemmed off the threat of a major inflation, annulled legislation discriminating against Jews and other minorities, and is now struggling with the consequences of two consecutive droughts.

The Bulgarian people have a special affection for the United States and great admiration for the creative abilities and the technical achievements of the Americans. They do not understand why some circles here have such an inimical attitude toward them, and they want all necessary steps to be taken for the creation of friendly cultural and economic ties. Our people do not ever lose hope that these attitudes on their part will soon be understood and reciprocated. N. MEVORAH.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Answer Is Yes

A GREAT NATIONAL DEBATE, of the deepest historic significance, is clearly looming ahead as to whether Secretary of State George C. Marshall's words at Harvard are to be backed by American money and American goods. The debate will be heated, and with November, 1948, on the horizon, it is sure to have intense political overtones. The central question of the debate will certainly be: "Can we afford it?" It is worth pointing out that, at least as far as money is concerned, the answer is quite evidently "yes."

This answer is founded on unofficial but reliable estimates. The figures on which these estimates are based are simple enough.

The total Government income for the last fiscal year, ending June 30, was something over 43 billion dollars. Last January President Truman submitted to Congress an estimated budget for the present year of over 37 billion dollars. The Congress is now hard at work trying to reduce this sum. Even if not a penny is cut, the estimated outgo would still be nearly six billion dollars below last year's income. If Congress pares off as much as three billion, the difference between last year's income and this year's outgo will then be almost nine billion dollars.

THE LEVEL of employment and of business activity (contrary to the gloomy crystal ball gazing of the economists) is now higher than it was during the last fiscal year. The highest estimate thus far made of the total cost during any one year of the Marshall program is six billion dollars. Thus, assuming that the Government's slice of the national income during the present fiscal year is as high as it has been during the year just ended, it is obvious that there will be more than enough surplus in the Government kitty to finance America's part in the plan.

Two very large strings must of course be firmly attached to that statement.

The first is the qualification that the United States must suffer no economic depression, nor even a fairly mild recession, during the coming year. For even a moderate drop in the present great level of national income would knock all estimates galley-west. But here, curiously enough, in the view of reliable economic forecasters, something like the opposite of the all too familiar vicious circle will tend to come into operation. If the Marshall proposal had not been made, the enormous volume of American exports would have begun to fall off sharply in the next few weeks or months. The European countries which are now running out of dollars would have been forced, regardless of consequences, to hoard their last few million against a sudden emergency. The resulting plunge in the American export level would have made inevitable at the very least a distinctly painful recession.

However, with the European response to the Marshall proposal getting under way, the European leaders will certainly be inclined to take a chance.

Faced with desperate internal economic situations, they will undoubtedly gamble that the American Congress will choose to back Marshall up. Thus the American level of exports will hold up, while the Europeans scrape the bottoms of their dollar barrels. And this in turn enormously reduces the likelihood of a serious recession in the near future, and makes it probable that the United States will have the money available to play its part in the Marshall proposal. Thus is the happy circle neatly completed.

THE SECOND STRING which must be tied to any expectation of a large surplus for financing European reconstruction is, of course, taxes. The President has announced his intention of vetoing the tax cut bill now going through the congressional mill. But it is very far from certain that his veto will be upheld. The tax cut measure, if passed over the veto, will of course cut into the estimated velvet in next year's budgetary kitty. Even with a tax cut, however, since it would not begin to operate until January 1, there is a fair chance that the Government could finance the Marshall program without going to the money lenders.

What all this adds up to is that, in terms of dollars and cents, this country can well afford the effort which must be made to put dying Europe back on its feet. No sensible estimate, of course, can be made entirely in dollars and cents. Money has meaning only in terms of the things it can buy. Yet despite inflation, despite high taxes, despite the housing mess, the plain fact is that this country is living better in terms of things to buy than it or any other country has ever lived before. And no informed person believes that this happy state of affairs will long continue if Europe is allowed to descend into a political and economic chaos which will profit only the Soviets.

Finally, of course, there is politics. As the presidential year approaches, the temptation will be enormous for both sides to use for political advances what will surely be the paramount issue of the times. Yet politics and all, this country has always squeaked through in the pinches. When Secretary Marshall made his speech at Harvard he was taking a calculated risk that it would do so again.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Use Of The Presidential Veto

IT SHOULD have surprised no one, least of all the Republicans in Congress, when President Truman announced he would veto the tax bill which he once before sent back without his approval. Except that the tax reduction would begin January 1, 1947, instead of July 1 of this year, the new bill is a carbon copy of the earlier version.

Childs

In his original veto message, the President stressed the fact that the bill would give much more relief to the wealthy taxpayer than to the man in the low income brackets. In his second veto message, he will repeat this objection, possibly using the same language he employed before.

The list of vetoes is growing. And there are more to come. If the House follows the lead of the Senate and passes the Reed-Bulwinkle bill giving the railroads virtual exemption from the antitrust laws, that measure also will draw a veto.

The men around the President put great stress on the strongly phrased messages Mr. Truman sent to Congress rejecting the labor and the tax bills. They consider these documents and those still to come as drawing the line between the whole approach to government of the Republicans on the one hand and the Democrats on the other. They mark the line of cleavage that in 1948 will be the line of battle between Mr. Truman and his Republican opponent.

IN DRAWING the line, the President has a definite handicap. That is the fact that a number of members of his own party are to be found on the opposite side of the line, voting against him.

Among this number are most of the Southern Democrats in the House and the Senate. On the issue of the second tax veto, many of them will vote to override the leader of their party in the White House.

Nevertheless, the belief of party managers on the Hill is that the Senate will uphold the veto. By current count, 34 to 35 Senators will vote to sustain the President. That will be a margin of 3 or 4 over the necessary one third.

There is no guarantee behind this number. Great pressure is being put on certain Senators to go along with the congressional majorities.

One vote the Democrats will have this time that they did not have when the presidential veto on the labor bill was overridden. That is the vote of Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah, who is due back from Europe about the time the White House receives the tax bill.

Thomas, attending a conference in Geneva, Switzerland, was the center of a comedy of misunderstanding over the labor veto. In a series of trans-Atlantic telephone talks with party leaders in Washington, he debated whether he should fly back to resolve the issue with his vote. A private plane was held for him at a Paris airport until it was finally agreed that one vote could not save the day.

Just before the Senate voted to override the labor bill veto, Senator Robert A. Taft summed up for the Republicans who were responsible for the measure. He challenged the concept of the veto, citing the example of Thomas Jefferson, who, according to the Senator from Ohio, never used it.

THIS WAS saying in effect that Mr. Truman, after November 5 of last year, should have abdicated his powers. He should have been willing to put himself in a political deep freeze for two years, or until the inevitable passage of time should bring a Republican President to match the Republican Congress.

That is asking too much of any man. Of course, this warfare between the executive and legislative branches is silly and time-wasting, productive only of confusion at a time when the United States needs, above all else, unity of direction before the world.

But the divide that gives rise to this warfare will not be cured by advising the President to put his own views on ice. Herbert Hoover, when he was trapped in the same situation, was not willing to accept the views of the Democratic majority in the House. Why not, since the two branches are divided, ask the Congress to refrain from passing any controversial legislation? Why not suspend all Government for two years.

No, the cure lies deeper. It lies in the kind of constitutional amendment introduced by Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, which would mean simultaneous election of Senate, House and President. But very few people seem to be thinking in those terms.

An Interrupted Dream

By Mark Sullivan

Russia And The Hope Of 'One World'

FOR REASONS which are understandable, our heads of Government refrain from speaking about our relations with Russia as starkly as the facts are. This official restraint prevents our people from fully grasping the attitude of the Russian government, and the breach into two worlds which it harshly emphasized last week. Understanding of the condition is imperative, for it puts our people under the necessity of changing their thinking about one world.

Our Government, acting in the interest of cooperation for world recovery, proposed that the countries of Europe get together for mutual self-help toward economic recovery. We said that after the European countries had done this, we would help—contribute funds, food, machinery, every sort of aid.

The proposal, called the "Marshall Plan," was hailed by Britain and France, but Russian Foreign Minister Molotov warned them against the plan, tried to intimidate them. They went on, nevertheless, invited 22 European governments to a conference at Paris. Sexteen of the governments accepted and the conference is now in session. Eight governments, with Russia, are not present—the eight that are closest to Russia's borders and are in varying degrees of willingness and duress subject to Russian domination. Their absence, and the reasons for it, tell the story. In the case of two, the reason came out.

IN THE CASE of Poland, an official statement of the Polish Embassy in Washington, July 2, said, "We would like to take part in discussions relative to . . . the Marshall Plan and eventually to present suggestions of the Polish government." A few days later the Polish government declined to participate in the conference.

The case of Czechoslovakia is stark. At first that government announced that it would participate in the conference, and sent a plane-load of technicians to Paris. A few days later the Czech Prime Minister and Foreign Minister flew to Moscow and had an interview with Stalin. From Moscow the Czech Prime Minister telephoned his government at Prague that it must withdraw its earlier acceptance. In doing this, the Czech government said officially: "Acceptance of the invitation might be construed as an action against the Soviet Union."

Both Czechoslovakia and Poland wished to take part in the conference. Both could have made important contributions to the recovery of Europe, and both desperately needed the help from Europe and the United States that the Marshall Plan assured. Both countries were forced by Russia, in the most humiliating way, to refuse.

Why did Russia thus make plain the breach between her and the western world? An answer that receives much credence in Washington is that Russia could not afford to have the Marshall Plan succeed, could not afford to have the world see cooperation between America and western Europe, it would lessen her hold on Communists in every country. Especially she could not let the Marshall Plan succeed in helping the countries under her domination. Success would show them the way of escape from their subservience.

WHILE OUR Government continues its restraint, occasional signs emerge which show that it recognizes the facts. In the magazine Foreign Affairs last week is an article which, while anonymous, is generally supposed to have been written by a high official of the State Department. The article contains a warning: "There can never be on Moscow's side any sincere assumption of a community of aim between the Soviet Union and powers which are regarded as capitalist." The United States "must continue to regard the Soviet Union as a rival, not a partner, in the political arena."

The ominous condition which America must grasp was put in clear words by an able young Congressman, Republican Clifford T. Case of New Jersey: "No longer can we avoid the conclusion that Russia's purpose is the opposite to our own—to create confusion, perpetuate disaster, and bring chaos everywhere beyond her borders, in the hope that eventually democracy will be destroyed throughout the world. It is time for us to face the fact that we must act, not only without Russia's help, but in the face of her stubborn opposition . . . that our dream of one world, in which peoples of conflicting ideologies will live together in peace, cannot now be realized."

Congress Committee to Hear 4 'Boom-and-Bust' Accusers

By the United Press

The Congressional Economic Committee ends hearings on the state of the Nation this week with testimony of four former administration officials who warned only two moths ago that a boob-and-bust cycle impends.

Appearing Wednesday will be Leon Henderson and Paul A. Porter, both former chiefs of the office of Price Administration; William H. Davis, former head of the War Labor Board, and Richard V. Gilbert, another ex-OPA economist.

These men differ shartly with committee chairman Robert A. Taft, (R., Ohio) in their views on wages and prices.

On May 16 the four, joining with former OPA Chief Chester Bowles and others in a report sponsored by Americans for Democratic Action, called on the committee to give them an immediate hearing. They asserted that decisions taken in the ensuing 60 days might decide whether the Nation could avoid a "serious recession."

Accusing the committee of a "conspiracy of silence," the group urged establishment of a price adjustment board to press for a voluntary 10 per cent price reduction by business. It also advocated that business generally accept the 15 per cent wage boost pattern that had just been set by the steel and auto industry as a means of providing added purchasing power to offset the reduction in profit due to lower prices.

While the committee has made no formal reply, testimony already presented has in the main sharply contradicted the view that a recession is certain. Instead, business leaders from various branches of industry and many economists look for continued high levels of business and employment.

This view is shared by Taft, who is expected to dispute many of the ADA contentions.

Today the committee will hear from Jerome M. Ney, board chairman of the American Retail Federation of Small Business, Inc.

On Tuesday it will go into the question whether the new coal wage contract is inflationary, with testimony from George M. Humphrey, board chairman of the Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal Co.

25 Million Pounds Of Surplus TNT on Sale

By the United Press

The War Assets Administration last night announced that it has 25,000 pounds of surplus TNT for sale at only 4½ cents a pound.

The agency pointed out that TNT—or trinitrotoluene—can be handled and shipped with comparative safety" and that it can be stored for a long time without deterioration.

375,000 Tons of Sugar Seen in Philippines

Manila, July 13 (AP).—The Philippines Sugar Administration estimated today that production during the 1947-48 milling season would reach 375,000 tons.

Production in the peak year 1934 was 1,500,000 tons. Last season it was 76,000.

Break Up Monopolies to Trim High Prices, CIO Suggests

By the United Press

The CIO said yesterday that unless the Administration moves quickly to break up industrial monopoly the Nation faces continued high prices followed by a "serious economic collapse."

It said in its monthly economic outlook that President Truman's attempt to bring prices down through "moral suasion" has failed. Only an immediate, all-out attack by the Federal Government on industrial monopolies can keep the national economy "on an even keel," it added.

"Almost everybody is in agreement that prices are now too high in many lines to permit purchases by the mass of American people. These prices must come down if our economy is to promote full employment and full production."

Offers Interim Plan

It said that, "in most instances," the Justice Department has stepped in to wipe out monopoly where it has found it. But "this action frequently falls far short of the necessary remedies which must be effected if monopolies are to be broken."

The CIO said that any program designed to curb monopolies must, of necessity, be part of an overall plan to promote full employment. In the current absence of such a plan it proposed a 10-point interim program and suggested immediate adoption by the Government. It calls for:

1. Coordination of the activities of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department.

2. Immediate increases in the annual appropriations of these agencies so they can carry on "effective work." The CIO said the Justice Department has never had operating funds of more than $2,500,000 for any one year while one unnamed corporation put out more than this to "fight only one suit pending against it."

3. Government aid should be made available to small business, even to the extent of subsidizing some marginal producers.

4. In other cases, straight loans should be made available to small business.

5. The Government should adopt a system of universal use and control of patent rights.

6. Where prices are out of line, the Government should follow the example set by the Tennessee Valley Authority and set up "pilot plants" to compete with monopolistic industry "to force prices down to reasonable levels."

Ask Research Program

7. A Federal research program should be launched immediately in all industrial fields "with the assurance of unrestricted use of Government patents resulting from such work in American industry."

8. Congress should give the Justice Department power to halt all mergers resulting from large corporations acquiring the assets of small companies.

9. Congress should enact an immediate prohibition forbidding American corporations from entering into international cartel agreements.

10. The CIO said that "in the light of present economic tendencies, it may also become necessary to give serious consideration to public control, either through regulation or ownership" of certain industries as one means of busting monopoly.

U. S., British Protests End DP Arrests

By Seymour Freidin

Vienna, July 13.—Persistent protests launched by British and American authorities have terminated the series of mass arrests of displaced persons by Soviet troops who, in the last two weeks, have boarded civilian trains from Vienna to the American zone of Austria.

British and Americans protested vigorously, it was learned authoritatively today, after receiving information which showed conclusively that an undisclosed number of DPs from Baltic nations were hauled out of Vienna-Neustadt camps and transported eastward.

Besides arrests made by Russian troops, about 400 other DPs were summarily ejected from trains at Enns Bridge, leading to Linz and the American zone. They were forced to return to Vienna as best they could, but were not otherwise molested.

Meanwhile, abductions in Vienna continued over the weekend, with two kidnapings reported by the security police. Both were middle-aged Austrian men, apparently of no importance politically. Outward appearances mean little here at present in the increased espionage game. The kidnapers were described as men dressed in Soviet uniforms.

39th Annual Governor Parley Noted for 'Fence Sitters' should not be construed as bandwagon rush.

Most of the influential men in the Republican Party, the Governors say, are sitting on the fence and following a policy of wait and see. To put it another way, they are in a mood for "shopping."

All of the Republican Governors—or nearly all—are agreed that when the balloting starts at the Philadelphia convention next June, a startlingly large number of favorite-son candidates will be put in nomination.

Favorite Sons Expected

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert of Ohio, who is, of course, a Taft man, said today that he expected a "majority" of the States to have favorite-son candidates; that is, Governors or Senators or others who will be supported until a break comes and the convention stampedes toward one particular candidate. Governor Herbert later revised his remark and said he expected that a "great number" of the States would have favorite sons.

"In my judgment," he said, "nobody has a lock on the nomination at this time."

Gov. Ralph F. Gates of Indiana told reporters that the Hoosier State delegation would support Representative Charles A. Halleck for the presidential nomination, if Halleck is willing to go along. Otherwise, he said, the delegation probably would split, with some going to Dewey, some to Taft, and some in other directions.

It was Gates impression, that most of the GOP leaders in the Midwest are not yet ready to plump for any outstanding candidate.

Gov. Robert D. Blue of Iowa, agreed so far as his State was concerned, saying, "we are staying in the middle."

Duff Gives Views

Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, who on the way to Salt Lake City, predicted a "wide open" convention in '48 and a free-for-all battle for the presidential nomination, said that he has been fortified in that opinion since talking to other Governors here. He added:

"If there is a general realization that nobody owns the next Republican convention or that nobody is going to buy it, that will prove helpful."

It is generally assumed that United States Senator Edward Martin will be Pennsylvania's favorite-son candidate.

It is also assumed that Illinois will make Gov. Dwight Green a favorite son, although Green has been slipping badly in the last several months.

Deadlock Held Likely

If it turns out that Philadelphia is invaded by an army of favorite sons, the result would almost certainly be a deadlock on the first ballot and perhaps for several ballots.

Some of those who have been traveling with Governor Dewey believe that he is trying to head off such a situation. They also figure that he is trying to get a bandwagon started and persuade some of the fence sitters to bestir themselves and climb aboard.

To judge from the talk here in Salt Lake City, most of it of an "in-the-lodge" kind, the Governors expect that the battle at Philadelphia will be between Dewey and Senator Taft.

There is not much talk here about Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Dewey, Warren Chummy

Gov. Earl Warren of California, is a great favorite among his colleagues, and that includes Governor Dewey as well as the others. The two of them were among a half dozen or so State executives who attended services today at the Episcopal Cathedral. On their return to the Utah Hotel, headquarters of the Governors' Conference, Dewey and Warren seemed very chummy.

Those close to Dewey are convinced that Dewey, if successful in winning the presidential nomination, would like to have Warren as his running mate. He appears not to harbor any hard feeling for Warren because of the big fellow's refusal to take the vice presidential nomination in '44.

Some of the Governor here think that Warren is just as well fitted to be No. 1 on the ticket. They wish, though, that he would do something himself to start the ball rolling.

In their political huddles, a few Governor have criticized Governor Dewey for his failure to express an opinion on the Taft-Hartley labor bill and the tax bill now pending in Congress.

Dewey's position is that these are the business of Congress, and that it is not within his province to attempt to dictate to Congress or to criticize Congress. Some of the Governors, however, feel that he ought to make his position known, since he is the titular head of the Republican Party.

Curbs Press Conference

Dewey steadfastly declined today to hold a press conference. He relented late in the day, but laid down "ground rules" in advance. He said he would talk about matters that are to come before the Governors' conference but nothing else—meaning politics and such matters as the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Dewey talked about taxes; specifically about the chaotic overlapping of Federal and local taxes. He is to preside tomorrow at a session which will consider this problem.

His thesis today was that there should be some understanding as to what taxes should be collected by the Federal Government and what by the State and local governments. He said he would be perfectly willing to have New York give up its State income tax, leaving that field to the Federal Government, provided Uncle Sam gave up some of the "nuisance" taxes such as those on theater admissions.

Getting back to the '48 presidential battle, the Republican Governors say they are supremely confident of a GOP victory. They are obviously sincere about it. The Democratic Governors are not too vigorous in challenging them, being content to say that a great deal can happen between now and election day.

Governor Herbert of Ohio, said he thought that taxes, Government economy, reduction of the national debt, and labor legislation would be the big issues of '48.

Spread of Hawaii Pineapple Strike Feared as Workers Plan Meeting

Honolulu, July 13 (INS).—Leaders of Hawaii's striking pineapple industry workers announced today that they would hold an emergency labor meeting Monday or Tuesday to discuss plans for continuing the work stoppage.

All negotiations were broken off in the three-day-old strike as both sides girded for a long struggle.

Some business firms were planning to operate only three days a week to allow their employes to go into the canneries and fields to help harvest and can the fruit. Pineapple industry representatives rejected a proposed settlement because the union had been guilty of a "breach of faith" by calling the strike while negotiations were in progress.

The government conciliator said the International Longshoreman's and Warehousemen's Union had decided to accept a management offer of a 10-cent hourly pay boost but was haggling over the period of retroactivity for the increase when the strike was called.

Coast Ship Picketed

San Francisco, July 13 (AP).—CIO longshore walking bosses were picketing the Luckenbach Steamship Co.'s Douglas Victory here today, but work was progressing normally on all other ships in the bay.

The Waterfront Employers Association said the strike so far had not spread to any other ports on the coast.

The Douglas Victory was struck Friday afternoon, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union said, because of the company's refusal to recognize the ILWU as the collective bargaining agent for the foremen.

McCormick Asked to Act

Chicago, July 13 (U.P.).—Strikers at the Wisconsin Steel Works of the International Harvester Co. here today asked Company Board Chairman Fowler McCormick to intervene personally in the dispute "in the interest of industrial peace."

A company spokesman said William Brewster, general superintendent of the plant, had "full authority to bargain with the union on all issues."

Nats Lose Out, 3-2, After 4-2 Victory

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—To date, the efforts of the California people to get a major league franchise for Los Angeles have been directed toward the purchase of the St. Louis Cardinals, but the Browns would seem to offer the best possibility.

POVICH

By this time the American League ought to be fed up with the Browns and eager to put a franchise in Los Angeles, the Nation's fourth largest city. A double-header with the Yankees yesterday drew only 4940 in St. Louis, and today there were fewer than 6000 for a Sunday double-header with the Nats.

The opening game in the Browns' park drew only 9000 fans this year. It was established long ago that St. Louis can't support two major league ball clubs, and with Los Angeles crying for a team, the first major league that is represented there will profit handsomely. The reluctance thus far to put a franchise in Los Angeles is baffling until it is realized that major league baseball is probably the worst run big business in the Nation. After all, it took the club owners 70 years to think of the bright idea of putting numbers on the players' backs.

THERE ARE obstacles to the idea of installing a club in Los Angeles, but they are not quite insurmountable. The willingness of the Browns' owner, Richard C. Muckerman, to sell would be the first item, and then there would be the obligation to make it right with the other clubs in the Pacific Coast League, which would be losing its best city.

Muckerman paid two million dollars for the Browns and has improved the park at a cost of another half million, but he has said he would not be averse to selling "at the right price." For another half million or less, the American League could salve the other Coast League clubs, whose territory it would be invading.

The team that goes into Los Angeles would be tapping a fertile source of revenue. It's the most sports-mad city in the Nation, with the best race tracks, the best college football, and the other night there were 75,000 fans in the city's Coliseum to watch the midget automobile races, of all things.

LOS ANGELES is making it easy for a big league club to move in. The city has offered the use of its Coliseum, seating 105,000, to the club that brings in a major league franchise, and at a rental that is cheaper than the Cleveland club pays for its Municipal Stadium. It's inviting to the major league with enough gumption to make the move.

The surprising item is that thus far the other owners have not brought pressure on the Cards or Browns to sell out. The National League, particularly, is in need of a park with a seating capacity like Los Angeles' Coliseum. The Polo Grounds with its 52,000 seats is the closest thing the N. L. has to a big stadium, while the American League has four parks seating that many or more.

The Browns won't draw 400,000 this season with their last-place club. They won't make a nickel, and the visiting clubs' checks will be scarcely enough to pay rail and hotel expenses. A club used to do very well when it drew 400,000 at home, but that was in the days of low player salaries and cheaper traveling expenses and income taxes.

Vincent Flaherty of the Los Angeles Examiner says that on the day that major league baseball comes to his city, it will produce the largest crowd in history. "They'll fill the 105,000 seats of the Coliseum, and in one day they'll draw 25 per cent as many fans as the Browns do during a 77-game home stay."

THE MAJOR leagues did unbend the other day to the extent of naming a committee to go to the Coast to survey that territory as the possible site of major league baseball in the future. It was, at last, a move in the sensible direction, but the major league that permits its rival to beat it into Los Angeles will be taking a financial beating.

To contrast the unwillingness or the inability of St. Louis to support two big league clubs, look at the fan response in Chicago today, where the Yankees were playing a double-header. Comiskey Park's 50,000 seats were sold out at a time when the seventh-place White Sox had just lost three out of four to the Nats.

If either big league can't find a purchaser with enough backing to buy one of the St. Louis clubs for transfer to Los Angeles, the bright move would be to make league funds available, if necessary, and get representation in the country's fourth largest city—quickly.

Tigers Edge A's Twice to Regain 2d

Detroit, July 13 (INS).—Detroit moved back into second place in the American League by one full game today by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics twice, 4-2 and 7-6 before a crowd of 40,286.

The Boston Red Sox dropped two at Cleveland.

Virgil Trucks captured the first game for Detroit by pitching five-hit ball while Roy Cullenbine provided the winning punch in the second game when he hit his 11th home run of the season in the eighth inning to break a 6-all tie.

In the opener Trucks set the A's down in easy fashion in the first eight innings. They finally got to him for two runs in the ninth on a double, walk, single and infield out. Eddie Mayo helped Trucks' cause with two singles and a double in four times up. The victory was Trucks' sixth as against six defeats. Carl Scheib, who previously had beaten Detroit twice, went the route and was charged with the defeat.

After Detroit took a 6-4 lead in the sixth inning of the second game the A's tied it up in the seventh. Each team used three pitchers and Freddie Hutchinson halting the A's in the seventh. Russ Christopher was charged with the defeat.

Combined with Boston's double defeat by Cleveland, the twin victory gave the Tigers a full game margin over the Red Six but left them 10½ games behind league-leading New York.

Freddie Hutchinson, who relieved Johnny Gorsica on the Detroit mound in the seventh inning, hurled hitless ball the rest of the way and was credited with his sixth win in the second game. Gorsica had relieved young Art Houtteman, making his first start since being recalled from Buffalo.

Philadelphia's third pitcher, Russ Christopher, was charged with the loss. He followed Joe Coleman, who was called in in the fourth after starter Dick Fowler threw 10 straight balls.

Cullenbine's eighth-inning circuit blow gave the Tigers the lead for the third and final time in the see-saw contest.

Rocksie Wins Jumper Title

In a spectacular comeback, Mrs. August Kramm rode her champion Rocksie to the jumper championship at the Marlborough Hunt Club horse show yesterday at Suitland, Md. Mrs. Kramm holds the distinction of being the only woman ever to win the national jumper championship, she and Rocksie accomplished this feat at the 1941 Madison Square Garden event.

Rocksie, with which Mrs. Kramm won the national jumper title in 1941, returned to competition after six years' retirement and outjumped the classiest aggregation of leapers to be seen locally this season. Rocksie won the difficult modified Olympia, the knock-down-and-out at 5 feet 6 inches and the triple bar at 4 feet with a 10-foot spread.

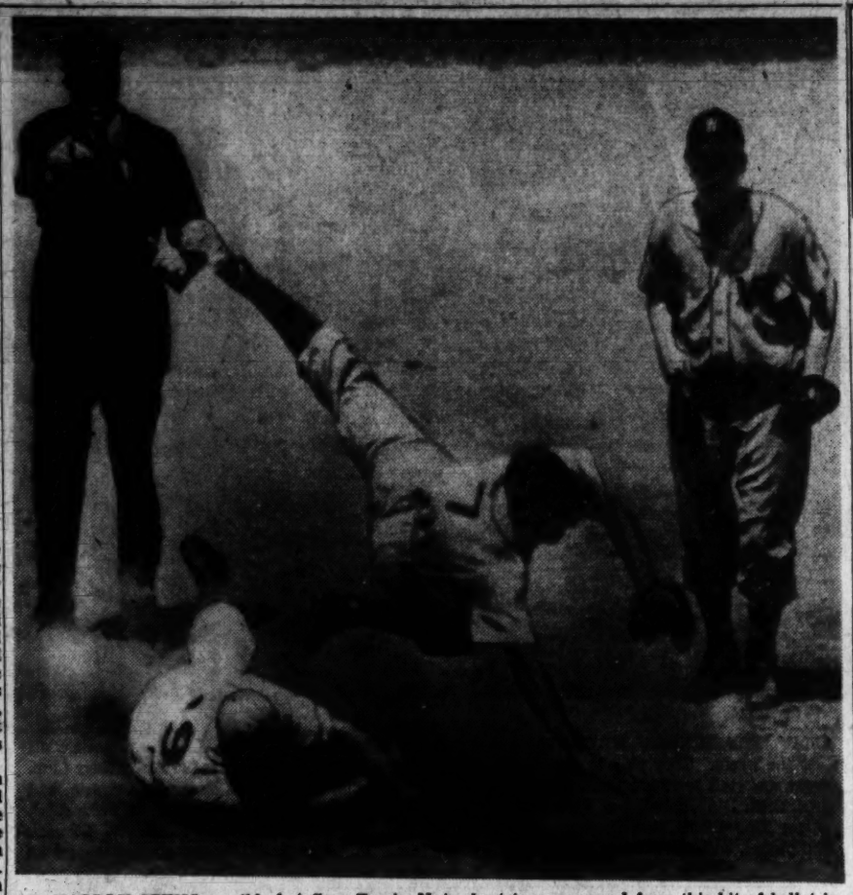
Reserve honors were taken by Leon Greenaway's Glocca Morra with a total of 6 points.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Mueller's Imp Ballela took the jumper tricolor with 9 points. Bellela won the open hunter class and took second in the working hunters with Gardner Hallman doing the saddle work and was third in the ladies class with Mrs. Walter Kees up.

Close on Ballela's heels were two Warrenton, Va., entries, J. North Fletcher's Broad Run and U. S. Randle's Busbouse with 8 points each.

New Rowing Record

Amsterdam, July 13 (AP).—The eight-oar Seniores of the Rowing Club of Paris today broke a three-week-old record of the Amsterdam 2000-meter "bosbaan"-course, by defeating both the Dutch Rowing club "Laga" and Rutgers University of New Jersey. The time was 6 minutes 9.8 seconds.



IT HARDLY SEEMS possible but Cece Travis, Nats shortstop, recovered from this bit of ballet in time to make a double play in the sixth inning of yesterday's first game in St. Louis. Ray Coleman is out sliding into second after Travis took Gerry Priddy's (right) toss and relayed to first to catch Bill Hitchcock. Umpire Red Jones calls the play

Hursey Gaining Favor; He's Now 8½-5 to Beat Kapilow Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Nineteen-year-old Elijah (Smuggy) Hursey hopes to reach his boxing majority at Griffith Stadium tonight against Danny Kapilow, the crafty Bronx nose basher.

A victory over the clever invader will mean more to the Washingtonian than all of his recent triumphs over such opponents as Billy Arnold, Baron Barry and Bee Bee Washington combined.

Although Kapilow is no longer the hot-shot article he once was, he still commands plenty of respect in the fighting fraternity and a conquest of him is a distinctive feather in anyone's fedora.

Kapilow, by far, is the toughest hurdle the Smug has been called on to scale since last winter when he vaulted out of the club fight ranks into a major league attraction.

Danny has more than a good chance to dump the Hursey applecart. The prospect of the New Yorker messing up Hursey's 12 straight string is expected to attract a mob of 12,000, including Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, and a $40,000 pot for the Liberty A. C., promoters of the middleweight scrap.

The pricemakers, however, see nothing but a Hursey conquest and have upped the odds on the local lad to 8½ to 5.

On Kapilow's side is a good punch, which he demonstrated here last summer when he stopped Aaron Perry in three rounds; ring savvy and a sincere determination to put the brakes on the high-riding Hursey.

Hursey's assets include youth and stamina, the two things which more than anything saw him through the Arnold, Washington and Perry bouts. The Smug is a tireless worker with a fair punch.

Danny will be outweighed approximately 8 pounds. Hursey has guaranteed to scale 155, while Manager Al Weill hopes to bring his charge in at 147 or better.

In addition to tonight's payday, which figures to be about $6500 for each contestant, there's another pot to be won next month for the winner. Present plans call for the winner to box either Pete Meade, Charley Fusari or Harold Green on August 25.

Three six rounders bring together: Kid Wolfe vs. J. C. Wilkins, middleweights; Al Wright vs. Leroy Fleming, middleweights, and Sonny Boy West vs. Jessie Compos, featherweights. Joe Price and Roy Davis, light heavies, will open with a four at 8:45.

Tickets for tonight's show are on sale today at Griffith Stadium, 9 a. m.

Zale Narrow Choice to Win Over Rocky

Chicago, July 13 (AP).—Thumping Tony Zale and Rock-a-Bye Rocky Graziano, who've had all the bash, boulevardiers in a swivet these past few weeks, now even have the bookmakers confused about their middleweight title explosion Wednesday night. And, you may recall, the books don't confuse easy.

As the body-Thumping champion and the Rock-A-Bye belter began the tapering off and muscle-loosening windup to their training today, the bookies, who still had Tony a slight betting choice, decided it was no use trying to figure this one out. One of the top price-makers hereabout frankly predicted that if you're willing to wait a little while, it will be even money when the balloon goes up at 10 p. m.

Today Tony was a narrow 5-to-7 choice in the man-to-man betting. Against the books, you had to lay 15 to win 10 if you liked the Indiana steel mill hand to repeat his roof-caving-in job of last September. Or you took 13 against your 10 if you figured Rocky would administer the anesthetic at Chicago Stadium.

They were sure of one thing though—this set of shooting artillery, like the last, was going to be all over and the expected 20,000 customers, who will chip in to what may be an alltime record gate for little men, will be on the way home long before the 15-round derby route hits the stretch.

Bobo Shows Fans Some Baserunning 'A La Newsom'

Chicago, July 13 (AP).—Bobo Newsom, pitching his first game for the New York Yankees, provided a full house of fans in Comiskey Park today with a bit of humorous base running.

In the third inning Newsom dribbled a roller to Joe Haynes, Chicago White Sox pitcher. When Newsom failed to run, Haynes held onto the ball. Finally Bobo walked into the Yankee dugout behind first base and Haynes still held onto the ball.

As the White Sox infield shifted into position and Haynes readied himself to pitch to George Stirnweiss, Yankee leadoff batter, Newsom charged out of the dugout and raced toward first.

Haynes then threw to Rudy York, who touched first base just ahead of the on-charging Newsom.

Maharaja's Horse Flies to Belmont

New York, July 13 (AP).—Diesel, a 4-year-old thoroughbred owned by the Maharais of Baroda is due to arrive here by plane from London tomorrow to race at Belmont Park Friday, first of the Empire City Racing Association's two international days.

The Maharaja originally had entered two other horses in the $100,000 international gold cup at Belmont July 19 but withdrew them. He then decided to fly Diesel here for an overnight race, chiefly to inspect the possibilities of transatlantic flights for future entries in renewals of the gold cup.

51,998 See Tribe Sock Bosox Twice

Cleveland, July 13 (AP).—Steve Gromek and Ed Kileman throttled the Boston Red Sox with five hits as Cleveland downed the Sox, 6 to 2, in the second game of today's double-header before 51,998 fans.

The Indians also won the opener, 8 to 0, behind Mel Harder's nine-hit pitching.

The Indians made Harder's opening game victory easy as they cuffed Harry Dorish and Bill Zuber for 14 hits, including Joe Gordon's fifteenth home run of the season. Gordon and Boston's Ted Williams now are tied for the American League home run leadership.

Home runs by Eddie Robinson and Keltner, each with a mate aboard, highlighted the Indians triumph in the nightcap. Gromek held the Bosox in check with two hits until the sixth inning when he weakened and gave way to Kleman who doled out three more bingles the rest of the way.

Assault Rated 'Sure Thing' In $100,000 Gold Cup Race

New York, July 13 (AP).—Having run his greatest race under his heaviest weight in Saturday's Butler Handicap, Assault today was rated as safe as the Bank of England to win Saturday's $100,000 Gold Cup and hold the money-winning title indefinitely.

Even the most apathetic old-timers who witnessed the terrific Texan's sensational Butler triumph at Jamaica broke down and said they hadn't seen a gamer exhibition in many a moon. They don't see how Robert J. Kleberg's 1946 horse of the year can miss winning the international special at Belmont Park this weekend—particularly since that mile and five-furlong marathon is to be run under weight-for-age conditions, 126 pounds for horses over three year olds and 110 for those of Derby age.

In ringing up his seventh straight triumph Saturday, Assault carried 135 pounds—tops for any Butler victor—took all the worst of the racing luck, overcame being jammed in at least twice around the last bend and into the stretch, then simply crashed his way between horses to beat his arch-rival, Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Stymie, by a neck, going away. It was as if the little guy with the malformed foot just refused to be beaten. He regained the world money-gleaning title from Stymie, boosting his total to $613,370 to top Stymie's $605,510. No other horses ever reached the $600,000 mark.

It would seem now—and it has for some time—that Warren Wright's champion gelding Armed, whom he has yet to meet, is the only thoroughbred in the world capable of giving Assault a tussle. And such a clash is not immediately in view. Armed is expected to race at Garden State Park, N. J., following his Chicago campaign. The Calumet Comet apparently has completely recovered from his ankle accident incurred at Gulfstream Park last winter, judging by his recent triumph at Arlington Park. A match between Assault and Armed, America's two aces, would pack any racetrack in the country. But the pair might not meet until the Pimlico Special in the fall, assuming each will get by the many vicissitudes of racing in the interim.

It must have been especially gratifying to Trainer Max Hirsch when his Assault beat Stymie Saturday, for it was from Max that Hirsch Jacobs claimed Stymie for a song as a juvenile.

So it looks as if either Ensueno or Endeavour, the two Airborne South American invaders, are the only hopes to give Assault a battle in the cup. And you could get awfully enticing odds on that.

Newsom in Form, Yanks Win 2 More

Chicago, July 13 (AP).—The New York Yankees scored their thirteenth and fourteenth straight victories by sweeping a double-header from the Chicago White Sox, winning the first game 10-3 and the second 6-4, before 43,102 fans.

The double win moved the league-leading Yankees 10½ games in front of the second place Detroit Tigers who captured a twin bill today from Philadelphia.

Bobo Newsom, purchased from Washington Friday on waivers, and young Vic Raschi, recalled from Portland last Thursday, were the two winning pitchers for New York.

Newsom gave up only five hits in winning his first start with the Yankees in the opener. Raschi, with plenty of late assistance from Joe Page and Allie Reynolds, checked Chicago on nine hits in the afterpiece.

Hogan and Demaret Retain Inverness Four-Ball Crown

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks: The meeting here goes into the final full week with today's program. The end comes a week from Tuesday with Bel Air opening the next day. President-General Manager A. J. Boyle will again offer his famous "Go away happy purse" on closing day. The purse is $1500 and every starter will get part of the money, even the last horse getting $100. It is for owners who have not had a a winner at the meeting and gives them a chance for shipping expenses. Other tracks should take notice. Only eight horses can start but everybody get a draw for the race.

Stewards have been alert here to weed out bad-legged horses. There are 56 horses barred for various reasons. Friend John P. Turner, jr., of Baltimore, has been appointed racing secretary at Cumberland. That track is fortunate to get Turner, who has been operating recently only on the big time.

R. C. Waple sold Dark Cloud at private terms to Stanley Greene, jr. N. S. Scava has purchased Fitz Mede from Mrs. W. Hayhurst and plans to give the gelding a rest. Owner-Trainer E. C. Allnut of Rockville, Md., was a visitor. His horses are at Bel Air. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Pair Finish With Plus 12 To Triumph

Toledo, Ohio, July 13 (AP).—Smiling Jimmy Demaret and little Ben Hogan split up the first prize of $3000, and a special purse for scoring the most birdies, as they copped the Inverness four-ball matches for the second straight year.

They also became the only three-time victors in the best-ball classic as they wound up seven rounds of match play against seven other twosomes with a plus 12 score, 2 ahead of former tennis champ Ellesworth Vines and big Clayton Heafner, who staged a late splurge to take over second place and $1700.

The winners started the day with a plus 13 carryover, and defeated Vic Ghezzi and Ed (Porky) Oliver by a hole this morning, before bowing 2 down to Herman Keiser and Herman Barron in the final match.

Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich., and George Schoux of San Francisco took over third place with a plus 4 score, losing a three-down decision to former open champions Lawson Little and Lloyd Mangrum this morning and then playing Vines and Heafner an even match this afternoon.

Furgol and Schoux also took down an extra $250, along with their third place $1300, for shooting the tourney's low score, a blistering 11-under-par 60 with which they opened the event Thursday in their first jaunt together over the inverness layout.

Hogan and Demaret scored 43 birdies and 4 eagles on their 126-hole jaunt, and finished 49 under par for the route, missing par on two holes. Furgol and Schoux, with 46 birdies and 2 eagles, were 46 under par for the distance, going over on four holes. In the birdies prize count, eagles were counted as two birdies, giving Hogan and Demaret that 250 prize by a single stroke over the youthful Furgol and Schoux.

National Open champions didn't fare too well in the event, Mangrum and Little finished last with a minus 13 count to collect $600, and Lew Worsham, present holders of the title, taking down $700 for seventh place with his partner Johnny Palmer.

Barron and Keiser pushed into fourth place by beating Hogan and Demaret in the last match and winning $1000. Sam Snead and Dr. Cary Middlecoff were next for $900, and Ghezzi and Oliver wound up with $800 for sixth spot.

Dodgers Easily Roll Over Cincinnati, 9-1, for 7th Straight Triumph

King, Relief Hurler, Wins On 6-Hitter

Brooklyn, July 13 (AP).—Clyde King, a Brooklyn relief artist, graduated to the ranks of starting pitchers today with a six-hit 9-1 win over Cincinnati for the Dodgers seventh straight victory.

Kent Peterson, the Reds' rookie lefthander, stayed with King for six innings, trailing by one run when King came up in the seventh with two on and two out. The Dodgers' first-time starter delivered a double to left center that broke the game wide open. Brooklyn knocked out Peterson in that inning, scoring four runs and added three more off Ed Erautt in the eighth.

Cincinnati's only run came in the fourth when Grady Hatton doubled off the right field scoreboard and came home on Babe Young's single.

It was King's first win and the Brooks' 31st Ebbets Field success in 41 starts for a phenomenal .756 home percentage. Peterson was charged with his seventh loss.

Giants, Bucs Split

New York, July 13 (AP).—Homers by Billy Rigney and Bob Thomson helped Larry Jansen square matters with Pittsburgh by hurling the New York Giants to a 3-1 victory in the second game of a double-header today after Fritz Ostermueller had pitched a six-hitter in a 6-3 opening Pirate win.

Jansen, who scattered six hits for his eighth success, was off to a one-run lead in the first frame when Buddy Blattner tripled off loser Preacher Roe and scored on Rigney's fly ball. Pirate singles by Ralph Kiner, Elbie Fletcher and Wally Westlake tied the score in the fourth but Rigney's twelfth homer in the sixth and No. 14 for Thomson in the eighth off Nick Strincevich were decisive.

Czechs Take 1st Davis Cup Matches

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, July 13 (AP). While a crowd of partisan Yugoslavians yelled for the losers, Czechoslovakia took the first two matches today in the European Zone Davis Cup finals.

In the first match, Vladamir Cernik defeated Dragutin Mitich of Yugoslavia 3—6, 6—0, 2—6, 6—1, 6—2.

In the second match, Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia defeated Josef Palada of Yugoslavia 6—3, 8—6, 2—6, 6—3.

Mondschein Best

Bloomfield, N. J., July 13 (AP).—Irving Mondschein, New York University athlete, won the 29th annual AAU Decathlon Championship today with a total of 6715 points for the two-day event, taking the title for the third time in four years.

Frisina Wins Golf

Galesburg, Ill., July 13 (AP).—Jim Frisina of Springfield, 1942 State titlist, today won the 1947 Illinois Men's Amateur Golf championship, defeating Mike Stolarik of Waukegan, 10 and 8.

Cardinals Rally to Avert Double Defeat by Phils

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—After losing the first game today, 4 to 2, the St. Louis Cardinals rallied to tie the score at 2 to 2 in the ninth inning of the second contest. Then they won out in the tenth, 3 to 2, to split a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Phillies before a crowd of 27,036.

Howie Pollet went the distance and got credit for his fifth win against eight defeats in the second game. Oscar Judd was charged with his ninth straight defeat.

Stan Musial's triple with two out to score Erv Dusaw, who had singled, produced the winning run.

Ken Heintzelman outpitched Ken Burkhart to gain his fourth win against three setbacks in the opener.

The Phils broke a 2-to-2 tie in the eighth and scored twice on a walk, Johnny Wyrostek's triple and an outfield fly that scored the Phils' rightfielder.

N. C. Sailors Win At Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., July 13 (AP).—Tarheel yachtsmen won a clean sweep in three races for tiny one-man moths today as the Annapolis Yacht Club's tenth annual regatta came to a close with a fleet of nearly 200 craft competing.

Sailors from the Pasquotank River Yacht Club at Elizabeth City, N. C., captured all honors in the moth class.

D. F. Willey's Number 805 took first, Bill Weatherly's Dopey was second and Ralph Ambrose's Blondie was third. Virginians from the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club sailed away with top prizes in the Hampton class races. W. G. Halloway, in Joyway, was first; Charles W. Nelms jr. was second in Windward, and Chauncey Willis jr. took third in Beware.

Winner in the penguin class was Dr. Walter Lawson from the Columbia Yacht Club, Washington.

Campbell Boat Speeds at 150 MPH

Poole, England, July 13 (AP).—Sir Malcolm Campbell drove his jet-powered 26-foot boat, Bluebird III, today at a speed estimated by engineers at 150 miles an hour in a trial preparatory to an attempt to break his own speedboat record of 141.76 MPH.

Sir Malcolm said the boat's excessive snaking from side to side which caused him to delay his scheduled attempt on the record apparently had been corrected by undisclosed modifications. He said the Bluebird would be returned to Lake Coniston in Lancashire "as soon as possible" for another attempt on the record.

Father and Son Win Swim Meet Laurels

Commander Lloyd Mustin won the 25, 50 and 100-yard class A free style swimming races at an intraclub meet held yesterday at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Mustin's son, Henry, captured the class C 25 and 50-yard races.

Nats Thump Browns, 4-2, But Drop Nightcap, 3-2

Pitcher Potter and stole second as Priddy struck out. Ferrell was handed an intentional pass to bring Hudson up and that strategy misfired when Hudson rocketed a single to center that scored Travis.

In the ninth with one out, Stephens belted his second homer for the Browns' second run, but he was two runs short of tying the score.

Both Haefner's control and his luck deserted him in the third inning of the second game when the Browns came up with two runs on one hit to take a 2-0 lead.

He walked Hitchcock and Stephens with two out, and a ground ball by Stephens went past Priddy for a cheap single that scored one run. Haefner also walked Witte to fill the bases and then hit Zarilla with a pitched ball to force the second run home.

The Nats, meanwhile, had nothing against righthander Cliff Fannin. Vernon's walk and Christman's single put men on first and third with one out in the second, but Evans popped up and Haefner grounded out. In the fourth, Vernon's single and another by Priddy put two on base with one out, but Vernon was trapped at the plate when he tried to score on Christman's grounder to Stephens.

All of a sudden, with two out in the sixth, Mickey Vernon got a run for the Nats with his homer atop the right field roof, his third of the year.

Buddy Lewis tied it up in the eighth with his second homer of the day, a tremendous blast to the the roof in right center, and with maefner pitching five scoreless innings in a row the game moved into the ninth as a two-two deadlock.

The Nats had a scoring chance in that ninth when Christman walked with two out and raced to third on Evans' single, but with the count of three balls and two strikes against Haefner, Christman was picked off third by Jake Early's snap throw.

And then the Browns came to bat and won the ball game.

Hudson, who had failed to win any of his previous seven starts, asserted in the clubhouse before the game that "my arm feels better than it has in two months." . . . Tomorrow the Nats will send Early Wynn against Sam Zoldak, the Browns southpaw who had won only one game while losing four this year.

Mayer Wins N. Y. Golf

Rye, N. Y., July 13 (AP).—Dick Mayer, 23-year-old invader from Connecticut, made his first appearance in the New York State Amateur Golf tournament a successful one today when he captured the title by beating Stan Kowal, jr., of Utica, 4 and 3, in the 36-hole finals.

Trend of the Family

There's Pop — and Mom — and the kids — somehow all of them have to get together on which car it will be for the family.

Well, if you go by the pollsters, there's no problem.

One poll asked the youngsters who are old enough to have fixed opinions which car they preferred.

It was Buick — head and shoulders.

Another went to the ladies, guardians of the family pocketbook.

And running way ahead of other cars at its price — staging a nip-and-tuck battle for second with one of the "lowest-priced three" — was this Buick beauty, trim and fresh and gay as a Paris bonnet, new as tomorrow in looks and line.

As for the men —

Is a poll necessary to show how men go for the lift and swing of eight great Fireball cylinders?

Do you have to ask to find out that they prefer a car big and steady and sure-footed on any road as this Buick is?

Is there any man who wouldn't rather have the smoothness of four gentle coil springs, the quick, deep-throated answer of this star performer to his treadle-foot, the sense of perfect mastery of two generous tons that are ever "obediently yours"?

The answer's written on the order books of Buick dealers from coast to coast: This is America's most wanted automobile.

This is the one the whole family goes for — on style, on size, on room, on power, on performance — so why not join the trend?

We'll take your order any time you say — and give it equal consideration whether or not you have a car to trade.

goodnight sweet prince . . . . . and give me a ring sometime!

Wipe off that lipstick and take him window shopping, Little Princess. Let him view the diamonds displayed by Schwartz . . . not that we're advising that you use undue pressure on the gentleman . . . but just one good look and what could come more naturally than one of those rings on your all-important third-finger left-hand. He's found his happiness on your doorstep tonight . . . and when he recovers sufficiently from the blissful daze he's in . . . he can seal his happiness with a diamond-studded band from Schwartz. We know you've had the style of your engagement and wedding rings firmly in mind since Junior High days . . . and whether it's a solitaire you want, or a stone flanked by glittering diamonds . . . a portion of a carat or a rival to the Kohinoor . . . we have it here for you, at a price that will fit into the royal exchequer (the young man's budget, that is). At your royal command, we'll bring forth a jewel to grace the hand of a modern-day Princess . . . a ring to be cherished and grow in meaning through the years as your marriage grows . . . infinitely more priceless to the two of you than any of the world's more fabulous jewels could ever become. If you treasure a family stone of sentimental value, we will reset it for you in a lovely and distinctive modern mounting. Or, if your tastes run to something other than the traditional diamond (perhaps an emerald or a star sapphire) you will find it at SCHWARTZ, a Great Name in Jewelry in the Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON: MONDAY, JULY 14, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klattz

NAVY: The conference report on its budget would allow this department to recall layoff notices to between 1600 and 1700 employes at headquarters here. It will be taken up by both the House and the Senate this week and the report must be approved before the Navy acts.

However, the budget provides a reduction of about 25,000 civilian employes under what the department requested. Most of these jobs are outside this city. The department does not plan any wholesale layoff. The reduction will be gradual over several months.

UPWARD? Is Uncle Sam planning to boost the rents of girls and veterans in his dormitories here? There's a report that an increase will be ordered within a few months. However, officials of the Public Buildings Administration say the report is "pure rumor" at this time. They admit recommending rent increases twice in the last year, both of which were rejected.

Another report has the Government closing its dormitories in convenient West Potomac Park and moving its tenants across the river to Arlington Farms. Officials say this plan is under study and that it probably will be ordered if girls continue to leave the dorms.

LOYALTY: The Rees loyalty bill is on the docket for consideration by the House either today or tomorrow. It's sure to pass by a big vote. A bloc of Democrats spearheaded by Representatives Lyle of Texas, Miller of California, and Battle of Alabama will urge the House to approve the President's loyalty plan.

NOTES: Senator Pepper of Florida describes the loyalty plan as a "dangerous step . . ." The Government girls at Alcott Hall have raised about $1500, which will be divided among victims of the fire in that dormitory. The money will be sent out as soon as a full report is had from the injured . . . the Senate Appropriations Committee is on record for a reduction in the rate of pay for expert consultants from $50 to $70 a day to $35.

SEC: In approving $300,000 for Securities and Exchange, the Senate committee earmarked it for work on corporation statistics and financial data . . . Federal Trade was given $200,000 to expand its industrial reports program . . . The same committee approved of crop and livestock reports made by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, but it ordered a reduction of its economic investigations. BAE was given $500,000 more than its House-approved budget.

ALIENS: AFL's American Federation of Government Employes is attempting to get the Senate to put a rider on an appropriation bill that would deny Civil Service status to any alien. The proposal is aimed at aliens in the Panama Canal Zone where CIO's left-wing United Public Workers has many members.

A rider barring aliens was recommended by the House Appropriations Committee to the war civil functions bill. The UPWA, however, got Representative Marcantonio of New York to kill it on a point of order.

Incidentally, two congressional committees are now planning to investigate the Communist reports at the canal.

NOTES: Ten Senators have asked that a new Senate job be created—that of official Senate photographer at a $6500 salary. . . . The nomination of Burton N. Behling to be a member of the Federal Power Commission has been transferred to the Senate Commerce Committee after a hot behind-the-scenes fight . . . Ed McCormick has been appointed to the staff of the House Civil Service Committee. He formerly served the committee when it was under Democratic control.

PATENT OFFICE is accepting applications of college graduates in engineering, physics, technology and other technical subjects . . . STATE will downgrade a batch of employes in overseas information, intelligence, and several other units hit by recent lay-offs . . . CAPITOL HILL: Tomorrow will be a payless payday for legislative employes. The legislative appropriation bill is still hung up in Congress.

LIBRARY: A week from Saturday the papers of Abraham Lincoln will be opened at a ceremony at the Library of Congress. The contents of the papers won't be news to Arch Brown, an attorney in the General Accounting Office. Arch is the only living person who read, sealed, and stored the papers years ago at the request of Robert Todd Lincoln.

COMMERCE: It has abolished its efficient training and safety branch in its central personnel office. More economy . . . Secretary Harriman has definitely decided not to move Census' foreign trade unit to New York as demanded by House members . . . WORLD HEALTH: Now that the Senate has approved the participation of this country in the World Health Organization, several good tax-free jobs will open up.

Alibi Faces Check Today In Slaying of Court Clerk

Police Bring Suspect Back to Fairfax Jail; Vienna Carnival Man May Disprove Story

A carnival ticket raffler today will confront Fairfax County police's "A-1 and only" suspect in the faked-suicide murder of Norman L. Plank in a police effort to check the suspect's alibi.

The suspect, Alvah B. Martin, 29, of Taunton, Mass., was returned yesterday to Fairfax County jail. He was arrested Thursday at Kingston, N. Y., in a stolen automobile and held for questioning in the death of the 29-year-old clerk of the District Small Claims Court.

Plank was found shot to death on Sunday, July 6, in the basement recreation room of the home of a sister, Mrs. Nellie Burrer, Chesterbrook Woods, Fairfax County, with whom he lived. His death, first judged suicide, was later declared to be murder.

The unidentified seller of chances on an automobile will confront Martin this morning to determine whether or not the suspect was with Plank at a Vienna, Va., carnival last Saturday night—at a time when Martin said he was in Washington.

May Break Down Alibi

Fairfax County Police Chief Carl McIntosh said last night that if the ticket seller can definitely identify Martin, "then we have broken down Martin's alibi and can pin him down."

"Everything Martin has told us jibes with the information we have," Chief McIntosh said. "But we know very little about the last 28 hours of Plank's life, from the time Martin said he left him until the time Plank's body was found."

Chief McIntosh admitted that suicide "has not been ruled out entirely."

Swarthy, dapper and sporting a trim moustache, Martin was driven yesterday from Kingston, N. Y. to Fairfax, Va., in the automobile in which he was arrested. Report of theft of the auto, Mrs. Burrer's, led to the murder investigation.

Calls Him Only Suspect

The suspect was driven to Fairfax by Fairfax County Detective Chief Lieut. Henry Magarity and Detective Sergt. James M. Mahoney. Magarity described Martin as the police's "A-1 and only" suspect and said the investigation was "shaping up nicely."

Magarity said Martin told him he met Plank early Saturday morning, July 5, on a park bench in Lafayette Park. He admitted being Plank's house guest all day Saturday but said he left in the early evening in Mrs. Burrer's automobile "to get some whisky and a couple of girls."

The suspect said, however, that he decided not to get the girls and come back as planned, but to keep the automobile and the $14 Plank had given him to buy whisky.

Chief McIntosh said the carnival worker saw Plank's picture in the newspaper and recognized him as one of two men who attended the carnival with two women late Saturday night.

He told police "they came at a time when there was a lull in business and I got a good look at everybody."

Martin, according to Magarity, said he remained in Washington until Tuesday morning, when newspapers announced that a suicide verdict issued by Coroner Nelson Podolnick had been withdrawn and a murder investigation opened.

Police in Kingston said Martin knew a lookout had been broadcast for the automobile, but they did not know whether he was aware of the fact that he was wanted on suspicion of murder.

The suspect, who told police he is unemployed, a widower and the father of one child, is being held without bond on a charge of grand larceny of an automobile and for investigation of murder.

Capper, Oldest Senator at 82, Still Wants Suffrage in D. C.

Senator Arhur Capper (R., Kans.), 82 years old today and oldest man in the U. S. Senate, is as strong for District suffrage as he was 15 years ago when he introduced his well-known bill to enfranchise Washington citizens.

The long-time member of the District Committee has served in the Senate continuously since March 4, 1919, longer than any other member except Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), who is one of his best friends.

In fact, the veteran Democrat and the veteran Republican have lived in the same hotel, the Mayflower, more than 20 years and have breakfast together every morning.

Disagreed on Lilienthal

"Though we differ politically," Senator Capper said yesterday during an interview in his suite, "we have always been fine friends ever since I've been here in Washington."

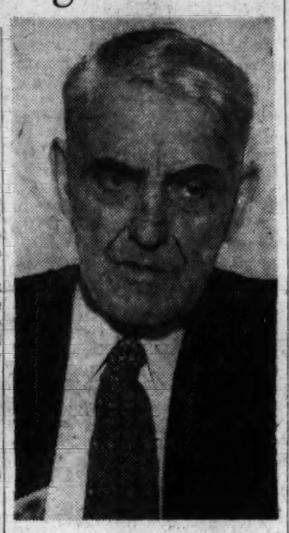
Sometimes, he said, they leave for Capitol Hill after a friendly breakfast and debate against each other in the Senate—as during the confirmation fight over David E. Lilienthal's appointment to the Atomic Energy Commission. Capper couldn't agree with McKellar's opposition campaign.

While Senator Capper thinks the District suffrage possibilities are "getting more encouraging," he would not hazard a guess as to when D. C. citizens will actually be casting their ballots.

Newspapers Unanimous

"One encouraging phase is the attitude of the newspapers here, with everyone of the four in favor of the vote," he said yesterday. "And I believe the citizens are more strongly united on the issue than ever before," he added. He urged the people of Washington to "keep up the fight" and promised them continued backing.

The Topeka publisher, a former Kansas Governor and New York City reporter as well, hasn't missed a working day at the Capitol because of ill health except for an appendicitis operation 10 years ago.



SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER, Kansas Republican, tomorrow will observe his 82d birthday at a luncheon in his honor at the Congressional dining room in the Capitol. He is shown reading cards in his room at the Mayflower yesterday

He expects to spend most of today in his Senate seat and at his Senate office and will be the guest of the Northwest Citizens Association at a birthday luncheon in the Capitol. Several Senators and the entire Kansas congressional delegation have been invited.

This honor reflects his interest in District affairs. Besides the District Committee, of which he has been chairman, his activities at present include chairmanship of the Agriculture Committee and ranking majority member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Washington Grove Picks McCathran Again for Mayor

Mayor Irving L. McCathran, who has held the post since incorporation of the town 10 years ago, has been reelected mayor of Washington Grove, Md.

McCathran

Norman C. Healy and Edward E. Hogan were elected members of the town council to succeed Francis L. L. Hiller, who declined renomination, and Robert S. Billhimer, who has moved to Florida. A total of 100 ballots were cast in the election Saturday night.

Washington Grove, established in 1874 by the Washington Grove Camp Meeting Association of the District of Columbia and Maryland, was operated by a board of trustees until its incorporation 10 years ago. Hiller has served as town clerk since before the incorporation.

Family on Outing Hears Engine, Sees Own House Afire

A Sunday outing turned into a tragedy yesterday for John A. Swinson, his wife, and five children when a fire swept their two-story, six-room house at 610 Morton st. nw.

Not long after leaving home in the early afternoon to visit neighbors, they noticed fire engines speeding to a nearby fire. Upon running to the fire scene, they found that the blaze had enveloped their home.

Five fire engine companies answered the alarm, sent in at 2:28 p. m. The first floor was destroyed, and part of the second, together with most of the family clothing and furniture.

Firemen said that a kersene cooking stove, apparently left burning when the family departed, had exploded.

Camp Henry Buildings To Be Used as Hospital

Richmond, Va., July 13 (AP).—The War Assets Administration today transferred seven buildings and 77 acres of land at Camp Patrick Henry to Warwick County for use as a tubercular and chronic disease hospital.

The transfer gives the residents of Warwick County, Elizabeth City County, York County and the cities of Hampton, Newport News and Phoebus the use of the former naval medical center without charge.

Tompkins Gets Comptroller Post At Va. College

Richmond, Va., July 12 (AP).—Major General William F. Tompkins, United States Army, retired, today was named to the new position of comptroller of the Medical College of Virginia, effective about September 1.

Tompkins

Dr. William T. Sanger, college president, said in announcing the appointment that the position was created to meet the requirements of the institution due to its expansion and growth.

The comptroller, Dr. Sanger said, will have charge of budget control and coordination of the financial operations of the entire institution, working closely with the president, other officers of the college and hospital and the board of visitors. General Tompkins is a native of Richmond.

Virginia GOP Group to Meet

Roanoke, Va., July 13 (AP).—The Republican State Policy Committee will assemble here Friday to complete the draft of its recommendations embodying a proposed platform dealing with State issues for House and Senate candidates, and will submit the report to the State Central Committee on Saturday.

State Chairman Robert H. Woods of Pearisburg said the policy committee would meet at 3 p. m. at Hotel Roanoke and the State Central Committee is slated to receive the report at 11 a. m. Saturday.

Manley Accepts Call To Charles Town

Charles Town, W. Va., July 13.—The Rev. Jack H. Manley of Chester, Va., has accepted a call to the pastorate of First Baptist Church here and will arrive August 1 to begin his duties, it was announced today.

He is a recent graduate of the Union Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and has been working toward a master's degree at Yale Theological Seminary. He will succeed the Rev. Denver J. Davis, who resigned to accept a call to Princeton, W. Va.

Youth, Marriage Only Hours Away, Dies in Va. Crash

Rural Retreat, Va., July 13 (AP).—A Wythe County youth was killed in a highway accident near here yesterday a few hours before he was to have been married.

He was David Samuel Matney, 22, driver of a pickup truck that was wrecked at St. Paul's Church near his home. Matney was thrown out of the machine and pinned underneath when it overturned. He died of a broken neck about 30 minutes later.

Matney was to have been married at 5 p. m. yesterday to Miss Edna Stowers of the St. Paul's Church community.

Passengers in the truck with Matney, Mr. and Mrs. Byman Spencer and their baby, were not hurt.

Reserve Pilot Dies In Crash Near Home

Lehighton, Pa., July 13 (U.P.).—An Army Reserve officer-pilot crashed to his death this afternoon barely 100 yards from his parents' Carbon County home.

Officials at the Reading (Pa.) Air Base said the pilot was First Lieut. John W. Heller of Weissport, Pa., about 6 miles from here.

Wet Checks May Yield Theft Clew

$9000 Worth Found On Rooftop to Be Tested for Lead To Missing Deposit

Laboratory examination of $9000 worth of checks found on an Alexandria rooftop Saturday may give police their first clews in the disappearance of a $26,000 bank deposit, which vanished mysteriously nearly a month ago.

Lieut. Russell A. Hawes, chief of the Alexandria Detective Bureau, said yesterday the FBI would be asked to analyze the checks for any evidence of fingerprints, which would provide the first real "break" in the case since the loss was reported on June 24.

Hawes said the checks had been identified as part of the deposit that the J. C. Penney Co. said was placed in a night depository of the First National Bank by three of its most trusted employes. The bank reported the funds were not found among deposits in the night vault when it was opened the following morning.

Although the checks were heavily rain-soaked and apparently had been on the roof of 405 Queen st. since the day of the theft, Lieutenant Hawes said he believed fingerprints would show up if they actually had been handled by the thief. He expressed doubt, however, that any prints would be found on a canvas money bag that was found with the checks.

The checks and the money bag, which had been slashed open, were found by Welton Arrington of 403 Queen st., when he climbed atop his own roof, next door, to clean out a clogged rainspout. No trace, however, has been found of the $17,000 in cash that officials of the Penney store said was included in the deposit.

Although they had gone undiscovered for nearly four weeks, both the money bag and the checks were clearly visible from the street, according to police. Lieutenant Hawes said the bag had been thrown from the street to the roof of the Queen st. house, which is about three blocks from the bank.

Loss of the funds was reported by the bank when police were called into the case after insurance investigators failed to make any headway in a five-day probe of the disappearance. Until the money bags and checks were found, police admitted they were entirely without clews.

Wivell Freed From Hospital To Stand Trial

Frederick, Md., July 13 (AP).—James Francis Wivell, 23, of Emmitsburg, Md., yesterday was released from Spring Grove State Hospital to stand trial on a charge of murder in the death of Morris Sheeley.

Wivell was arrested and charged with murder shortly after Sheeley, also of Emmitsburg, was found bludgeoned to death last year in a small stream near Emmitsburg.

Wivell was confined to the hospital last December 20 after Dr. George H. Prescott, chairman of the Board of Mental Hygiene, told the court Wivell was insane at that time, and expressed the opinion that the defendant might be able to stand trial at a future date.

Dr. Silas W. Weltner, superintendent of the hospital, last week advised the court the hospital staff had examined Wivell July 7, "at which time he did not reveal any psychotic symptoms." Weltner said Wivell still professed amnesia for the alleged crime."

Wivell's attorney, E. Austin James, said he would seek an immediate trial for his client, who was placed in the custody of States Attorney Edwin F. Nikirk upon his release from the hospital. James said his client would enter a plea of innocent by reason of insanity.

FSA Today Opens School on Finding Jobs for Blind

Representatives from 18 States will start a two-week training course here today in ways to help blind persons get jobs.

The Federal Security Agency announced that employment specialists from State vocational rehabilitation agencies would receive classroom instruction and also observe blind operators at work with vending stands in the District of Columbia.

Subjects to be covered include salesmanship, merchandising, design and layout of equipment, advertising and public relations, and the legal basis for Federal-State vocational rehabilitation programs.

Michael J. Shortley, director of the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation of FSA, said the State representatives would be better equipped after the course to prepare the blind for jobs.

Heart Attack Fatal During Suicide Attempt

Point Pleasant, W. Va., July 13 (AP).—Coroner R. W. Eshenaur said today that Victor Bradshaw, 33, died of a heart attack while attempting suicide.

His body was discovered last night with a knife wound in the chest and the knife beside the body. Eshenaur said the wound was not deep enough to reach the heart, and that Bradshaw died of a heart attack trying to kill himself.

Potomac Dragged for Boy, 16, As Auto, Clothes Are Found

Police and volunteer firemen last night were dragging the Potomac River near Great Falls, Md., for 16-year-old Edward B. Barrett, 3809 Jenifer st. nw., believed drowned while swimming Saturday.

Park Police yesterday found his clothing about 30 feet from the edge of the river, a short distance below Lock 17, on the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. A social security card in a pocket of the clothing was made out to young Barrett.

The clothing apparently had been placed there prior to the heavy rain Saturday night, police said. An automobile belonging to the boy's father, Russell F. Barrett, an attorney, with offices at 2002 M st. nw., was found later by police on Great Falls rd.

The boy's father said the youth was only a "fair" swimmer.

Sergt. Marion Dayhoff of Montgomery County police said there was little hope for finding the body if the boy drowned. The river is 4 or 5 feet above flood stage and the current is swift at that point. Members of the Glen Echo Fire Department rescue unit are participating in the search.

Young Barrett, a Western High School student, had been attending summer school classes at McKinley Technical High School. He overslept Saturday morning, but told his family he would try to get to his second class. Apparently he went swimming instead, police said.

Members of the family said the spot near where the clothing was found was a favorite swimming hole for the youth.

There are three other children in the family, aged 9, 17 and 18 years.

Hearings Set For Five Days On Home Rule

Hearings on various aspects of District home rule are to be held this week before the House Subcommittee on District Organization and Home Rule.

Today members of the subcommittee will hear three witnesses discuss the administration of independent agencies, boards and commissions of the District government. Scheduled to appear are Dr. Robert A. Maurer, vice president of the Board of Education; Edgar Morris, chairman of the Board of Public Welfare; and Harry S. Wender, chairman of the Recreation Board.

Tomorrow the question of the legal and judicial division of responsibility between Federal and District interests will be discussed before subcommittee members by Douglas W. McGregor, assistant to the Attorney General; and Judges Bolitha J. Laws, Harold M. Stephens and George P. Barse.

On Wednesday, the full subcommittee will hear the type of local government the District needs discussed by Lawrence F. Schmeckebier, authority on District affairs, and Erwin W. Silverman, representing the Bureau of Territorial and Insular Possessions of the Interior Department.

On Thursday, two sections of the subcommittee will hear two phases of the problem discussed.

Appearing to discuss fiscal control and organization of the government will be Walter L. Fowler, District budget officer; Arthur R. Pilkerton, District auditor; Guy W. Pearson, District tax collector; Edward A. Dent, District assessor, and Roland M. Brennan, purchasing officer.

The division between legal and judicial responsibility of Federal and District interests will be discussed by George M. Fay, United States attorney, and Vernon West, District corporation counsel.

On Friday, the full subcommittee will hear home rule discussed by Wilbur Finch, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations and Kenneth P. Armstrong, representing the Central Suffrage Committee.

Men of Oldest Parish Meet At Breakfast

Men of the King George Parish—"mother" Episcopal parish of Washington—held their first annual communion and breakfast yesterday.

The Rev. Robert F. Henry, parish rector, celebrated the communion in the parish church of St. Barnabas' at Oxon Hill, Md. He presided at the breakfast afterward. Men attended from St. Barnabas' and St. John's, Broad Creek, both churches of the King George Parish.

The Rev. Henry challenged the men to pool their efforts toward organizing a men's club this fall. Carlton Pyles was breakfast chairman. One of the oldest Episcopal parishes in America, King George Parish was designated as the original Washington Parish in 1692 by the Maryland Legislature. The Episcopal Church here was then under the Church of England. St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish, organized in 1712, and St. John's Church, Georgetown, are "daughter" parishes of King George. St. Paul's is known as the "mother" parish of the District of Columbia.

Sprankle Accused Of Murder in Hagerstown Death

Hagerstown, Md., July 13 (AP).—Police today charged Walter Spankle, 47, with murder in the hickory club beating of Frederick Earl Andrews, 41.

Police said Andrews was found unconscious Saturday night in the frame dwelling of Charles W. Langenstein by officers who responded to a telephone call from a neighbor complaining of a disturbance.

Andrews died at midnight, at Washington County Hospital, where authorities said he had suffered 11 fractures of the skull.

Police said he had been beaten with a hickory club found in the Langenstein home. Detective Sergt. Wayne Sellman said Spankle was found bending over Andrews' unconscious form by police when they arrived to investigate the complaint.

Five Injured In Traffic; Hit-Run Deat Suspect Held

Coroner Schedules Inquest Wednesday In Case of Woman Struck by Auto

Five persons were hurt in traffic accidents in the District yesterday, one of them seriously.

Meanwhile police announced the arrest of George Edward Brent, as a suspect in the hit-run death June 25 of Edwin M. Jett, a retired policeman. The coroner's office said an inquest will be held Wednesday in the death of Mrs. Annie Humphries, who was struck by a car July 1.

Brent's arrest, police said, came as the result of a telephone tip.

Jett was struck as he was walking across Nichols ave. at W. st. se. on July 7 by a car which failed to stop.

Brent was charged with leaving the scene of an accident after a collision involving personal injury, manslaughter, and a technical charge of "hold for the coroner."

Two Are Injured

Atlee Austin, 30, of 1318 35th st. nw., was in Georgetown Hospital in serious condition last night after he and another pedestrian were hit by a truck, which police said was driven by Jack Otis Anderson.

Anderson, 20, of RFD No. 2, Baileys Crossroads, a., according to police, had been involved in another collision before his pickup truck allegedly struck two pedestrians.

In the first accident shortly before midnight Saturday, he had collided with a car driven by Fred S. Roberts, 48, of Fairfax, Va., at 29th and M sts. nw., police said. A passenger in Anderson's car, James R. Kelly, 23, of 502 Duke st., Alexandria, received scalp lacerations when his head went through the car windshield.

Rushes to Hospital

Anderson left the scene of the accident, police said he told them, to rush Kelly to the hospital.

While en route to Georgetown Hospital, just past the intersection of 35th and N sts. nw., Anderson's truck struck the two pedestrians, Austin and Walter L. Saylor, 29, of 5144 Fulton st. nw.

Saylor received bruises to the right shoulder, right leg and hips. He was released from Georgetown Hospital after treatment.

Austin's injuries included fracture of the right leg, skull fracture and lacerations of the face and knees.

Released on Bail

According to police, after the second accident, Anderson proceeded for approximately two blocks before he stopped his car, and pushed Kelly out. Kelly went to Georgetown Hospital on foot, was treated for scalp lacerations and released.

Anderson was charged with leaving the scene of an accident after a collision involving personal injury and reckless driving. He was released on $1300 bail.

In another accident, two motorcyclists were injured when their cycle struck a barricade in the 4000 block of Alabama ave. se. early yesterday morning. Miss Josephine Beasley, 31, of 45 T st. nw., was admitted to Casualty Hospital for treatment of a possible fractured skull, scalp lacerations and bruises to the right temple.

Motorcyclist Treated

George F. Niedomanski, 32, of 5303 W st. se., driver of the motorcycle, was treated at the hospital for abrasions of the right arm and forehead and released.

An inquest has been set for Wednesday morning at 11:30 into the death of Mrs. Annie Humphries, 65, of 2606 Nichols ave. se., who was injured in a traffic accident July 1.

Mrs. Humphries died early Saturday morning at Casualty Hospital. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said that an autopsy showed her death was due to a fractured pelvis and a blood clot.

John Goodloe, 28, of 4304 Quarles st. ne., driver of the car which struck Mrs. Humphries, has been charged with failure to yield the right of way to a pedestrian. He was released yesterday in custody of his attorney.

County Police Asked to Find Mother of Two

Montgomery County Police yesterday were asked to look for Mrs. Mary Irene Finneyfrock, 32, of Near Laytonsville, Md., who disappeared Friday.

Finnerfrock

Mrs. Finneyfrock, mother of two children, left her place of employment at the Cancer Institute near Bethesda, Md., about 10:30 a. m. Friday, her husband, George Finneyfrock, told county police at Rockville, Md. She has not been heard from since then, he said.

The husband said there had been no quarrel and that he could not think of any reason why his wife should leave home. He feared she might have been injured in an accident or become ill.

In Maryland and Virginia

Tourists and Scenery Fret Adjoining States

Methods of improving scenic conditions and tourist facilities along Maryland and Virginia highways are to be discussed in Richmond, Va., and Baltimore, Md., within the next two weeks.

A public hearing on what may be done by the State to achieve more effective inspection of tourist establishments in Virginia will be held in Richmond Wednesday by the Hagood committee of the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council.

All persons interested in the question of improved regulation of tourist camps, hotels, restaurants, filling stations and other establishments catering to the tourist trade have been invited to testify. The hearing starts at 10 a. m. Wednesday in the Senate chamber of the Capitol.

The VALC was directed by resolution of the 1946 General Assembly to make a "thorough study" of the tourist facility situation. The assembly noted there are "many establishments" that are "unsanitary, unattractive and in some instances actually unfit for use."

Representatives of the Confederation of Western Maryland Communities, Inc., will meet in Baltimore with the State Roads Commission July 27 to discuss methods of improving scenic conditions along the Hagerstown-Frederick highway.

James H. Gambrill, jr., of Frederick, president of the confederation, suggested the meeting to see what could be done about protecting the highway before "it is loaded with signs and hot dog stands."

Lightning Kills 2 Boys

Sykesville, Md., July 13 (AP).—Dr. James T. Marsh, Carroll County medical examiner, announced today that two boys had been killed by lightning.

Dr. Marsh's verdict followed an examination of the bodies of Fred, 14, and George, 8, sons of Dr. Witold Winiarz of Springfield State Hospital here.

The boys were found last night on the hospital grounds after a severe thunderstorm. Hospital Superintendent Kenneth Jones said Fred had apparently been pulling his brother in a small metal wagon when the lightning struck.

Free Heads School Board

Manassas, Va., July 13.—N. N. Free, Nokesville, was reelected chairman of the Prince William County School Board at the annual meeting held here this week. Other officers reelected include: Percival A. Lewis, vice chairman; Mrs. Marion W. Dickens, clerk, and Superintendent of Schools R. Worth Peters, deputy clerk. The board announced that there are approximately 18 teaching vacancies in the county schools.

New Swimming Classes

Orange, Va., July 13.—Swimming classes sponsored by the Orange County Chapter of the American Red Cross will begin tomorrow with Water Safety Instructors William Hunter Spencer and Gerald K. Seymour of Gordonsville and Edmund Walke, jr., of Orange in charge of the classes. The instructors recently completed an intensive course at an American Red Cross aquatic school.

Present enrollment of the school is 70. Classes will be conducted from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. at Isner's Swimming Pool, near Culpeper. A bus will leave from the Orange High School at 10:30 each morning.

Hospital Work Resumed

Charles Town, W. Va., July 13.—Work on construction of a new $300,000 hospital here has been resumed following arrangement for a loan of $50,000 from local banks by the board of management. Work has been held up since April by lack of funds.

The loan was suggested by R. J. Funkhouser, general chairman of the building committee, who offered to pay any difference between that amount and contributions which might come in for the fund during the one-year period of the loan.

Md. Librarian to Retire

Salisbury, Md., July 13 (AP).—Mrs. S. King White, head librarian of the Wicomico County free library for 24 years, has announced plans to retire after July 31.

Mrs. White, the wife of a weekly newspaper editor, became associated with the library when it was housed in an abandoned bus terminal and she has seen it moved to five new locations since then.

"I feel like I'm leaving a child," she said, "I've cared for it so long." Her successor will be Miss Martha Morris of Newark, Del.

New Post for Dr. Johnson

IT'S CHRISTMAS IN JULY—Dr. Clarence W. Cranford is shown conducting his sixth annual midsummer Christmas service at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., to raise funds for home and foreign mission projects. Children near tree are Judith Eleen, 3½ (upper) and Sharon Ann, 4½, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baldwin, 3419 Oakwood terrace nw.

A stranger dropping into Calvary Baptist Church yesterday probably thought the heat had him. For the congregation was singing Christmas carols and the platform was adorned with a Christmas tree.

It was the sixth annual Christmas-in-July service, at which $995.57 was raised to furnish a room in the new George Washington University Hospital. The room will honor the late Dr. William Allen Wilbur, for 40 years a faculty member of George Washington University and a member of Calvary Church.

In previous years, the collections were used to buy gifts that were shipped in midsummer to reach distant missionary posts by Christmas.

Among the selections the 1500 worshipers sang yesterday were "O Come All Ye Faithful"; "Angels We Have Heard on High," and "As With Gladness Men of Old." The choir sang two anthems—"The Holly and the Ivy" and "Sing We All Noel."

Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, the pastor, preached on "Christmas in Reverse" while his perspiring parishioners mopped their brows and fanned.

The clergyman, who patterned the Christmas-in-July service after a project he started in previous pulpits in Philadelphia and Richmond, said that faith in God would help mankind overcome a sense of guilt, a sense of the meaninglessness of life and a sense of the fear of death.

Before the worship service, war veterans of the Vaughn Men's Bible Class presented an American flag to the class at exercises in the classroom.

Western Culture Can't Last Without Church, Justice Says

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Justice Matthew F. McGuire yesterday warned that our western culture cannot survive if "deprived of its religious origin and foundation."

McGuire

Speaking on NBC's "Catholic Hour" on the theme of "Our American Way," the Associate Justice of the United States District Court said our spiritual foundations have been attacked by science, art and literature "with an almost satanic fury." He added:

"This has had its logical and frightful culmination in Europe and the end is not yet—while here in America there are those, deliberately or otherwise, who would lead us along the same terrible road.

"Yet we Americans know that our American democracy and way of life is predicated on this very foundation. It is a way of life, for that reason, unique both in function and origin and as has been previously said, it has been set forth as a confession of fundamental principle in our own Declaration of Independence."

"The Catholic Hour" is sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Men. Justice McGuire's broadcast was second in a series.

Of Law and Religion

The relationship between law and religion was stressed by the Rev. William F. Creighton, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Norwood Parish, Wisconsin ave. and Bradley lane, Bethesda.

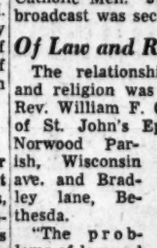
Creighton

"The problems of law and liberty of Compulsion and freedom concern us vitally today," said the Rev. Creighton. Christ's conception of life was as of life lived on beyond any area in which legalism or compulsion could have any meaning, in an area in which there are no laws and cannot be any.

"Spiritual values can never be subject to law. No man can be forced to be pure in heart or to love God or to love even his neighbor. St. Augustine said, 'Love God and do as you please.' And loving God does result in the only sort of life that the world can admire, and that yet exceeds the righteousness of the world. It allows men to be free, to do as they please. Christians always have the freedom to go the second mile. The first mile may be required by law. Beyond that lies freedom."

Church Must Rebuild

Representative A. Leonard Allen (D., La.), prominent Baptist layman, last night discussed the spiritual, political, economic and social impact of the war upon America and said the church has the privilege and obligation of meeting such an impact.



Allen

Addressing the D. C. Baptist Training Union Summer Assembly at Wabanna, Edgewater, Md., the Congressman declared:

"The church has the greatest opportunity now that it has ever had in bringing about a restoration of faith in men, faith in the Nation, faith in God and faith in all that is worth while in our land.

"We are in a period of readjustment, after four years of world-shattering events, and the church today is the one great moral and spiritual force that has the message humanity needs most. The church today faces its greatest task in helping to rebuild a war-torn world and restoring our spiritual foundations."

Slanderers Admonished

"Slanderous" use of the tongue was deplored by the Rev. Franklin B. Gillespie, pastor of Lewinsville (Va.) Presbyterian Church and president of the Fairfax County Council of Religious Education.

Gillespie

In a sermon that he has repeated annually since 1941 at the request of his parishioners, the Rev. Mr. Gillespie stated:

"There is a certain delight people seem to get in defaming the character of others. They love to attract attention to themselves by spreading falsehoods about others. Also, a person's reputation is hurt because the truth is distorted or the whole truth is not told. We forget all about the good things a person has done, and attract attention to ourselves by telling of that once when he slipped." "The Use of the Tonge" was the Rev. Mr. Gillespie's theme. In May he finished his term of office as president of the Washington City Presbytery.

More Maturity Urged

The Rev. William Nesbit Vincent, pastor of Eastern Presbyterian Church and former Navy chaplain, yesterday urged "more maturity in religious thinking and planning of religious programs."

"So many things in the field of religion today are utterly childish," the minister said at open-air services in Lincoln Park, 12th and East Capitol sts.

Mr. Vincent said one of the greatest needs today is for mankind to regain its sense of self-respect.

The services were sponsored by the Central YMCA and churches of Northeast and Southeast Washington. Worshippers at the service signed a "get well" card to be mailed George Myers, the song leader for the Lincoln Park services, and who is ill in Garfield Hospital.

Armour's Dog Missing

Assistant Secretary of State Norman Armour yesterday asked police to look for "Ko Ko," his 21-month-old Pekinese dog. "Ko Ko" is black with a white face, has been missing from home, 2840 Woodley dr. nw., since Friday night, Armour said. The dog was wearing a red collar.

Correction

The deadline for filing District personal property tax returns is July 31, rather than August 31, as was erroneously reported in The Post yesterday.

The first half of the tax must be paid during September while the second half is due before the end of March, 1948.

Persons who wait until after the July 31 deadline to file returns will be liable to a 20 per cent penalty increase in the taxable value of the property. Those who fail to make first payment by September 30 also face a 1 per cent penalty for each month the tax is left unpaid.

Meet Wednesday

Methodists Plan Church Union in Md.

Plans for a merger of several southern Maryland Methodist churches were announced yesterday by the building committee of La Plata Methodist Church.

Formal plans for the merger of the La Plata parishes, the Bethel Church at Budds Creek, St. Marys County and the Dentsville churches will be discussed at a mass meeting July 16, at 8 p. m., at the La Plata Church.

Dr. Horace E. Cromer, pastor of McKendree Methodist Church, Washington, and former superintendent of the Washington East Methodist District, will address the meeting. Dr. Fred C. Reynolds, Dr. Cromer's successor as East District superintendent, will join with Justin Lawrie, choir director of Foundry Methodist Church, Washington, in musical selections.

The building project for the combined congregation, it was stated, will include a modern sanctuary, educational structure and recreational hall.

Warren L. Hunter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 13 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Warren L. Hunter, 76-year-old merchant and farmer, who died Saturday in a Martinsburg hospital, will be held Tuesday morning at his home in Duffields.

A native and lifelong resident of Jefferson County, Mr. Hunter was the son of the late Capt. James H. L. Hunter and Mary Ellen Wright Hunter. Captain Hunter led the Duffields company in the Confederate Army.

Mr. Hunter was the last of his immediate family. A brother, Samuel, died several years ago.

He was a member and elder at the Presbyterian Church in Duffields and its treasurer for the past 25 years. He conducted his store until two days before being taken to the hospital.

Mr. Hunter leaves his wife, the former Miss Elizabeth Osbourne, of this county; a son, James O. Hunter, at home; two daughters, Miss Jane Hunter, librarian at Hedgesville High School, and Miss Christine Hunter, secretary in the office of the Jefferson County Board of Education here.

Mrs. Susan L. Walsh

The death of Mrs. Susan LeGrow Walsh, wife of the late Brig. Gen. Robert D. Walsh and mother of Maj. Gen. Robert L. Walsh, was disclosed here yesterday. Mrs. Walsh died July 8 in Berkley, Calif.

Major General Walsh, 1345 30th st. nw., is stationed in Berlin, Germany, where he is director of intelligence of the European command.

Mrs. Walsh is survived by her son, two grandchildren, Suzanne and Robert L. Walker, jr., Berlin, Germany; a sister Mrs. John S. Winn, Berkley, Calif.; and a brother, Frederick S. LeGrow, Athena, Oreg.

In Memoriam

ROLAND, DON LYNN. In sad but loving memory of our dear baby son, DON LYNN ROLAND, who departed this life one year ago today, July 14, 1946, at the age of thirteen months.

Some may think we are not lonely
When at times they see us smile,
But little do they know the heartache
We suffer all the while.

The blow was hard, the shock severe,
We little thought that death was near;
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.

Nothing but memories as we journey on
Longing for a smile of a loved one gone,
No one knows the depth of our regret,
But we remember when others forget.
DEVOTED MOTHER AND DADDY.

ROLAND, DON LYNN. In loving memory of my baby brother, LYNN, who departed this life one year ago today, July 14, 1946.

You are not forgotten, dear brother,
Nor will you ever be;
As long as life and memory last
I will always remember you.
Devoted brother,
LARRY.

E. A. Green, D. C. Official, Dies in Sunday School Class

E. Allen Green, business manager and chief executive assistant of the District Department of Corrections, died yesterday in a Methodist Sunday School class at Occoquan, Va.

Green

He was teacher of the class, which was meeting in Hall's funeral home across the street from Occoquan Methodist Church. He was 51 years old.

A son, Barnard Green, said his father was rising with class members to join other classes in the church when he slumped back into a chair.

Dr. F. R. Klune of Lorton, Va., and Dr. B. F. Phillips of Woodbridge, Va., pronounced him dead at 11:40 a. m. Death was attributed to coronary thrombosis.

Became Guard in 1914

Mr. Green had been with District penal institutions since October 14, 1914, when he became a guard at the Occoquan workhouse. He became a stenographer in 1917, a garage mechanic in 1920, and a few years later chief mechanical superintendent.

In June, 1937, he was named superintendent of industries for penal institutions. He was made business manager in February, 1938. During the war, from May, 1942, to June, 1944, he was superintendent of the District jail, serving in a war-service status.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Kathryn Barnard Green, whose father, the late M. M. Barnard, was superintendent of prisons for many years here; the son, Barnard; two daughters, Misses Mary Ann and Marjorie Green, all of Occoquan; and a sister, Miss Marjorie M. Green of San Francisco.

Dr. Klune, his personal physician, said he had been under a doctor's care for several months.

A native of Winchester, Va., Mr. Green was educated in District schools and spent nearly all his life in the Washington area. He was a first sergeant in the American Expeditionary Force in France during World War I and was a member of the Lorton Post, American Legion.

He also was active in the Masons and Odd Fellows. He was a member of the Occoquan Lodge No. 310, AF&AM, of which he was a past master. He was a past deputy district grand master of the order's District No. 1 of Virginia. He was a charter member of the Woodbridge Kiwanis Club.

He was a trustee of the Occoquan Methodist Church and had taught the men's Bible class there for many years. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Died

SAUTER, CORA E. On Sunday, July 13, 1947, CORA E. SAUTER, sister of Mrs. Mylo Dixon and Miss Emily E. Sauter. Friends may call at the Lee funeral home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne., where services will be held on Wednesday, July 16, at 11 a. m. Interment Cedar Hill Cemetery

Mary Haworth's Mail

After Two Years of Deep Mourning, Young Widow Speaks of Marrying Again; But Parents-in-Law Threaten Court Fight for Her Child if She Does

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am writing this on behalf of a friend. She is a war widow with one child. She was married only a few months when her husband was sent overseas and killed in action shortly after.

For two years my friend went nowhere. She has taken excellent care of her child, whom she adores. In fact, the baby was her sole interest in life until a few months ago, when she met a nice boy through some of our mutual friends and started going around with him.

Now he wants to marry her and she has written her in-laws to this effect. In reply, they accused her of being unfaithful to her husband's memory and have even threatened to start court action to prove her an unfit mother and take the child from her.

Threat Greatly Frightens Widow

THE GIRL is terribly upset. She goes around fearing her own shadow. She is terrified of losing her baby. Now I ask you: Is there a lawyer anywhere who would take the case of these neurotic, selfish, evil-thinking in-laws?. And who could do any damage to the girl?

We (her friends) have told her we think these people are merely trying to frighten her or force her to hand over the baby, either for fear of losing the young man, or from sheer dread of the gory publicity of a court scandal. Don't you think we are right? And if so, how can she silence her in-laws' threats? E. P.

No Necessity To Be Worried

DEAR E. P.: Assuming your statement of the case is substantially accurate, the girl's panicky reaction to her in-laws' intimidating attitude is foolish and unfounded. Apparently she is a timid soul, beaten down by circumstances, with little worldly savvy, due to her narrow existence.

Perhaps her in-laws realize this and are trying to take advantage of it, to tie her child to their apronstrings. But of course they haven't a leg to stand on in huffing at her, and she has no cause to blanch at their fist-shaking, if her conduct as widow and mother has always been above reproach.

I've reviewed your letter with a lawyer, who asks: "What's in the law to prevent a widow's having beaus, going out, falling in love or marrying again?" He pointed out that the law looks with favor on marriage, encourages it, recognizes it as a benefit to society—hence would see nothing prejudicial to the mother's natural claim to guardianship of her child in the fact that she wants, or is about, to marry again.

Also he said, "In the eyes of the law, the natural parent is the rightful custodian of a child. To dispossess the natural parent of this right, it is necessary to establish substantial, indisputable, eye-witness proof that the parent is callously immoral and/or habitually neglectful of the child."

In-Laws Deserve Outright Rebuke

THUS if the girl is respected as an exemplary mother by loyal friends familiar with her daily routine for years, certainly her in-laws' malevolence (brewed at a distance) could never prevail against her.

However, the rank injustice, indeed the slanderous import of their verbal assault on her character and peace of mind calls for straight-arm rebuke, as does their gross, ignorant presumption that they, as in-laws, have a vested right per se to try to restrain her from establishing a new lien on life—for self and son—that leaves them out.

The proper way to deal this rebuke is for the girl to refer her distress to legal counsel, along with documentary evidence of her in-laws' menacing charges and threats, and have such counsel take appropriate steps to silence them.

In all probability, she would hear no more of such bluster if her counsel were to suavely challenge their attitude in a businesslike letter on behalf of his client. As to whether any lawyer would take their crackpot case, I put that question to my consultant, who replied: "Well, who knows? Sometimes lawyers take very peculiar clients—to keep them straight!" M. H.

Several Vacation Don'ts

Don't go swimming where there are no life guards. Don't dive in unknown waters; you might strike a rock. Don't swim out beyond your depth unless you are a strong swimmer. Don't try to get a "good sunburn all in one day"; a half hour in the hot sun is plenty until the skin is over the red stage and is browned.

Fear Will Make Your Children Subservient

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

HAPPY children have enough courage and self-confidence to meet the experiences of daily living and not be bowled over by them.

To make a child happy he has to have a sense of his success, instead of constantly being faced with his failures.

Mrs. J. Q. wants to know if her child could have been born afraid and without confidence? "The kindergarten teacher says he seems so pent up and that if she asks him to do anything he says he can't. He cries if the teacher leaves the room and one day he ran home crying because she left for a time. He goes to school with a small friend and that helps him some.

Early Impression Lasts

"HERE is his background. One day at three years of age he got up and did not find us. He got hysterical even though there were a lot of neighbors to look out for him.

"At four years he had to have penicillin and stay at the hospital. This was a shock as his father had scared him of the hospital, threatening him when he was bad.

"His father teases him quite a bit, scares him and likes to play jokes on him. He was born into a house of nerves and confusion when we lived with in-laws. Now we live alone but on a busy street where I have to be with him constantly. It worries me that he is so fearful."

You needn't go back to his birth to account for his timidity, you've spent all these years building it into him. Traits of any kind are the result of enrivonment. The boy's environment has given him little opportunity to be courageous or confident.

Threats are intended to frighten the child. In this case they have done their work so well that now you are disturbed at the result.

Needs Praise

YOUR boy needs lots of love.

He needs to hear your praise of each little thing he does and an emphasis that he has been successful. Then he will not fear to try new things.

You should explain about sickness and hospitals, doctors and nurses to him. His father should quell his childish desire to play jokes until the child is of an age to understand them and not be terrified by them. Courage and confidence are the result of living belief in his own capacities. You in a way which bolsters the child's have fallen down sadly on his education for living.

Fully Packed Suffer More During Summer

By Ida Jean Kain

There's no doubt about it, fat folks feel the heat more. That solid packing of fat under the skin acts as insulation, but it's not quite the same as the insulation in a well-built house. In winter, the insulation in a house prevents the heat from escaping. In summer it keeps the heat out. But the body generates heat, summer and winter, and fat, being a poor conductor of heat, prevents the heat from escaping. It's a blanket keeping the heat in, and that is why overweights suffer in hot weather.

Well, move over in the breeze of the electric fan and let's talk a cool diet . . . we'll put the science of nutrition into practice and generate less heat, and help you to lose part of that uncomfortable fat padding.

Start With Fats

We'll start with fats, for they have two and a fourth times the fuel value of either sugar, starches or proteins. In terms of food, 1 ounce of butter, for example, contains two and a fourth times as many fuel calories as 1 ounce of sugar, or bread or lean meat. So trimming off the fats is the quickest way to cut down on the fuel in a summer menu.

What fats? The fat part of the meat, whether it's hot or cold; trim away every particle of it. And of course fried foods are taboo, for part of the fat saturates the food, and the calories mount proportionately. One tablespoon of fat contains approximately 100 calories. A gob of mayonnaise on a salad can make the salad high in calories. Generally, it's the cream in the iced coffee, the butter on the toast, rich sauces, sausages, bacon, fat meats, French dressing, and the pastries—these are all concentrated fuel foods.

The calorie is the measure of the amount of heat a food contains. This heat must be used for energy, or stored as fat. Thinking of calories as heat units may encourage you to take fewer high-calorie foods in hot weather. Just as there are high-calorie foods, there are foods that are low in calories, which means less heat. The foods that are seasonal in hot weather are low in calories. . . vegetables, salad greens, tomatoes, berries, summer fruits and melons.

Summer menus must furnish adequate nutrition, for the body requires material for wear and tear and repair all the time. The requirement for protective foods does not lessen in hot weather, nor when a person is trying to lose pounds. The menus must be built around milk and cheese, eggs, lean meats and fresh vegetables and fruits. Calories can be cut by deleting fat trimmings and concentrated fats.

Your Questions on Homemaking

My dog's eyes were treated with a green ointment which he rubbed off on the wall, causing large grease spots on the paper. Can you tell me how to remove these spots? E. P.

Make a paste of Fuller's Earth or commercial dry cleaning powder and carbon tetrachloride. Apply thickly to the spots, thinning out at the edges beyond the soiled area. Let it remain until thoroughly dry. Wipe off carefully with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride, and repeat the treatment if necessary. Before using this method on the spots, try it out on an inconspicuous area as certain pigments "bleed" when carbon tetrachloride is applied.

An alternate method is the blotter treatment, which should be effective if the stains are fresh. Hold a clean white blotter to the spots and apply a warm (not hot) iron, moving the blotter as it takes up the grease. Other substances in the medicine may still leave a stain. If the paper is washable, you may be able to remove them with cold water and mild soapsuds. If it isn't washable, one of the doughlike wallpaper cleansers may be helpful.

Will you tell me where to store fresh peaches, oranges, plums, and other fruits? Should they be put in the refrigerator? Often when I have put peaches in the ice box, they have acquired a sourish taste. F. L.

The ripeness of the fruit should be considered in deciding where to store it. If the fruit is not fully ripe, keep it at room temperature. When possible, spread out fruits like peaches to avoid bruising.

If the fruit is ripe and you want to keep it any length of time store it in the refrigerator. It's best not to wash soft fruits and berries before storing. Peaches will retain the flavor better if you use a closed pan when storing them in the refrigerator.

I have a gallon of floor wax that is getting very thick. Is there a thinner that can be added to restore it to its original consistency? Also, how can I remove mildew spots from a wool sweater? M. S. S.

"Self-polishing" waxes have a water base and can be thinned with water. Other waxes, however, must be thinned with turpentine, and still others with lacquer. Perhaps the label on your wax tells its ingredients. If not, consult a dealer, telling him the brand name of the wax if possible, or taking him a sample.

If the sweater is washable, sponge the mildew spots with a solution made with one tablespoon of sodium perborate to a pint of lukewarm water, or sprinkle the perborate directly on the dampened stain. Let stand a minute or two, then rinse well. If the sweater is colored, first test the bleach on a piece of the wool to be sure it will not change the color.

Town Talk—

Hugh Morris, Sam Sterrett Going Back To College Where Poe Was Student

By Eva Hinton

THIS is the time of year when young men and misses are feverishly tearing open envelopes with the return address of what they hope will be their alma mater and, universities still being overcrowded with the backlog of war-delayed students, many are doomed to disappointment.

Two of the lucky and clever ones are Hugh Morris, son of the George Maurice Morrises and Sam Sterrett, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Hatch Dent Sterrett. Both have been accepted for the University of Virginia Law School.

After attending St. Alban's together their paths separated. Morris went to Dartmouth, fought the war in the Pacific with the Marines, and was wounded at Okinawa. Sterrett went to Amherst and spent the war sailing the seven seas in the Merchant Marine.

Now it's "together again" and back to desks and notebooks instead of guns and anchors-aweigh. They will be rooming together, and both are especially intrigued with the historic antiquities of the University of Virginia.

They will be interested, no doubt, in the quarters of Edgar Allan Poe. His room remains furnished just as it was when Poe occupied it. Its door is usually kept open for the benefit of sightseers.

After fighting in Greece for the independence of that ever-threatened country, Poe went to West Point as a cadet and hated every minute of it. His godfather, who had become his guardian when Poe was orphaned as a child, refused to let him quit the military life. So the genius put his imagination to work.

When an order, "Uniform of the day, gloves," was posted young Poe took it literally and appeared at parade in just—GLOVES! His original if chilly costume caused the realization of his desire to leave West Point in a hurry. He was expelled! But, the story goes, he is to this day carried on the Military Academy rolls as an alumnus, the only expellee to be so honored!

CHARMING and self-explanatory is the name of the decoration received recently from the Dutch government by Mrs. Harold Coolidge of Boston and Washington. "The Silver Star of Gratitude" was bestowed on her in recognition of her many and successful efforts on behalf of Dutch-American understanding.

Mrs. Coolidge has also been made vice chairman of the Netherlands-America Foundation.

Bishops Announce Daughter's Troth To Lieut. Hogue

Lieut. Col. Harry Duncan Bishop, AUS, and Mrs. Bishop, now in Seoul, Korea, announce the engagement of their daughter, Gloria, to Lieut. George Fredenhall Hoge, USA, son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William Morris Hoge of Fort Belvoir, Va.

Miss Bishop attended Wellesley College with the class of 1947. Lieutenant Hoge is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, class of 1945, and is stationed with the First Infantry Regiment in Taegu, Korea.

The wedding will take place in Seoul in September.

Coan—Klensch

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Speer Coan announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Speer, to Charles Hugh Klensch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick Klensch of Cincinnati. Miss Coan was graduated from The Hartridge School in Plainfield, N. J. and is a senior at Vassar College.

Mr. Klensch, an alumnus of Walnut Hills High School, Cincinnati, attended the University of Missouri and is now a senior at Williams College. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. During the war he completed 36 missions as a first lieutenant bombardier with the Fifteenth Air Force in Italy.

Grover—Raleigh

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Grover of Southern Pines, N. C., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Lucille of Southern Pines and Arlington, Va., to Stuart F. Raleigh, jr., of Arlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Raleigh of Syracuse, N. Y.

MRS. COLIN SANDBORN

Colin Sandborn Miss Stevens Wed in Arlington

Miss Catherine T. Stevens and Colin C. Sandborn were married July 8, in the parsonage of Arlington Presbyterian Church. The Rev. I. Steenson officiated at the ceremony, which was attended by a small group of friends.

The bride wore a sheer dress of navy blue and a corsage of yellow roses. Daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Fred Stevens of Chicago, Ill., she has made her home in Cleveland Park for the past several years.

During the war, Mr. Sandborn served in the intelligence division of the United States Naval Reserve, and has now gone back to his former position as curator on the staff of the Field museum.

The couple will make their home in Highland Park, Ill.

Jerome Green 2d To Take Bride

Of interest to Washington is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Nancy Lloyd List, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Stuart List of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Ogunquit, Me., to Jerome Davis Greene 2d, son of Mrs. Edward Nicholas of Washington and Jerome C. Greene of New York.

The wedding will take place in the autumn.

Miss List is the granddaughter of the late Sydney Lloyd Wrightson, well-known musician. She was graduated from Fairfax Hall in Virginia and from Smith College last month.

Mr. Greene, an alumnus of Lenox School, will graduate from Harvard University in September as a member of the class of 1943. He served three years in the Merchant Marine.

Golf Game Follows McClure's Breakfast

By Marie McNair

After Mr. and Mrs. John E. McClure's breakfast yesterday at the Metropolitan Club most of the men left their ladies to their own devices and went out to the Burning Tree Club for an afternoon at golf.

Guests gathered at the Metropolitan Club around noon for a round of sherry, then sat down to three tables with places for 20 or more at each.

The Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde, was a guest and others were Senator and Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Senator Robert Taft, without Mrs. Taft, who is in Cincinnati; Representative and Mrs. Lowell Stockman, Representative and Mrs. Leslie Arends, Representative and Mrs. Charles Halleck, Representative and Mrs. Evan Howell, Representative Bertrand Gearhart, the Paul Porters, the Leslie Biffles and Robert Garner, vice president of the World Bank.

Army and Navy There

Gen. and Mrs. George Horkan were there and also enjoying this pleasant party were Admiral and Mrs. Harvey Johnson, Admiral and Mrs. Joseph Farley, Gen. and Mrs. Everett Hughes, William Julian, Treasurer of the United States, and Judge and Mrs. Sam Whitaker.

Then there were Marriner Eccles, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pittman, Jack Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wideman, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Whiteford, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Foote, Mr. and Mrs. A. Harding Paul, Ned Burnham, Earl Shinn.

Capt. Harry E. Zuver, who prefers the Burning Tree course to almost any other, was there with Mrs. Zuver and to go on—Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shorb, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weigester, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. William Mougey and Mr. and Mrs. William Kavanaugh.

Senator Taft has more success on the Senate floor than he did on the golf course yesterday. Teamed up with Representative Arends, he was soundly trimmed by Representative Halleck and Jack Daniel.

Today Mr. and Mrs. McClure and the two boys—John and Bill—will be off by motor for West Virginia and North Carolina, returning to their home in Kenwood early in August.

Party at Mexican Embassy

At a cocktail party yesterday for close friends given by Rear Admiral and Mrs. John W. Roper, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary Jones were saying goodby before they leave tomorrow for the Great Lake Station.

And on Saturday, delegates to the first Pan-American Congress of Pediatrics which closed a three-day session that day, bid each other farewell at the cocktail party given by the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Espinosa de los Monteros.

Guest of honor was the head of the 44 Mexican delegates, Dr. Federico Gomez, and Senora de Gomez shared honors with her husband.

The Mexican delegation and their wives were there and the United States had representation in Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General, and Mrs. Parran; Dr. and Mrs. John R. Murdock, Dr. Joseph S. Wall, Dr. Fred A. J. Geier, Dr. Julius Nevinser and Dr. Robert E. Moran and their wives.

Lieut. Col. Javier Gonzalez, director of civil aviation of Mexico, newly arrived in Washington, and his mother, Senora Emilia de Gonzalez, were there and also from Mexico were Capt. Roberto T. Amezaga, Alfonso Barnetche and Francisco Saravia.

Shirley Feinman Weds Sidney Katz

Miss Shirley Arline Feinman, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Kirstein Feinman of Washington and Isidore Robert Feinman, Portsmouth, Va., was married yesterday to Sidney Katz, son of Mrs. Samuel Katz of Philadelphia and the late Mr. Katz. The wedding took place at the Shoreham Hotel, with Rabbi Hugo Schiff officiating.

Escorted by her grandfather, Benjamin M. Kirstein, the bride wore a gown of white faille with off-the-shoulder neckline and bouffant skirt. Her finger-tip veil was caught with clusters of orange blossoms and she carried white roses centered with an orchid.

Miss Evelyn Rona Feinman, maid of honor for her sister, was costumed in white organza and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of red roses and blue cornflowers. Harry Katz served his brother as best man and ushers were Bernard Elman, uncle of the bride, and Herman Dorfman.

Following a honeymoon at Miami Beach, the couple will reside in Washington.

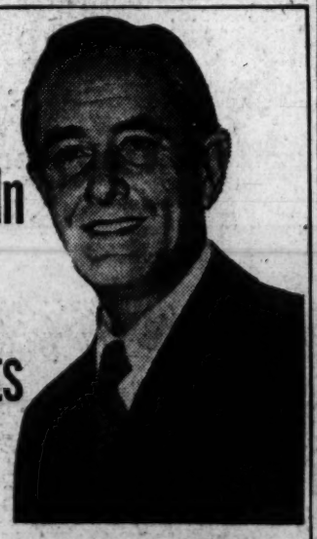
Keep Turning In Your Used Fats



Secretary of Commerce Says:

Used cooking fats have represented a substantial part of our total industrial fat supply. The more than 600 million pounds of used fats that American homemakers have saved and turned in since 1942 has been of vital importance. It is a record of which every woman who contributed may well be very proud.

The United States still lacks adequate supplies of fats and oils. And we are particularly short of industrial fats. Many, if not most, of the things we all use and wear require industrial fats, or the products of industrial fats, such as soaps and glycerine, in their manufacture.

So won't you keep up your good work and continue to save and turn in every possible pound of used fat?

It's a Nasty Go, Wot?

'Years Between' Has Mild Hokum

By Richard L. Coe

"THE YEARS BETWEEN," at the Hippodrome, is one of those irritating pictures in which no one ever tells anyone anything. You know. Dear old Michael was reported killed in action so hisi widow's about to marry someone else. Not only that, she's taken his seat in Parliament. Nasty go, wot?

Michael never bothers to explain why he didn't let his wife know he was alive all the time. His wife doesn't let him in on her projected marriage nor does she say a word about her being an M. P. for his district.

If you can accept the notion that people, even restrained, upper-crust British, behave like this, "The Years Between" may strike you as being a fair tear-jerker.

Originally this was a play by Daphane du Maurier which gave Clive Brook a good London workout, though our theatrical correspondents reported it was "bloody awful." Purely on movie evidence, we're inclined to agree.

"THE YEARS BETWEEN," J. Arthur Rank release, produced by Sydney Box. Directed by Compton Bennett. Screen play by Muriel and Sydney Box from the play by Daphne Du Maurier. Music by Ben Frankel, played by Muir Mathieson and the London Symphony. At the Hippodrome.

Heaven knows, its heart is in the right place. It states a case for the role women played in the war and how the world the soldiers came back to is not the same place, nor ever will be again. But all this is so blanketed under with unnatural behavior, impossible reticence and hoked-up contrivances that you're ready to talk back to the screen and get people informed about things they would naturally know.

Michael, you see, has been doing hush-hush underground work and it's to the war's advantage for everyone, including his wife, to think him dead. Diana is no end upset, talking by midnight to his empty chair until faithful old Nannie puts the bee in someone's topper that Diana is just the girl for Parliament.

Diana finally pulls out of her funk and comes out against women's inferior wages, queueing in line for groceries and man's supremacy in general. She even decides to marry so little Robin can have a father.

When Michael comes back he's not half so undernourished as people insist he is. This leads to their talking to him about everything under the sun except what's been going on in the years between.

A happy ending is achieved, though we take a very dim view of what will happen to that marriage if they muffle their thoughts the way they have been. Because this is a British film, some folk may get the idea that this restraint is a national characteristic, but no one could get so restrained as these characters.

It's well played in a plodding sort of way, with Michael Redgrave as the returned officer, Valerie Hobson (who's also in the Earle's superb "Great Expectations) as the wife and Flora Robson as the middle-age Nannie who talks people into some sense.

The screenplay was written by Sydney and Muriel Box and directed by Compton Bennett, the trio who gave us "The Seventh Veil." They're probably done as much with the story as anyone could. But Miss du Maurier's moist little paws are too much for them.

STICKY BUSINESS: That's what Manager Jack Foxe of the Columbia reports for his bubble-gum morning matinee Saturday of "Miracle on 34th Street." . . . We're stark blind at that hour of the day, so we weren't able to enjoy the town's "25 best bubble-gum champions" in the lobby . . . The prize for what Foxe called "the vascid jaw exercisers" was the Edmund Gwenn picture on the house . . . Us, we wouldn't mind PAYING to see that one.

RAY WHITLEY, who's made Westerns and RKO shorts, is out at the Atlas, which makes the Atlas very proud . . . he's got his whole show from the Coast along with him in this, his first stage date in the East . . . on the screen you get "Ramrod," with Joel McCrea and Veronica Lake, and "Susie Steps Out," with David Bruce and Nita Hunter.

WASHINGTONIANS who don't know their hometown . . . and there are more than you think who've never, frinstance, been to Capitol Hill . . . get a tour of the District in tomorrow night's opening short on the Post-Dispatch Public Library program in Interior Auditorium . . . and the Red Cross' recent work in the Midwest floods comes to mind with "Disaster Strikes," a short showing the Red Cross in action . . . "Song of Ceylon" pictures life among the Singhalese and "Instruments of the Orchestra" is an entertaining tour among the strings, brasses, reeds and woodwinds of the London Symphony Orchestra.

'Pit' Gets Genn; Yeggs Get the 'Carmen Amaya'

New York.—Leo Genn, the British actor featured in "Henry V," has been signed to play the psychiatrist in the film adaptation of "The Snake Pit." Genn's recent screen appearance was in "Green for Danger" . . . Josh Logan, the director, is in a hospital suffering from eye-trouble . . . Johnny Broderick, the famed detective whose fists are feared by the hoodlums, caught three of them assaulting customers in a restaurant. Broderick kayoed all three, and then kicked them so that they'd stay down until the patrol wagon arrived. C. C. Green, who saw it all, described Broderick's kicks: "Johnny gave it the Carmen Amaya."

Carmen Amaya

Max Aitken, the war-hero son of Lord Beaverbrook, has been stricken with an ailment affecting the nerves in his body. Aitken, a Member of Parliament, served in the RAF throughout the war without sustaining any injuries . . . Herman Shumlin probably will produce the new musical written by Harold J. Rome, who wrote the songs for "Call Me Mister." . . . Peter Grimm, the realtor, reports that the final message he received from the late Lucius Boomer, head of the Waldorf, was to buy a Fifth ave. corner for a new Sherry's building.

John Sweet is the American GI who was given a leave by the Army, during the war, to appear in the British movie, "Canterbury Tales." Sweet, a former Ohio schoolmaster, received rave notices for his movie work. Michael Redgrave saw the film and stated that Sweet was one of the finest actors he had ever seen. . . . Sweet then played the leading role in the GI production of "Our Town." Again the critics applauded him. One year later, after the war ended, Sweet was back in London, playing the bit-part of the milkman in the Jed Harris production of "Our Town." It closed and he returned to America . . . Redgrave was in N. Y. recently. He inquired about John Sweet and discovered that he's doing "Our Town" in a college performance in Granville, Ohio. Redgrave told the William Morris agency and Dore Schary, production head of RKO, about Sweet. Today the talent scouts are on their way to Granville.

Lou Holtz, now headlining the new Carnival show with Bert Wheeler, Barry Wood, Patsy Kelly and Diosa Costello, prefers the change that has come upon New York since the days when he first made the Big Time. When Holtz arrived, the notorious Wagner Brothers, the coked-up mobsters, threatened his life until he paid them $5000 . . . Then, when he was booked into the Palace at $6000 a week, Holtz received a phone-call warning him to get $10,000 ready. When the man called again, to ask if Holtz had the $10,000, the comic replied: "I've got more than that for you. I've got $20,000 and it's all yours," he said, reciting the lines in which he had been coached—the lines which relieved him forever from trouble from The Mob. "Yes, $20,000, and it's all yours if you come and get it—from me and from Johnny Broderick who's standing beside me."

In "Kinsblood Royal" Sinclair Lewis denounces the comic strips and comic books which make Negro characters "clownish and vile." Orrin Evans, the Negro newspaperman, has started an All Negro Comic Book; the first ever published, edited and drawn by Negroes. All the heroes and villians in it will be Negroes. The first printing, 300,000 copies, will be on the U. S. and West Indies newsstands next week . . . Barry Fitzgerald said in Toots Shor's that he doubts if he'll ever appear in a play again. "Playacting is too hard for me now," said Fitzgerald. "It takes energy."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Paraguay Experiment Is Laid to Argentina

By Drew Pearson

Col. Federico Smith, former commander in chief of Loyalist forces in the Paraguayan civil war, has declared in writing that the Argentine government furnished his army vast quantities of arms and munitions, including a "devastatingly potent" new type fragmentation grenade.

Bob Hope

Colonel Smith resigned his command in protest against Paraguayan President Morinigo's acceptance of this Argentine aid. He has now written a letter to an Argentine congressman charging that Argentina insisted on having Morinigo's forces try out the new grenade against the rebels, although army leaders were opposed to its use because of its "vicious potency."

The Argentine congressman to whom the letter was addressed has sought in vain to have the Chamber of Deputies authorize an investigation into the arms question. He is Gregorio Pomer, member of the Radical Party opposition. Although he has so far respected Colonel Smith's request to keep the actual text of the letter secret, he has advised the latter that he will lay it before Congress if necessary.

Phony Spanish Fløps

Hollywood's experiment with dubbed-in Spanish language sound tracks for the Latin-American market was a costly flop. The sight of Myrna Loy's, Bob Hope's or Margaret O'Brien's lips making movements that had nothing to do with the Spanish words so disgusted patrons throughout Mexico and South America that they stayed away from these hybrid offerings.

MGM alone, principal dabbler in the synchronization attempt, lost more than $1,500,000 on its gamble. The company is now reissuing films in South America with the original English-language sound tracks and featuring this fact in all advertisements.

Indians Massacred

A high official of a South American embassy in La Paz, Bolivia, has sent his government a confidential report that President Enrique Hertzog of Bolivia has "sanctioned the systematic slaughter of the Indian population" in Bolivia.

According to this report, Hertzog has permitted the Bolivian army to send numerous punitive expeditions into remote sectors of Bolivia's "high plateau" region during recent months, with instructions to "wipe out the population of any settlement where hostility is encountered." It is estimated that "more than 4500 Indians have been killed" since January 1.

A passive resistance campaign was launched last December by the plateau Indians, after the government had turned down their request to be allowed to form labor unions. About half the men in that region work in the tin mines, while the rest are employed on the estates of the great landholders under "absolute slave-labor conditions," according to the diplomat's report.

Passive resistance soon became open rebellion when a detachment of government troops shot down some 15 Indians who refused an order to return to work at a nearby mine. Since then, the revolt has been organized under the leadership of several "caciques," or chiefs, whom the government charges are Communist-trained.

"'It does not matter to us if we die,'" one of these caciques is quoted as saying. "'The white man is strong and hard but his numbers are few, and we are like the grains of sand upon the shore.'"

The report states that "reactionary forces in Bolivia are determined to seize this opportunity to decimate the Indian population, which they regard as a handicap to the nation's progress."

Wedding Bells Ring

Sax—Buchanan

Miss Katharine Baetjer Buchanan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Crump Buchanan of Bethesda, Md., was married on July 5 in Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church to Dr. William Peter Sax, son of Dr. and Mrs. Karl Sax of Jamaica Plain, Mass. The Rev. Daniel C. Buchanan performed his daughter's ceremony.

Given in marriage by her uncle, William S. Buchanan, the bride wore a gown of white marquisette and a lace-trimmed veil and carried white roses and daisies. Miss Margaret Anne Buchanan, maid of honor for her sister, was gowned in blue taffeta and she carried yellow roses, marguerites and daisies. William and Calvert Cottrell, twin cousins of the bride, served as ring bearers. Best man for his brother was Karl Sax and ushers were Daniel Crump Buchanan, jr., and George Cumming Buchanan. A

Tuck Stresses Economy for Va. Agencies

Richmond, Va., July 13 (AP).—A request for all State departments and agencies to operate as frugally as possible during the remainder of the current biennium ending next June 30 will be sent by Governor Tuck to State officials tomorrow.

In a memorandum prepared just before he left for the annual Governors' Conference at Salt Lake City, the Governor said the State agencies should strive for every economy that can be achieved "without improperly curtailing essential services."

He said efforts to save are necessary for the following reasons:

Dut to Rising Costs

Inevitable deficits caused by rising costs and other problems in State hospitals and possibly other institutions present "a serious financial problem."

Making up these deficits in the 1948-50 budget will cause "heavy drain on State revenue" in addition to the "large increases" in appropriations that apparently will be necessary for mental hygiene, education and public health work.

Another step in preparations for drafting the Commonwealth's 1948-50 budget came with the designation by Governor Tuck of eight General Assembly members to serve on the Governor's budget advisory commission.

State Senator J. D. Hagood of Clover, was named to succeed Senator William D. Medley of Arlington, who has announced plans to retire from the Assembly.

G. Alvin Massenburg of Hampton, speaker of the House of Delegates, also will fill the speaker's post among the budget advisors.

Collins in Group

Lieutenant Governor L. Preston Collins of Marion, becomes a member of the advisory group through continuance by Governor Tuck of the practice inaugurated by former Governor Darden of including the Senate's presiding officer on the commission.

Reappointed to the Budget Commission were:

From the Senate: John S. Battle of Charlottesville, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Robert O. Norris, jr., of Lancaster, president pro tem of the Senate.

From the House: Delegate Charles C. Louderback of Page, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee; Delegate H. H. Adams of Northampton, and Delegate E. Blackburn Moore of Clarke.

Darden Inauguration Set for October

Charlottesville, Va., July 13 (AP). Formal inauguration of Colgate Whitehead Darden, jr., as president of the University of Virginia has been set for Wednesday, October 1, University's rector, Edward R. Stettinius, jr., has announced.

Chief speaker for the inauguration of President Darden was not announced nor were any further details given as to plans for the occasion.

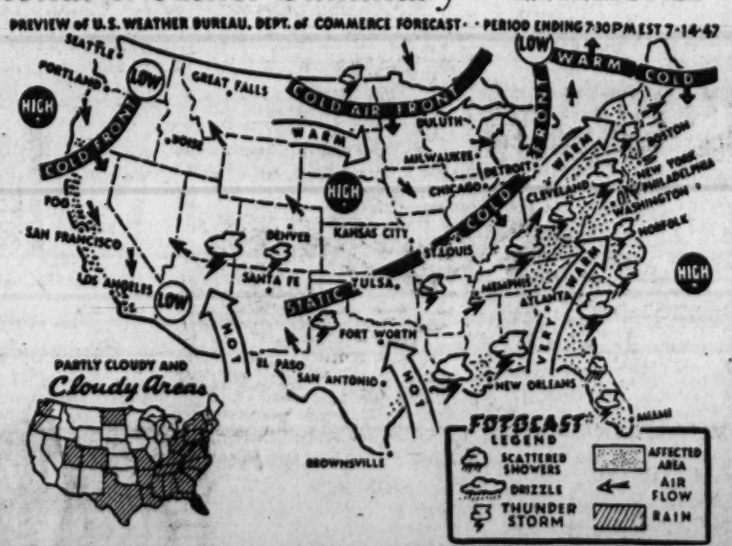
National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. & Wagner

PREVIEW of U.S. WEATHER BUREAU, DEPT. of COMMERCE FORECAST · · PERIOD ENDING 7:30 P.M. EST 7-14-47



TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR FORECAST SUMMARY: Cold-air fronts dominate the northern half of the U. S., Monday, but only the Ohio Valley, western Lakes region and Northwest will have cooler weather.

Temperatures in the mid 90s are forecast in the Dakotas and Rockies. It will be equally hot in the Southern States and the Southwest's weather experts predict thermometer readings above 100 degrees, Monday afternoon, at El Paso, Phoenix and Las Vegas.

Most cities along the East Coast will have 90 degree maximums from Charleston northward to Boston. New York forecasts 87; Philadelphia, 89; Washington, 90; Charleston and Norfolk, 92.

Maxima in the 80s will prevail further inland: Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Indianapolis foresee 84 degree readings; Milwaukee, Chicago, Grand Rapids and Duluth expect a comfortably warm 80; St. Louis an 88; Kansas City, 92.

It will be coolest in the Seattle and San Francisco areas where below normal thermometer readings are foreseen—thanks to cooling on-shore winds from the North Pacific.

Most of the showers and thunderstorms forecast by the Weather Bureau will occur in the eastern half of the country from the Gulf Coast and Florida northward to the borders of New England. These storms will develop during Monday afternoon and evening in most of the affected areas shown on the fotocast.

Saucers Use Alcohol as Fuel on Flights of Fancy

Gags about the flying saucers make the rounds rapidly, but in case you haven't already heard these, here are a couple of the better ones:

Most of the flying saucers were probably "seen" by people in their cups."

"I haven't encountered any flying saucers yet, but there's a cute dish living next door to us."

It wouldn't surprise me to find that the truth of the matter is that the whole thing is a publicity stunt for the Little Theater's "Storm in a Teacup."

VACATION NOTES

For the benefit of those of you who haven't had your vacations yet, here are some of the things I learned during mine:

Washington isn't the only place where people gripe about bad weather.

Railroad trains are still as crowded and dirty as ever.

If you think prices here are high, wait until you go elsewhere. Wow!

MACY TELLS ALBERT

We spent a couple of days in New York, and all I have to show for them is a lot of check stubs and one story.

This has to do with "The Miracle on 34th Street," which deals with the ancient rivalry between Macy's and Gimbel's. After we saw the movie, a New York friend told us the story of Albert.

Albert had worked for Macy's for several years. When the war came along, he announced that he was going to enlist. So his patriotic colleagues gave him a farewell party.

Albert's supervisor made a stirring speech, and at its conclusion turned to Albert and intoned:

"We're proud to know that you're enlisting, Albert; but before you go, we want to remind you that the REAL enemy will always be Gimbel's."

WELCOME, STRANGER

The Big Brass in the Metropolitan Police Department has announced that out-of-towners are to be shown every courtesy —but at least one Buckeye is going to return to Ohio with a reasonable doubt in his mind.

There were two cars parked on E st. nw., between 13th and 14th, when the Ohio car pulled up near the corner, and one of the occupants hopped out to enter the drug store.

The cop on the beat had ignored the two parked cars because they were in a space reserved for congressional tags and holders of official permits.

One was a big black Cadillac, and the other was a Ford displaying a permit issued in 1942 for emergency parking in another part of town. Both had been there for hours.

But the moment the visitor pulled up, the cop was Johnny-on-the-spot.

"Move along, mister—you're in a restricted area."

"Yessir," mumbled the stranger meekly. "I thought so long as those other cars were parked here, I could wait here for a moment. Guess I was wrong."

REPORT

The folks at Children's Hospital bring us up to date on our token campaign in behalf of that institution.

More than 7000 of you have contributed 33,651 Capital Transit tokens, and have inclosed $769.85 in cash. Tokens and cash together have boosted the hospital's building fund by $3574.

The children thank you.

APPLIED PSYCHOLOGY

Robert J. Serling, of 1218 16th st. nw., sends this one along:

"This happened while you were away, but it's still good. The McKee Pontiac people have a car lot across the street from their showrooms, and the other day I saw a wrecked car parked there.

"It was one of the current Pontiacs, but it was far from new. The fenders were smashed, the glass was shattered, the top caved in—in short, it was a mess.

"I wondered what had happened, and if anybody had been killed in the accident. Curious, I walked over for a closer examination—and I discovered that the McKee people are good psychologists.

"They had posted a sign on the car. It read:

"'Only one person was slightly injured in this sturdily built Pontiac.'"

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

You are declarer of today's 4-spade contract and West opens heart queen. How do you play to win an overtrick?

Today's Hand

East-West Vulnerable

SOUTH DEALER

	♠Q103 ♡A98542 ◇Q107 ♣J
♠K52 ♡QJ10 ◇843 ♣A754		♠84 ♡K76 ◇KJ9 ♣98632
	♠AJ987 ♡3 ◇A853 ♣KQ10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Q ♡.

South wins game with an overtrick by refusing the finesse in trumps in order to set up a cross ruff. He wins the opening lead with the heart ace, returns the jack of clubs and overtakes with the king, losing to West's ace. West shifts to a low spade and declarer wins it in the closed hand and cashes the queen and ten of clubs, discarding two diamonds from the board.

Next he plays the ace of diamonds, ruffs a diamond and trumps a heart. He ruffs another diamond in dummy, setting up his six spot, returns to his hand by trumping a heart and lays down the ace of spades. Now he leads the long diamond and West ruffs with the spade king, but South wins the last trick with the jack of spades. He makes four spades and one over, losing a club and a spade.

Declarer will go down one trick if he takes the spade finesse after winning the heart ace. West takes the king and returns a spade, and later leads another spade on getting in with the club ace. South must lose a spade, a club and two diamonds.

Business airs

Some people think it pays them well . . . To put on business airs . . . And play up their importance in . . . The handling of affairs . . . Their secretaries bar the doors . . . And make their callers wait . . . And if they should be out to lunch . . . They always come back late . . . They talk in condescending tones . . . As though their every deed . . . Donated great ability . . . To serve a vital need . . . But people who are actually . . . Important on this earth . . . Are those who need no business airs . . . To demonstrate their worth . . . They are the ones who work and who . . . Are really busy but . . . Whose hearts are always open and . . . Whose doors are never shut.

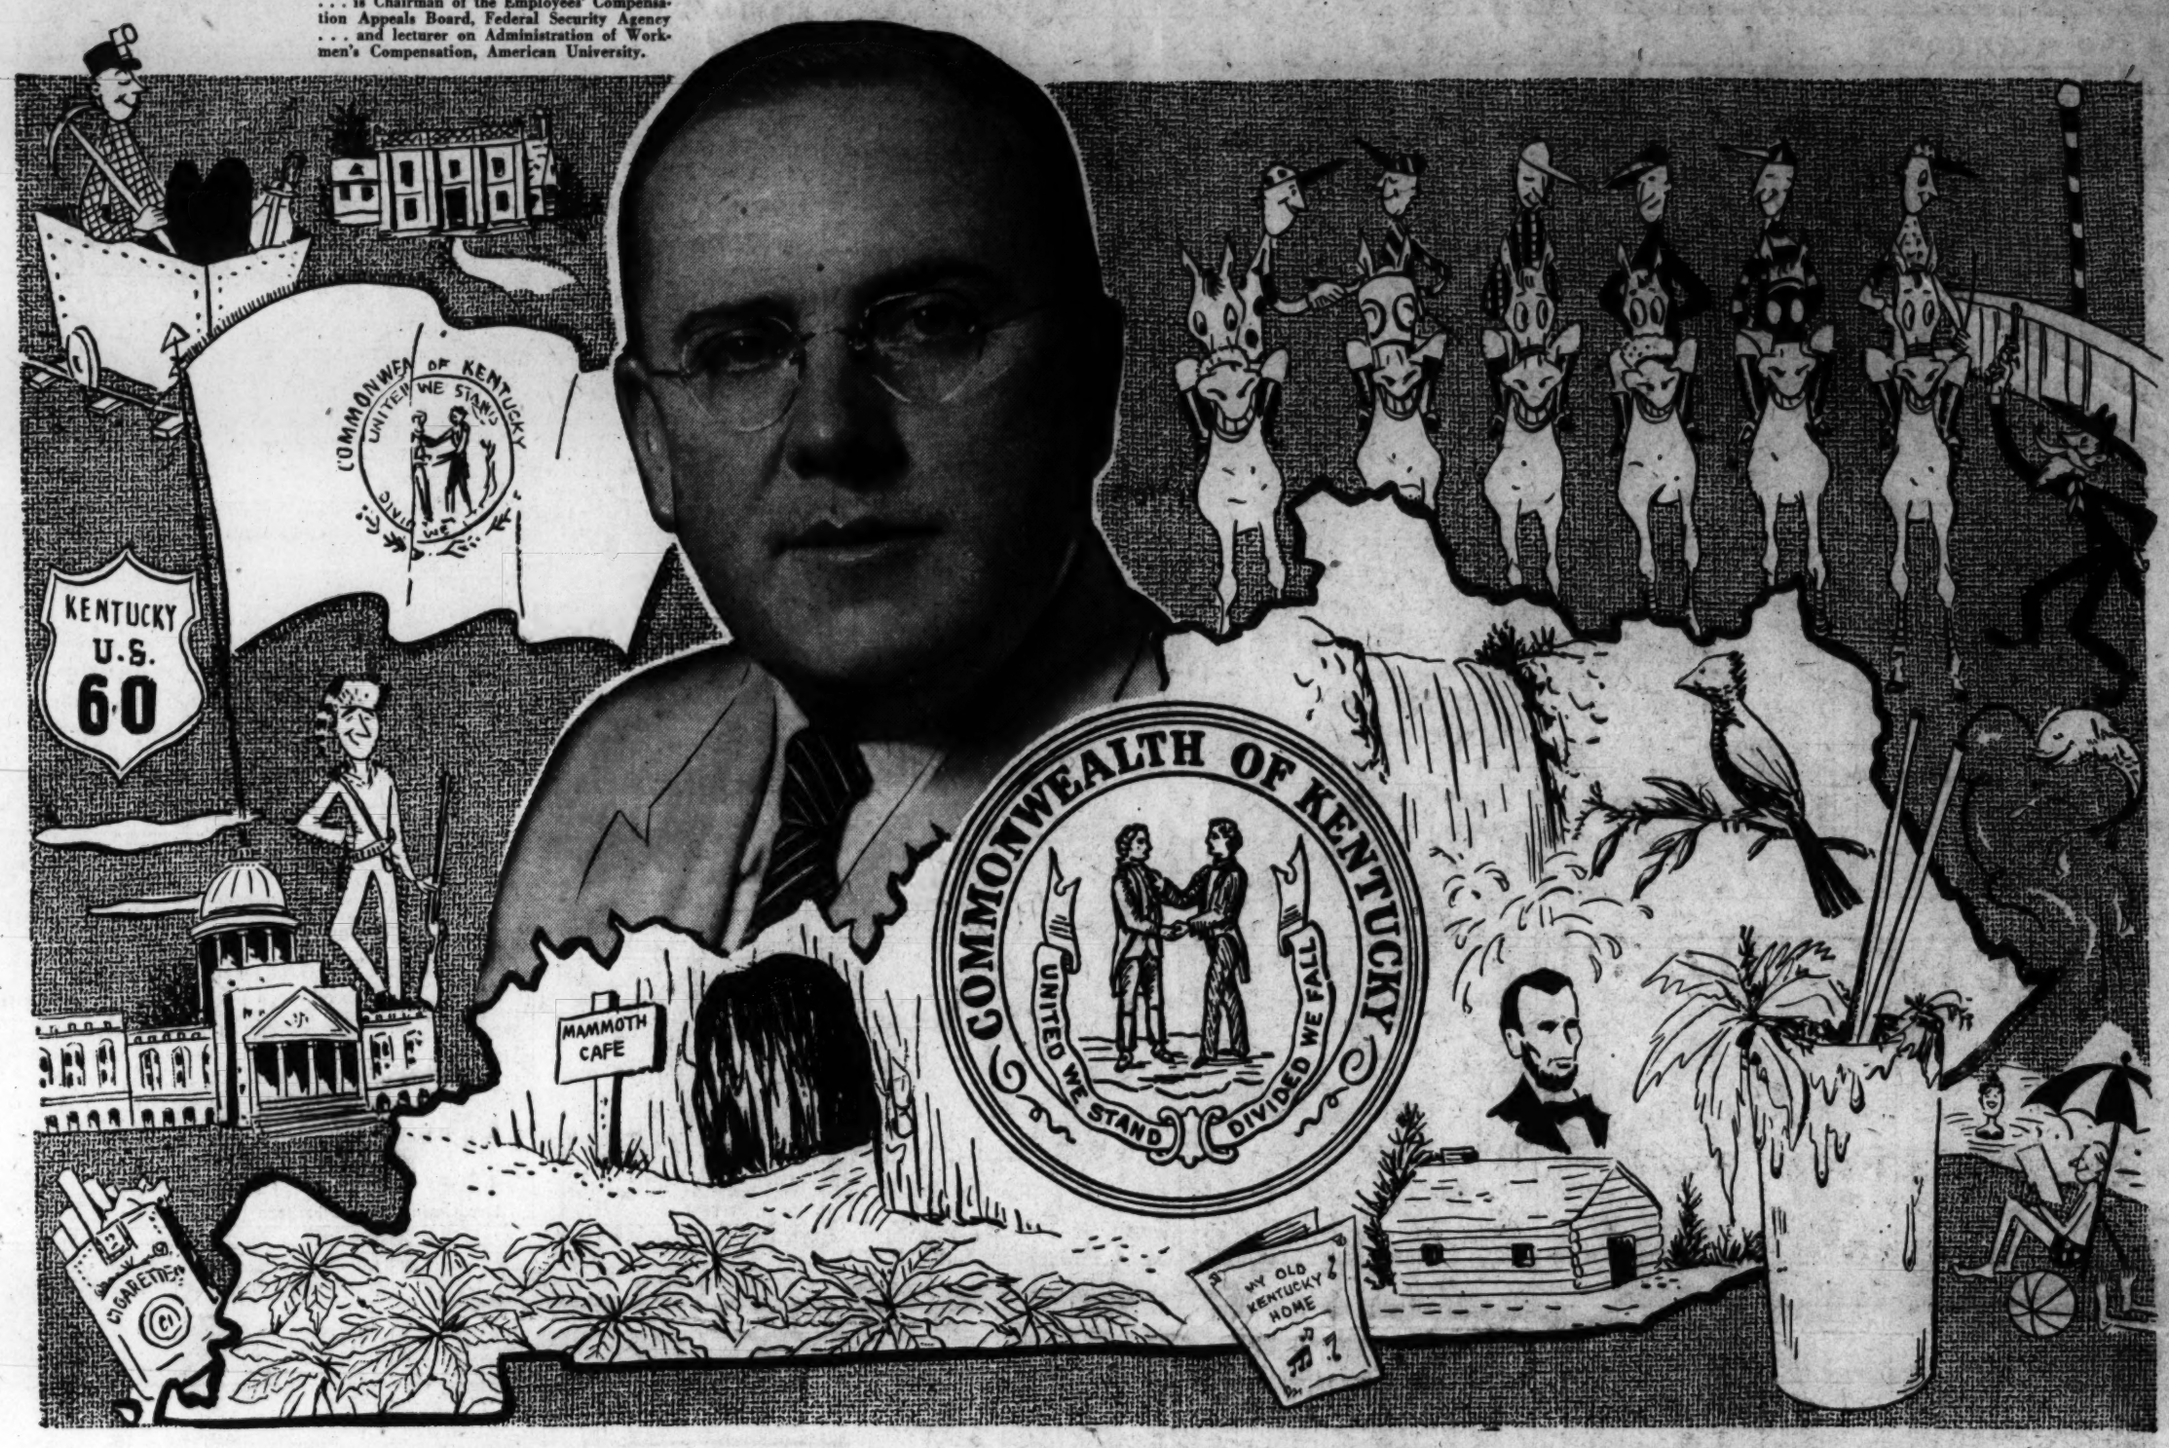
A GREAT STORE IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL

Henry C. Iler . . . attorney-at-law, with degree of LLB from Columbus University Law School . . . is Chairman of the Employees' Compensation Appeals Board, Federal Security Agency . . . and lecturer on Administration of Workmen's Compensation, American University.



THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN

KENTUCKY
. . . Where sky and rolling plains meet on the horizon . . . the first State west of the Alleghenies to enter the Union . . . in 1792 . . . birthplace of Abraham Lincoln.

KENTUCKY
. . . Where top champions of the turf race . . . and saddle horses graze on the lush pastures. The Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs is a classic of American racing. Kentucky is the home of the Thoroughbred Club of America, founded in 1933, to encourage clean sportsmanship, and give recognition for service to the sport of racing.

KENTUCKY
. . . Where state and national parks commemorate many points of historical and geographical interest . . . Audubon State Park at Henderson, many years the home of the world famous bird lover, John James Audubon . . . a State shrine at Federal Hill where Stephen Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home" . . . and Cumberland Falls State Park, with the greatest waterfall south of Niagara and east of the Rockies.

KENTUCKY
. . . Site of Mammoth Cave, one of the seven wonders of the New World . . . whose rock-lined caverns and passages twist for miles underground . . . recently dedicated as a National Park.

KENTUCKY
. . . Second in U. S. production of fine tobacco . . . Lexington is one of the country's biggest markets . . . home of colorful tobacco auctioneers, the State is second in manufacture of cigarettes and other tobacco products . . . and high among the "gobbler" producing areas for our Nation's Thanksgiving and Christmas.

KENTUCKY
. . . Where commercial iron mongering began in 1791 . . . bourbon iron for pots and pans, hatchets, axes, and horse shoes was produced in small furnaces powered by a tromp or water wheel, with charcoal as the fuel.

KENTUCKY
. . . With many firsts in education . . . William Holmes McGuffey, author of the McGuffey Readers, conducted one of his early schools here . . . one-hundred-and-two-year-old Kentucky Military Institute is the oldest private military school in the country . . . and Southern Baptist Seminary is the largest evangelical school in the world.

. . . A storybook country . . . whose Annie Fellows Johnston gave the beloved "Little Colonel" to generations of American girls . . . and where the latch-string is always out to visitors to lovely old Southern homes and many historically-interesting spots.

We wish to thank The Hecht Company for this opportunity to tell the story of Kentucky to friends from all the other great sections of our country. The Blue Grass State has been rich in the history of the United States—since the days when the Cumberland Mountains and the rolling plains of blue grass served as a hunting ground for Daniel Boone, legendary explorer, famous for his marksmanship and his coonskin cap. The enterprising spirit of her settlers was demonstrated by the early development of her abundant resources for mining, agriculture and industries, which have kept Kentucky prosperous throughout the years. Along with cotton, wheat and oats, the State produces and processes large quantities of the Nation's best tobacco . . . which is marketed at Lexington and Owensboro in the traditional manner of the tobacco auctioneers. Kentucky is fourth in coal mining in the Nation and high in oil, with natural gas and quarry products her other important minerals . . . and has been prominent in the manufacture of iron and steel products since 1791. Fine sportsmanship has been the tradition and heritage of Kentucky—and she is justly proud of her reputation as a leader in the breeding of fine horse flesh. Our State has contributed richly to American folk music, with the ballads handed down through generations of mountain people and the beautiful songs of Stephen Foster. Kentuckians have been leaders in statesmanship since the days of Henry Clay and Abraham Lincoln. Of the nine members of the present Supreme Court of the United States, three are Kentucky-born . . . the Chief Justice the Honorable Fred M. Vinson, and Associate Justices Stanley Reed and Wiley Rutledge. Kentucky, from the Indian word "Ken-tah-ten" means "Land of Tomorrow" . . . all Kentuckians look forward to a future of Tomorrow glorious as her past and her present.
